Coal Industry Swings To Strike Crisis Spotlight

Nation's Two Basic Industries, Coal And Steel, Seriously Threatened

480,000 MINERS APPEAR SURE TO LEAVE DIGGING

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 17.—(AP)—The crisis in American ndustry today suddenly itched from basic metal to ic fuel with a nationwide kout in the coal fields next s a virtual certainty.

Pt of the nation's 480,000 miners garyed ready to quit the pits due the spension of pension and other as it payments. Work stoppages al- his are under way in the west. gar United Mine Workers' locals seie east and midwest voted against "brting for work Monday.

No-work sentiment spread rapidly over the far flung coal fields—both bituminous and anthracite—and one U. M. W. official who flatly refused to be named declared:

"There'll be darned few miners in the pits Monday."

There was no word on this from U. M. W. Chieftain John L. Lewis. U. M. W. leaders said officially only that they were handing down to the diggers Lewis' telegram suspending payments under U. M. W.'s controversial welfare fund.

Meantime, feuding by telegram between the C. I. O. United Steelworkers and the steel industry quieted with government intervention in an effort to stave off a country-wide strike of a million workers September 25.

SLAVS IN U.S. HELP COMMIES

Revealed During Hearing On Bill To Raise New Alien Barriers

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17.—(AP)—Testimony that "official representatives" of Yugoslavia have directly aided Communist propaganda activity here was made public tonight by a senate judiciary subcommittee.

The witness was Dr. Slobodan M. Draskovich formerly of Yugoslavia. Now living in New York City, he formerly was an economics professor at the University of Belgrade.

The committee, holding hearings on a bill to raise new barriers against the entry of subversive aliens, took his testimony this month behind closed doors.

Secretary of State Acheson's opposition to the proposed legislation was disclosed yesterday. He said it would seriously intefer with the conduct of foreign affairs and might force a break in diplomatic relations with Communist-dominated nations.

Dr. Draskovich told the committee that representatives from Yugoslava "did not respect" the rule that they "were supposed not to meddle in internal politics or make Communist propaganda."

They have taken part in many Communist-led "celebrations" organized among Slavic groups, he said, and their speeches there were of "direct help" to Communist propaganda in America.

A committee questioner observed to the witness that a Draskovich report given the committee contained information "concerning involvement"

Soldier's Captivity May Be Investigated

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17.—(AP)—Senator O'Conor (D-Md.) asked Secretary of State Acheson today to make an "immediate and thorough" inquiry into the case of John J. Sienkiewicz, an American private who escaped this week from a Soviet prison.

Sienkiewicz, a Baltimore resident, reported that he had been held prisoner by the Russians since last November 5. The 26-year-old veteran of the Pacific war was attached to the 16th infantry in Berlin when he disappeared.

He told American authorities in Berlin, following his escape Thursday midnight with three British prisoners, that the Russians had tortured him.

O'Conor said in a message to Acheson that he was "convinced this case demands immediate attention and warrants strongest diplomatic representation to Moscow for explanation and subsequent action by Russian authorities."

Sienkiewicz said he was seized by a Russian officer when he rode a street car into the Soviet sector of Berlin by mistake, and his name led the Russians to believe he was a Polish displaced person being used as a spy. He reported that the Russians had "slapped hell" out of him.

Jewel Robbery Probe Revealed By Council

Mysterious Discovery Of Stolen Gems In Police Car Still Unexplained; 'Full And Complete' Investigation Underway

The Monroe City Council is making a "full and complete" investigation of the T-K Jewel Box robbery, it was announced by Mayor George Breece.

Some $4,000 in diamonds, watches and other jewelry was stolen from the store August 30, and was found in a police department patrol car on September 6. It was returned to the owners on September 8, but several valuable pieces of jewelry were missing, according to the company's inventory of goods which were stolen.

Announcement of the recovery of the loot was not made public by Police Chief H. T. Ward and circumstances concerning the case were revealed in The Morning World last Thursday.

Mayor Breece's statement follows:

"The council is now engaged in making a full and complete investigation of the recent incident with reference to the stolen jewels from the T-K Jewel Box. As soon as this is completed, necessary steps will be taken to correct any deficiency that may be found to exist.

"Our citizens should know that no one can be removed from the police force until charges have been filed and sustained by the Municipal Fire and Police Civil Service Board, which board was created by Act 102 of the legislature of 1944.

"Your council will take whatever steps may be necessary to correct any faults found in this department."

It was pointed out by attorneys here yesterday that before a member of the police department, including the chief, may be dismissed, a hearing must be held by the Civil Service board if requested by the person charged.

The jewels were found on the rear seat of a patrol car parked at the L. and H. wrecking company here on September 6. The package, wrapped in a newspaper and tied with a red string, was immediately taken to headquarters by the two officers in the car.

Chief Ward visited the jewelry store on September 7 and discussed the robbery with one of the owners, and then, accompanied by Detective Captain Hugh Tolbert, returned the jewels on September 8. The chief refused to tell where he had found the jewels and the following day made the bare

SENATE WILL GET AID BILL MONDAY

Will Be Accompanied With Reminder That Russia Holds Big Armed Force

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17.—(AP)—The administration's $1,314,000,000 foreign arms aid bill comes up in the senate Monday accompanied by a formal report cautioning that Russia has 5,000,000 armed men and appears to be deliberately building up her military strength.

The senate armed services and foreign relations committees, which held joint sessions on the bill, formally urged its passage in a report to the senate made public today.

The report said that:

Russia's military budget is up 19 per cent over last year.

She has increased her troop strength in Germany from 7,000 men to 100,000.

The Soviets are taking "increased security measures" along their borders and those of their satellites, and

Russia's ground forces "are estimated to be in better condition than at any time since the war."

The two key committees said these developments meant that:

"In the face of the complete demobilization of the forces of the U. S. and the European nations, and without a competing program of military improvement, Soviet policy has been and is to increase its military strength.

This policy is apparently a delibe-

TWO INJURED IN AUTO COLLISIONS

Driver Of One Auto Involved Disappears From Scene; Sought By Police

Two separate accidents, one at the intersection of North Ninth and Breard streets, Monroe, the other at the intersection of North Seventh street and the Arkansas road, West Monroe, injured two persons, one of them a Negro.

Both incidents, according to state and Monroe police reports, occurred between seven and eight o'clock.

Injured in the Arkansas road-Seventh street collision was Mrs. W. E. Hinkley, about 52, of 2615 North Tenth street, West Monroe. She was taken to the Bendel-Wright Clinic by a Mulhearn ambulance where her condition was undetermined, however witnesses said Mrs. Hinkley suffered bruises on her head and a severely lacerated right knee.

Mrs. Hinkley, according to state police, sustained injuries when a 1941 Mercury coupe rammed into the rear

Wealthy Widow Fleeced By Smooth Talking Swindler

LE MARS, Ia., Sept. 17.—(AP)—A well-to-do widow asserted today that she was "swindled out of $28,000" over a period of more than a year by a man she said used "imitation diamonds and hints of underworld reprisals."

The widow, Mrs. Clara Mieras, 60, who operates an extensive real estate and insurance business, told this story in a telephone interview:

In 1947 she loaned the man $5,000 and he later repaid her in diamonds.

"But the next thing I knew," she said, "He had informed me that the diamonds were 'hot' and that I was implicated because I had possession of them."

She said the man told her his primary interest was in protecting her and that she advanced him more and more money for various purposes in connection with the "gems."

When she had the stones appraised she learned they were zircons and practically valueless.

"Then came a reign of terror," she said. "I was told I knew too much and that unless I went along there were ways of getting rid of people like me."

As time went on she said it seemed she was dealing in "a world of shadows" which involved mysterious trips and telephone calls.

"And all the time," she continued, "I was advancing more and more money in return for his promises to get everything straightened out."

"I finally realized that I was near the breaking point," Mrs. Mieras said. "I decided to put an end to the thing, no matter what happened to me, and through a trusted friend federal authorities were brought into the case."

County Attorney Morse Hoorneman said today that a Le Mars man is scheduled to appear in federal court at Cedar Rapids Monday in connection with the case. He said he understood the man would be charged with extortion through use of the interstate telephone.

The F. B. I. and U. S. District Attorney T. E. Diamond declined any comment on the case.

LEPROSY VICTIM LEAVES CARVILLE

Woman Who Contracted Disease In Jap Prison 'Remarkably Improved'

CARVILLE, L., Sept. 17.—(AP)—Maj and Mrs. Hans Hornbostel plan to drive through the gates of the Leprosarium here tomorrow morning for the last time.

Mrs. Hornbostel came here on June 2, 1946, to be treated for Hansen's disease (leprosy), probably contracted in the Santo Tomas prison camp near Manila where the Japanese kept her for three years.

The pleas of her husband—himself a graduate of the Cabanatuan prison camp and a survivor of the Bataan death march—to live with her in the hospital focused international attention on the case.

They bought a small cottage on the grounds of the U. S. marine hospital—the National Leprosarium. The major spent all the hours permitted with her, and lived in a room he rented several miles from the hospital.

Mrs. Hornbostel has a discharge, the major said, after "remarkable" improvement. They plan to drive to Bellmont, N. Y., on Long Island. Mrs. Hornbostel will take additional treatment, he said, and eventually they will move to Los Catos, Calif.

"Hansen's disease is not all its cracked up to be" said Major Hornbostel, on the eve of their departure.

Lifer Surrenders To Sheriff's Authorities

KOSCIUSKO, Miss., Sept. 17.—(AP)—An escaped convict serving a life term for murder meekly surrendered to sheriff's officers near here today.

Sheriff Roy Braswell said J. C. Sims, 22, was taken into custody at his father's home 18 miles north of here. He offered no resistance.

Sims and his escape partner, Willie Jones Wingo, broke out of the Attala county jail here Thursday night.

Wingo, who was convicted of manslaughter in the death of his mother, was recaptured yesterday.

Braswell said Sims pleaded guilty last week to the axe murder of an aged Negro.

The sheriff said he would take Sims and Wingo to the state penitentiary at Parchman tomorrow.

Braswell said both Sims and Wingo are Negroes.

HOUSE DEMOCRATS MYSTIFIED AS TO WHAT TO EXPECT

Get Hurry-Back Telegram To Return To Washington Posts

BIG ISSUE POSSIBLY IN THE AIR SOME BELIEVE

By Douglas B. Cornell

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17. — (AP) — Mystified house Democrats prodded by hurry-back telegrams from their leaders prepared today for possible legislative surprises or trouble when they return Wednesday after a month's vacation.

The Republicans didn't know what was up either. They were taking no chances. They'll get out matching wires to their members too telling them to be on time.

Ordinarily the high command doesn't rally the Democratic clans by telegram unless something big is on tap.

Yet nobody seemed to have any idea what it might be. Some thought it didn't mean a thing but a way to make sure enough members showed up to do business.

The house has the job of cleaning up financial business that piled up during the layoff. There's an October 1 deadline on that.

So far as the records indicate, the main effort will be to push three big appropriation bills under the wire.

But some members are worrying a bit that something else is up. Unless there is, they can't figure out why Speaker Rayburn and Majority Leader McCormack (Mass.) sent this telegram to all Democrats:

"We think it important that you be

PROFESSOR GUILTY IN NURSE BEATING

Faces Possible Life Sentence; 'Spatting Love' Affair Revealed

COLUMBIA, S. C., Sept. 17.—(AP)—Russell B. Maxey was convicted tonight of trying to murder the nurse who scorned his love. He could be sentenced to life in prison.

The meek-looking little professor heard the verdict with the same stoic calm he has maintained all this week.

A jury that was out less than an hour found him guilty of burglary with intent to commit murder and of assault with intent to kill in the savage pistol-whipping of Ann B. Pierce.

Sentence will be passed next week. It could be as little as five years, or as much as life, despite the jury's recommendation of mercy. If the judge follows the mercy recommendation, the sentence usually is 40 years or less on a life prison sentence charge.

Miss Pierce had left the court house where Maxey's sensational trial attracted capacity crowds through its four-day run. Maxey's wife and her two sisters were there when the jury announced its decision.

Mrs. Maxey hid her face in her hands.

The defense had pictured Maxey and Miss Pierce as spatting lovers.

The state says he tried to kill the buxom nurse who posed nude for his camera. It asked a life prison term.

"Turn him loose and let him go back to the woman (Mrs. Maxey, the professor's estranged wife, who has sat by him through the trial," Defense Attorney Clint T. Graydon pleaded.

"I feel as sorry for that little woman (Mrs. Maxey) as anyone in the world," solicitor (state prosecutor) T. Pou Taylor countered, "We will do her a big favor if we get rid of that thing"—pointing at Maxey.

The arguments and judges charge took nearly four hours.

Under gruelling, sometimes heavily sarcastic cross-examination by Taylor, Maxey repeatedly said "in the

Temperatures Drop In Mid-West Cold Front

CHICAGO, Sept. 17. — (AP) — A new cold front moved in from the west today and dropped temperatures sharply in the middle west.

Strong winds up to 30 miles an hour accompanied the cool air in the Great Lakes region.

The mercury in Chicago was expected to fall 26 degrees by early Sunday after several days of balmy weather. It was 80 there today.

There was no rainfall except at a few scattered points along the Gulf coast.

The mercury climbed to 91 at Phoenix, Ariz., and temperatures were generally high in the east and southeast parts of the country.

Coldest spot in a chilly Pacific coast area was Eureka, Calif., with 56. Temperatures in the low 50's were reported in Oregon and Idaho.

City Council Awards Power Plant Contract

$3,000,000 Project Slated To Be Completed Early Next Year; Erie City Iron Works, Westinghouse Are Successful Bidders

Contracts totaling approximately $3,000,000 covering major equipment items for the expansion of the municipal power plant have been awarded by the Monroe City Council, it was announced yesterday by Mayor George Breece.

Construction work and installation will start as soon as possible and it is planned to have the new equipment in operation for the spring of 1950, the announcement stated.

Mayor Breece and Commissioner Frank Cline and Johnny Simmons expressed satisfaction that work on the expansion program could get under way in time to relieve the peak load expected next summer. Penalty clauses were inserted in the contract, and every assurance was given that the job would be completed on schedule. The boilers will be delivered immediately, it was announced, and delivery on other equipment has been promised not later than May of next year and will be installed at least by June 1, the city officials said.

Erie City Iron Works, of Erie, Pennsylvania, was awarded the contract for furnishing two 100,000 lb. boilers on the basis of price and delivery. Westinghouse Electric Corp. was the successful bidder for furnishing two surface condensers.

7500 KW turbine generators and the Bids were received by the city council, and last Tuesday, were opened and read publicly. The bids were then analyzed and evaluated by Ford, Bacon and Davis Construction Corporation, engineers on the job. The city council, in executive session yesterday, received the report of the engineers and awarded the contracts.

The first unit of 7500 KW is to be placed in service in June, 1950, and the second unit is to be installed and operating as soon as possible thereafter. This additional generating capacity, together with the new distribution system planned under the present expansion program, will eliminate the shortage of power which now exists and will provide for expected future demand. When completed, the total generating capacity of the plant will amount to 27,000 KW as compared with 13,600 KW at present,

377 ENROLLED IN FALL TERM

Northeast Junior College Closes Registration On Saturday Noon

Enrollment figures for the fall semester at Northeast Junior College climbed to 377 Saturday noon, closing time for registration in classes for college credit, announced B. S. Hamner, registrar.

Complete classification of students according to parishes, states, civilians, veterans and other groups will be given early next week, Hamner said.

Registration shows a decrease over last year's figures for the first term but college officials had anticipated a decline because of the limited number of students graduating this spring from high schools in Louisitna. A second factor which they considered would cause a drop in the number of students was the absorption of a large percentage of World War II veterans by two-year colleges throughout the nation, according to statistics.

Regular class work will start Monday and will follow the general plan of a five-day week continuing from Monday through Friday. The day's schedule runs from 8 a. m. until 3:45 p. m.

Offerings for the fall semester totaled 152 courses ranging from accounting to zoology. These were grouped in the departments of agriculture, home economics, science, mathematics, commerce, music, lan-

Small Plane Missing After Trying To Cross Atlantic

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—(AP)—A small, single-engine plane is missing tonight on a planned non-stop flight from the Azores to New York.

American and Canadian search planes fanned out over the Atlantic in a widespread hunt for the plane.

The little plane—a modified Beechcraft Bonanza—carried two Italian aviators who took off from the Azores at 5:13 a. m. (E. S. T.) yesterday. They hoped to land at New York City's La Guardia field—2,000 miles away—at dawn today.

The plane was piloted by John M. Brondello and Camillio Barioglio. They had loaded aboard sufficient fuel to keep their craft aloft through 10 a. m. today, under normal flying conditions.

The intensive aerial search began early today, some 10 hours after the missing fliers made their last radio report to the civil aeronautics administration control tower here.

At that time, the Italian airman fixed their position at about 940 miles northeast of New York and 180 miles south of Newfoundland. They were flying in a drizzling rain.

Six Coast Guard planes and at least three air force aircraft joined Canadian planes in a search of the area from which the last position report was flashed. In addition, the Coast Guard cutter Campbell sped to the scene from its base at Argentia, Newfoundland.

The fliers reportedly carried a five-man inflatable liferaft and equipment for firing distress flares in the event of an emergency "ditching" at sea. They also were believed to have an emergency portable radio transmitter aboard the plane.

The non-stop flight was planned to promote American support for a proposed "Boys' Town" in Italy.

The fliers abandoned an attempt to span the Atlantic non-stop last week when a clogged fuel line forced them to land in the Azores after their

Many Americans Burned To Death On Stricken Canadian Vessel

HAZARD STRIKES DURING EARLY HOUR OF MORNING

TORONTO, Ont., Sept. 17. — (AP) —Nearly 200 shipboard holiday-makers, most of them Americans, died in a raging night-time fire that swept flames and panic through the Canadian pleasure cruiser Noronic in a few scant minutes early today.

Awakened by screams and smoke, more than 400 others scrambled or jumped to safety through the flames that turned the 36-year-old Great Lakes Queen into a blackened sunken hulk at her dock here.

Mayor Hiram McCallum estimated the death toll a "close to 200." But an exact count was unlikely for days. Many of the survivors scattered after the tragedy. Some of the victims were believed trapped in the twisted ship that sank onto the harbor bottom in 28 feet of water.

At mid-afternoon police said 190 bodies had been recovered, but only 117 had been gathered in an emergency morgue tonight and authorities withdrew the earlier estimate.

The Canadian press—from uncoordinated reports by police, the Red Cross and hospitals—estimated that about 90 besides the 117 known dead were unaccounted for.

Canada Steamship Lines, owner of the 6,905-ton cruise ship, said 511 passengers boarded the ship at Detroit and Cleveland. Steamship officials said all the dead were passengers. The 170 crewmen all got safety after fighting the flames that apparently started near the ship's cocktail bar just before the first alarm was sounded at 2:30 a. m.

Within 15 minutes after the first alarm, flames had swept the entire ship. Survivors told of panic-stricken struggles in smoke-filled corridors

LONG, PASSMAN SPEAK IN W. M.

Freshman Senator Blasts 'Giving' Policy Of Federal Government

Senator Russell B. Long told a West Monroe audience of nearly two hundred persons yesterday that the "federal government is presently spending three times as much for the welfare of Europeans as it is for the benefit of Americans."

He said he thought the federal government "could trim one billion dollars off European aid and the Europeans would never know the difference."

"If Europeans don't have food, send it to them, but make them send us something in return.

"Our government," the youthful senator explained, "is playing a'put-and-take' game with Europe. We put and they take," he said.

Long spoke on the same program with Representative Otto Passman and Lt. Gov. William Dodd on a West Monroe parking lot beginning at 5:30 p.m.

In pointing out other ways to reduce the "wasteful spending" of the federal government, Long said he "thought we could knock off a sizeable sum from our National Defense

JUDGE'S TRIAL IS IN RECESS

Complex Shooting Episode Will Get Further Airing Monday

ATLANTA, Sept. 17. — (AP) — The judge wept. He had just admitted shooting at a former friend.

Many of the women in the courtroom found it sad, too, and brushed away tears.

Then the trial of Fulton county's Civil Court Judge Robert Carpenter on a charge of attempted murder recessed until Monday morning.

Back of the trial lies the wreckage of a home, the end of a friendship and a daughter's rejection of her mother for a stepfather.

There is another woman, Mrs. Estelle Manful, who has been described as a close friend of the judge, but who cannot be found.

And on the sidelines as vitally interested spectators are the wife and three children of Attorney John Lockwood.

The state charges that Carpenter on the night of July 27 chased Lockwood four blocks and tried to shoot him to death. Lockwood, an ex-Philadelphia lawyer, was wounded in the face and lost 70 per cent vision in one eye.

"If ever a man was justified," said the judge to jury, "I believe I was."

By his own description the judge is an indulgent father and husband, but the victim of a dark plot by Lockwood to steal "his wife, his money and his good name."

The judge declared Friday in an unsworn statement, permitted under Georgia law, that he was the victim of a double cross in love and business.

As for Lockwood, he painted a picture of himself as attorney and friend of Mrs. Carpenter who had come to rescue her from the philanderings, drinking and gambling of the judge.

And, said Lockwood, he even tried to save the judge from himself by trying to get him to "straighten out."

In any case, Lockwood placed the judge in a bedroom with a woman in New York who was "clad only in a blanket."

Then the defense placed Lockwood in Mrs. Carpenter's bedroom twice, once in a Florida tourist camp and once at her apartment.

The testimony about the apartment visit came from Carpenter's stepdaughter, Barbara. She said her mother, with "too much to drink," asked to be left alone with Lockwood—and was.

Miss Carpenter also said her home was broken up by Lockwood's association with her mother who finally could talk about nothing but what "John said."

The judge said he shot at Lockwood after his stepdaughter had pleaded with him to "do something about John Lockwood."

So far the bitterness of those involved has produced nine suits, six against the judge.

Mrs. Carpenter is suing him for divorce and Mrs. Manful for $100,000 alienation of affections among other things. Lockwood is suing for legal fees. The judge's wife also is asking for an accounting of money and stock in a hotel enterprise in which she is listed as a partner.

Dutch Girl, Egyptian Begin Try At Channel

DOVER, Eng., Sept. 17.—(AP)—A chubby little Dutch flower girl and a husky Egyptian army officer stroked their way toward France through swelling seas tonight in separate attempts to swim the English Channel.

Southwest winds kicked up trouble.

The Egyptian, Lt. Hassan Abdel Rehim, 41, made the swim from France to England last year in 17 hours, 47 minutes, some six hours over the record. He plunged into the water at the village of St. Margarets at 10:34 a.m. G. M. T. (5:34 a.m. E. S. T.) for the England-to-France effort.

Tthe Dutch girl is Tini Jonker, 18. Shakespeare Cliff near Dover at 2:48 p.m. (9:48 a.m. E. S. T.). She headed for France with a deft breast stroke, but shifting tides held her to a mile an hour pace for the first four hours.

It was Tini's first try at the channel, about 21 miles across, but she has swum that distance in the North Sea and is used to cold water.

Rehim, too, does not mind the chill of the sea. He passed through some currents as low as 58 degrees in his successful swim last year. A reading off the English coast today was 67 degrees.

In the first two and a half hours, the Egyptian covered about five miles. Then he and his escort boat were hidden by the channel haze.

PALFFY BACKED REVOLT PLANS

Maneuvered Hungarian Army To Bolster Plot To Oust Communist

BUDAPEST, Hungary, Sept. 17.—(AP)—Lt. Gen. Gyorgy Palffy testified today he had maneuvered Hungarian army affairs in an effort to further a Yugoslav-backed revolt he hoped would replace Hungary's Communist government with "a western type capitalist democracy."

The paunchy general, 40, and Lazar Brankov, 37-year-old counsellor of the Yugoslav embassy in Budapest, made public confessions before a five-judge people's court of complicity with the same alacrity displaced yesterday by the No. 1. defendant, Laszlo Rajk.

Brankov, however, said he was only "partly guilty."

Both he and the general said Alexander Rankovic, interior minister and police chief of Premier Marshal Tito's Yugoslav government, was the brains behind the plans for assassination of key Communists and a revolution as part of a move to pull the Balkans from the Soviet sphere.

Brankov charged that Allen W. Dulles, wartime head of the Office of Strategic Services (O. S. S.) in Europe during World War II, was linked with the purported plot. He said Winston Churchill, Britain's war-time prime minister, sought early in the war to promote Anglo-American influence in Yugoslavia and Hungary through spying.

Eight men are on trial for treason and espionage in the case.

Palffy, former commander of Hungary's army as chief inspector, told the court he functioned in that office as "chief of spies." He said he and his co-defendants planned to kill Hungary's top Communist officials and seize the country with Yugoslav help "by the end of May at the latest." But the plan failed with the arrest of Rajk, Communist foreign minister who was once Hungary's police boss, May 30.

The general spoke so swiftly presiding Judge Peter Janko sometimes had to slow him down. But his tone was firm.

"We had formed three special shock groups of 12 members each which were to arrest and eventually kill the three top Communist minister, headed by (deputy minister) Matyas Rakosi, on a certain night at midnight," Palffy said. "We also planned to seize important public buildings in the capital, which were to be occupied by 10 reliable army battalions to be brought to Budapest on this very night."

Palffy testified Alexander Rankovic, interior minister and police chief in Premier Marshal Tito's Yugoslav government. Promised help: "He said he would send experts and 'other things.'"

The execution of the assassination plan, he said, was assigned to Col. Bela Korondy, a former Budapest police executive and a co-defendant. He said the group planned to announce "a sort of loyalty to the Soviet Union, but emphasize from the start a friendship with Tito's Yugoslavia." He had retained a hope for the establishment of a western type democracy in Hungary, he said, ever since the Communists took over.

As army comamnder, he said, he weakened garrisons on the Yugoslav and Austrian borders to "help certain elements cross those borders undisturbed;" arranged with Yugoslavia to spy on Russia; and sabotaged the army by barring workers (Communists) and assigning many officers of the royalist prewar army to important jobs.

As a young officer he had fascist leanings, he said, and "Mussolini and his fascist system were my ideal."

Medical Group Elect Officers At Lexington

LEXINGTON, Ky., Sept. 17.—(AP)—New medical and lay representatives to the national board of directors of the American Cancer Society, were elected at the concluding business session of a regional meeting here yesterday.

Dr. James R. Young, Anderson, S. C., was named to the medical post and Fred Duran, Montgomery, Ala., to the lay job. Holdover directors are Dr. Guy Aud, Louisville, medical, and Rutherford Ellis, Atlanta, lay.

Twenty-one delegate members to the society's annual meeting to be held in New York City next month also were elected. They included:

Louisiana, Dr. Alton Ochsner and Mrs. G. E. Gillis, both of New Orleans; Mississippi, Dr. Felix J. Underwood and Mrs. E. N. Wates, both of Jackson.

Misplaced Poles Learn They Are Brother And Sister

MANSFIELD, Eng., Sept. 17.—(AP)—Anna Effimov, a 21-year-old Polish girl, was chatting with her partner at a local dance.

The conversation was typical—on the quality of the music and the size of the crowd.

Then Anna found her partner was a Pole.

"I, too, am a Pole," said Anna. "Before the war I used to live at Glebokie Vilna, Jasna."

Her partner stopped short on the floor.

"So did I," he said. "And that means I'm your brother, George."

They had not seen each other since George joined the Polish army 10 years ago.

For the past two years they had lived in Mansfield—only a block apart.

DIES OF BURNS

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 17.—(AP)—Vincent Ganci, Sr., 59, died today of burns received while he was preparing the family car for his daughter's wedding, which was to have been tomorrow.

Ganci and his 18-year-old son were burned yesterday when gasoline being poured into the auto tank was ignited by the exhaust.

The four tires on the average automobile's wheels contain about 800 feet of steel wire.

World War I Souvenir Explodes Causing Injury

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—(AP)—During the first world war Mario Biagio, a captain of Italian Alpine troops, picked up a fuse from a 75 MM. Austrian shell somewhere in northern Italy.

An engineer friend of the captain inspected the fuse, cleaned it and pronounced it harmless. Biagio kept it for a souvenir.

The brass fuse lay around the Biagio house through the years. His children and grand children played with it, sometimes taking it apart into five pieces.

During one period Biago used it as a bank. Sometimes it was used to hold down the lid of a pot on the stove.

Today the 65-year-old Biagio's mother-in-law, Mrs. Catherine Bogbiano, 81, was wrapping a package.

She needed something to weight the wrapping paper, so she used the brass fuse.

The fuse rolled off, fell to the floor and burst with a loud explosion. One fragment flew up and cut a deep gash in the wall.

Another fragment struck Mrs. Boggiano, cutting her lip, but causing no serious injury.

A bomb squad policeman said that when three moveable parts of the fuse were in the right position, three separate powder tracks were lined up so the fuse could be detonated.

When it fell to the floor, he said, it "hit just right."

Mississippi's Williams Opens Fire On Hood

MEMPHIS, Sept. 17.—(AP)—Mississippi Congressman John B. Williams today accused the pro-Truman Democrats in his state of a "shameless spoilsman's attempt to destroy the federal civil service system."

Williams said Clarence Hood is trying to force out top ranking civil service employes and replace them with his own nominees. Hood, a Meridian industrialist, is leader of the anti-States Rights group.

Williams said recent reports indicate that Chauncey Camp, manager of the veterans administration Mississippi regional office in Jackson, is among those slated to be fired because of "their failure to support President Truman."

Williams said that "under law, civil service employes are prohibited from actively supporting any candidate."

He added: "As a member of the house committee on post office and civil service, I intend to exert every effort to defeat this attempt to violate the laws which govern the federal civil service system."

Williams made the statement as he stopped off here briefly on his way to Washington.

To bake pears cut them in half lengthwise and remove the core. Put the halves in a baking dish, sprinkle them well with brown sugar and a little melted butter or margarine; add a few tablespoons of water to the bottom of the dish, and bake them, covered, at a moderate temperature until they are tender.

'Let There Be Light'

The Story of the Missing Jewels, revealed by The Morning World last Thursday, has again focused the spotlight of public opinion on Monroe's police department. To put it mildly, the public's reaction when it was learned that $4,000 in loot had been found in a police patrol car and returned to the owners two days after it had been found was not complimentary.

There has been much criticism of the department for many months. The blame cannot be laid entirely on the doorstep of the chief of police, because the department admittedly is undermanned, but it cannot be denied that proper leadership has been sorely lacking.

The stolen jewels incident, however, requires considerable explaining—and no logical explanation has been advanced so far.

The announcement yesterday by Mayor George Breece that the city council will undertake a "full and complete" investigation of the case is heartening. We have no reason to doubt that Mayor Breece and his associates will attempt to whitewash anyone in connection with bungling the job, and we look forward to an announcement of their findings.

The only reflection cast upon officers of the department was by the chief himself. He said he wanted to investigate every angle of the robbery, including his own department. He added that his investigation had revealed no evidence that any of his officers was implicated.

Chief Ward's only statement to the press was somewhat contradictory. He said he had withheld announcement of where the jewels were found because he wished to conduct a thorough investigation, including, as we stated, his own men. Then he adds that his men knew or should have known that the jewels had been found in the police car and that they were in his possession—that it wasn't his fault if they did not have that information.

The chief's "theory" as to how the jewels got into the patrol car isn't very plausible. He said (1) that they may have been left there by a prisoner being brought to headquarters, or (2) that the robber or robbers knew "we were on their heels" and tossed the jewels into a police car "right under our noses."

We assume that officers search their prisoners, and a package which contained a number of wrist watches and rings can't be easily hidden. And we doubt that a burglar would track down a police car to dispose of stolen goods. Alleys, vacant lots and tall weeds are much more accessible for that purpose.

The robbery was committed on August 30. The jewels were recovered on September 6. They were returned to the store from which they were stolen on September 8. Chief Ward said several persons suspected of complicity in the crime were under surveillance. We hope that he will have some announcement within the next day or so detailing the progress of his investigation. Better still, we hope that he will be able to announce an arrest.

We are not accusing anyone of wrongdoing, but we do contend that the actions of the heads of the department in this case should be thoroughly aired, and we reiterate that there still remains some explaining to be done, whether by the chief or others responsible for the conduct of a department which is vital to the welfare and safety of the community.

Col. Louis F. Rolleigh

The sudden and tragic death of Col. Louis F. Rolleigh was a distinct shock to his hundreds of friends as well as the community as a whole.

Colonel Rolleigh was best known for his activities in the Louisiana National Guard, but those who were not associated with him in military endeavors were fully aware of his accomplishments as a citizen, a business man and as an affable, friendly neighbor.

"Louie" Rolleigh came up from the ranks to the position he occupied when he retired several years ago. He was a stern military disciplinarian but one of the fairest commanding officers who ever wore the uniform of the United States Army. The officers and men who served under him in both world wars and during the days when he was active in the National Guard will attest to that fact. How often have we heard the expression, "We'll 'swear by Louis Rolleigh!'"

Colonel Rolleigh had a record of nearly thirty years in the armed forces of his country, and had the unique distinction of serving in the Mexican border incident in 1916, World War I and World War II. He enlisted in the National Guard in 1912 and advanced through the ranks to become a second lieutenant in World War I, and later, by gradual steps up the ladder of promotion, gained the lieutenant-colonelcy which he held when he retired.

Colonel Rolleigh's business and civic activities were marked by the same degree of efficiency which characterized his military career. He unostentatiously assumed a prominent part in the building of the community, and was devoted to his family, his church and his state and nation.

We join hundreds of his friends of the Twin Cities and the state in extending our sincere sympathy to his family. It was indeed a privilege to have known Louis Rolleigh.

Ouachita Navigation

Revival of navigation on the Ouachita is expected next year. During the war the barges were removed for use on other streams and the six and one-half foot channel has deteriorated. But the Ouachita Valley Association, including residents of both Louisiana and Arkansas, has assurance that improvements will be made so far as available funds allow.

The engineer corps plans to remove snags and then dredge out shoals and bars. The funds perhaps will not go far enough to put the river in the best shape, and certainly are not sufficient to increase the depth of the navigation channel. But re-conditioning of the six and one-half foot depth will be an important gain.

Traffic in excess of 150,000 tons per year is anticipated, according to H. W. McMillan, of Arkadelphia, who is secretary-treasurer of the Ouachita Valley Association. Barite would go by rail from Magnet Cove to the terminal at Camden, and would be taken down the river by barge. Bauxite ore from Saline county, petroleum from Union, and methanol from Sterlington, La., could be shipped by water. Sulphur, steel and food commodities would come on barges up the Ouachita.

A nine-foot channel would greatly benefit commerce in the basin. The heavy tows that ply the Mississippi could come right up the Ouachita any time in the year, if the channel were deepened. South Arkansas and north Louisiana cities would have a line of water communication with the central part of the United States. The chief of the corps of engineers has given a favorable report on the projected nine-foot channel, and congressional hearings have been held.

By initiating navigation on the six and one-half foot basis, the Ouachita Valley Association can present additional proof of the need for a deeper channel. A river that is carrying substantial loads of freight makes a more impressive argument for improvements than does one without any traffic.—Arkansas Gazette.

GOOD MONEY AFTER BAD

The financial affairs of Great Britain are rapidly approaching a crisis. Officials of Great Britain and the United States are conferring, economists are analyzing, editors are editorializing, and commentators are commenting. The recent conference in Washington produced nothing of actual value; it was simply face-saving for certain people.

Many remedies have been and are being proposed to cure Great Britain's serious illness—but very little attention is apparently being paid to the cause of the illness in the first place. The plain truth is that Great Britain can never recover from her financial plight so long as she has a socialist government. The adoption of a socialist form of government has not been the sole cause of her illness, but there is one thing sure—she can't get well so long as she has it.

Great Britain has suffered and grown steadily worse under this cancerous form of government. Her only relief has been the opiates provided by the four billion dollar loan from the United States and by Marshall aid. There comes a time under this terrible illness when even opiates will not work, when an operation is the only possible hope, and when the chance for survival even then is not too good.

And so it is with Great Britain. Her only possible chance for sound financial recovery is to get rid of socialism. The illness may be too far gone, but that is her only chance. This was the conclusion I reached after making a first-hand study of Britain's economy under a socialist government for eight weeks recently, and passing events since then only strengthen me in this opinion. The United States could double Marshall aid, and it would only prolong the agony. The United States could turn over to the socialist government of Great Britain all the gold at Fort Knox, and eventually she would find herself right back in her present predicament.

It simply makes no difference whether people believe in socialism or not, it just won't work. Socialism creates nothing; it only proposes to take over what free enterprise has created. Socialism destroys ambition, stifles initiative, and kills incentive. Socialism penalizes superior ability and subsidizes laziness. Socialism reduces everyone to a low level of mediocrity. Socialism excludes all the fundamental elements necessary for progress. Socialism violates all the fundamental laws of economics and human nature.

We need not expect the labor government of Great Britain to admit any of these things. To admit them would be to destroy the whole philosophy of government they have been preaching to the people. They therefore blame their present trouble on other causes and they propose other remedies—all along devious and desperate lines. They are planning new import quotas that discriminate against the United States; they are making new barter treaties that tie in foreign and British markets and oust American sellers; they are setting up a large British controlled trading bloc. All these things in face of the fact that at the time the British loan was made by us in 1946 they agreed to reduce trade barriers, and the fact that freer trade was one of the fundamental principles agreed upon by the recipients of Marshall aid.

Thus does socialism bite the hand of free enterprise. Which makes it all the more plain that we would be very dumb indeed if we should proceed to throw good money after bad. It is to our own self-interest, of course, to do all in our power to stabilize the world's economy, but we had just as well face the fact right now that this can never be accomplished by continuing to pour our resources down the rathole of socialism. If we really want to help the British we will quit subsidizing their socialist government.

Billy Rose:

PITCHING HORSESHOES

At the risk of barking up the wrong treason, I'd like to put a little reverse English on an old saying and get it into the record that Man is Dog's best friend. And if you'll hang around for a few paragraphs, I think I can prove my point. . . .

Some weeks back, the Associated Press reported the rescue of two boys and a dog who had lost their way in the Appalachian Mountains of Virginia. The A. P., however, didn't bother telling how the trio happened to get lost, and what happened when it did.

As I got it over the long distance phone, Blackie Caruthers, 12, his chum Lennie, 11, and a happy-faced mutt named Brownie set out one morning on a mountain-climbing expedition. The boys carried ropes, metal-tipped staves and cut-down picks — standard Alpine equipment familiar to all newsreel goers.

After uphilling and down-daleing all morning, the kids took time out to munch their cucumber sandwiches and open a can of dog food for Brownie. Then they got going again and, a few hours later as dusk began throwing its well-publicized shadows, they achieved their first objective—getting lost.

The terrain at this point was plenty tricky and, as the explorers were picking their way down the almost perpendicular walls of a ravine, one of them stepped on a loose stone. The stone gave way and, before you could holler 'Davey Crockett," the kids were tumbling from up to down in a cascade of rock and loose dirt.

This story, of course, figures to end right here, but by the stroke of luck which usually protects adventurous spirits and lightweight bodies, the mountain climbers wound up at the bottom of the gully with only a few scratches and bruises. However, there was neither hide, hair nor yelp of Brownie anywhere in evidence, and frantically the boys began to dig for him in the rubble.

The purp allowed this to go on for several minutes, watching curiously from a jutting ledge some two hundred feet above the ground, and then, tiring of the game, he began to bark.

The boys, of course, could have left Brownie on the ledge and tried to find their way home, but such a thought never occurred to them. After a council of war and woe, they settled down to wait out the night, huddling near the cliff and yelling encouragement to the pooch from time to time.

Meanwhile, searching parties were keeping the woods alive with shouts and torchlight, and when morning came helicopters and the National Guard joined the hunt. Later that afternoon, an aviator spotted the trio, signaled the location to the ground rescuers, and a few minutes later the relieved parents were embracing their boys and iodining their cuts. The dog was brought to the ground by means of a net on long ropes.

Next day, after Blackie had slept once and a half around the clock, he told his father what had happened.

"I don't understand," said Mr. Caruthers. "After the landslide, why didn't you keep going and try to reach some place where you could phone us? You must have known we'd be crazy with worry."

"At first we were going to," said Blackie, "but Lennie and I talked it over and decided we'd better stick where we were. We were afraid we might not be able to find Brownie's ledge again, and even if we could we knew we would need help to get him down, and we weren't sure enough people would go up into the hills for just a dog. We figured that if we waited a searching party would come looking for us and Brownie would be rescued, too."

"You ought to know we'd never leave Brownie," said Blackie's mother.

The kid grinned. "Even so," he said, "we didn't want Brownie to think we'd gone off and deserted him. . . ."

With which the prosecution rests its case. I'm not quibbling with the cliche about dog being man's best friend, but I submit that the above evidence indicates that the bowser had no better friend than his biped buddy, particularly if the latter is 12 or under.

And what's more, feed me, house me, bathe me—take me out for a constitutional three times a day—and I'd be man's best friend, too.

George E. Sokolsky:

THESE DAYS

DOUGLAS ON GAS

Mr. Justice Douglas of the United States supreme court is simultaneously a member of that bench and a candidate for the presidency of the United States. In 1948, Mr. Truman tried to get him to run for vice-president, but Douglas shied away from that honor on the assumption that our Harry could not be elected.

Mr. Justice Douglas expresses his philosophy in his decisions. In the case of the Standard Oil Company of California vs. The United States, the opinion of the court was written by Justice Felix Frankfurter, who, however we may quarrel with his political activities, is among our sounder jurists. If his conduct were as steady and as wise as his law, he would be among the really great men of our generation. In this particular case, Frankfurter said:

"* * * Congress * * * has not left at large for determination in each case the ultimate demands of the 'public interest,' as the English lawmakers, considering and finding inapplicable to their own situation our experience with the specific prohibition of trade practices legislatively determined to be undesirable, have recently chosen to do. * *"

This is sound law. Frankfurter, through the majority decision, maintains that the supreme court of the United States is not a legislative body and should not arrogate to itself such authority.

Mr. Justice Douglas begins his dissent not with a statement of law, but with obiter dicta on unrelated matter, issuing contestable slogans as though they were matters of fact:

"* * * As a result of the big business philosophy underlying (specified supreme court decisions) * * * big business has become bigger and bigger. Monopoly has flourished. Cartels have increased their hold on the nation. The trusts wax strong. There is less and less place for the independent.

"The full force of the anti-trust laws has not been felt on our economy. It has been deflected. Niggardly interpretations have robbed those laws of their efficacy. There are exceptions * * * but when it comes to monopolies built in gentlemanly ways—by mergers, purchases of assets or control and the like—the teeth have largely been drawn from the act. * * *"

This is a political speech, not a judicial opinion. It is a dissent from the American philosophy of life throughout its history. It is an assertion of social democracy which has been ruining Europe for nearly half a century and is reaching a climax in the British failure. He says further:

"* * * The increased concentration of industrial power in the hands of a few has changed habits of thought. A new age has been introduced. It is more and more an age of 'monopoly competition.' Monopoly competition is a regime of friendly alliances, of quick and easy accommodation of prices even without the benefit of trade associations, of what Brandeis said was euphemistically called 'cooperation.' While this is not true in all fields, it has become alarmingly apparent in many.

"The lessons Brandeis taught on the curse of bigness have largely been forgotten in high places. Size is allowed to become a menace to existing and putative competitors. * * *"

None of this is incontestable; in my opinion, none of it is true. Actually in a competitive system, such as we still have, monopoly is impossible because new products, new services, new ideas drive out the static and the obsolescent. For instance, I am writing this piece with a ball point pen that cost me $5.00. The first one I ever bought cost me $12.50. Last week I bought the same one as that which I now use for $1.00. The reduction in price is due to competition. A new product is as great a competitor as another company making an identical article.

What worries Mr. Douglas is size. How big is too big? That depends upon the commodity. It takes bigness to produce one pound of steel or one automobile. But it does not take bigness to run a newsstand or a grocery store. In this particular case, Mr. Douglas objects to filling stations having exclusive supply contracts with particular companies. Such an objection is utterly impractical for if the customer is looking for a trade-name gas, he is not going to accept any old gas.

The law is clear—but Mr. Douglas wanted to say his piece. It is a campaign piece.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

NEW YORK—The U. S. Constitution was adopted 162 years ago today. It has stood up well, despite efforts in our own time to make it meaningless. For the best modern comment on the constitution and its implications, read Felix Morley's "The Power in The People."

Have you ever noted a misuse of language in the first sentence of the preamble?

" . . . in order to form a more perfect Union . . ."

Perfect is an adjective that cannot be compared, because it is absolute. If anything is perfect, which may be doubted often, it cannot be made more perfect. The Union never had been perfect, so it could not be made more perfect. It isn't perfect yet, and therefore cannot be made more perfect.

What was meant, and what should have been written, was: " . . . in order to make the Union more nearly perfect," or " . . . in order to remedy certain imperfections in the Union," or ". . . in order to form a better Union than now exists," or any one of a dozen other formulae.

De Vere Watson, state senator from Council Bluffs, Ia., who has been a valued correspondent of mine since the days when he was president of the Order of Eagles, has been interested for many years in a little bit of Americana that few people ever heard of, and he writes me an interesting letter about it.

The Marquis de Mores tried to set up a great meat packing center in North Dakota's Badlands, and founded with high hope the town of Medora. That town is now the southern gateway to the Theodore Roosevelt National Memorial Park, of 109,000 square miles, dedicated nationally last June.

During the Roosevelt years as a rancher in the Badlands, 1883 to 1889, the marquis was his neighbor, and nobody seemed to know which was the more wealthy. Probably Mores was, as he belonged to one of the wealthiest families in France, while Theodore Roosevelt was not a sharer in the opium money of Old Captain Delano, whose fortune went to the Hyde Park Roosevelts.

Roosevelt and the marquis quarreled all the time over land and water rights and other matters. The marquis spent several millions trying to realize his dream of raising cattle out there, packing and freezing the meat on the spot, and shipping it east. The dream was ahead of its time. There was politics then, yes, but the deep freezer had not been invented.

Mores built a huge French chateau at Medora. It still stands, untenanted, and was given to the state to avoid taxes a few years ago. He built a church, canning factory and other plants, and started a stagecoach line.

Medora, named for the wife of the marquis, daughter of a wealthy French family, now has something more than 200 inhabitants.

Mores quit the Badlands after losing millions, went to Africa, and was murdered.

Roosevelt didn't do so well out there either, lost a good deal of money, gave it up and became president.

All of this, with the background that goes with it, would make a fine book for somebody like Homer Croy to write.

Perhaps one of the most interesting foreign missions now under way is that of TVA Chairman Gordon Clapp to the middle east.

He is being sent by the Palestine conciliation commission to find a formula for solving the economic headaches, which figure so prominently in the current phase of the Israeli-Arab conflict.

The Palestine commission, an adjunct of the United Nations, has been haggling over political aspects of the conflict since April, to no avail.

At suggestion of the United States, the commission suddenly put aside political problems, and decided to work on the basic economic problem, which underline much of the whole affair.

Choice of Clapp came as a surprise. He has had no diplomatic or foreign training. He's a red-headed, sharp-chinned public administrator, who left a college campus in 1933 to make a career in the TVA, which he now heads.

But Clapp has a reputation for straight thinking, with emphasis on economic rather than political affairs.

There was another reason for his choice. The middle east problem is basically one of water. With water to reopen sand-covered irrigation projects, land can be found for the 500,000 to 900,000 Arabs who have been ousted from Israel and have become a charge of the United Nations.

Clapp would like to inspect several small projects which can be quickly built without too much expense. He wants none of the grandiose 50-year plans like that for the historic Tigris-Euphrates river.

He goes to the middle east with a prepared reputation. Although TVA is thought of frequently as a regional agency in this country, it has attracted international attention. It's name is magic in the middle east, because it is connected with water.

Clapp has other problems beside dam surveying. He has to try to restore communications between Israel and the rest of the area. Furthermore, there is the problem of restoring the flow of oil on the pipeline that runs from Iraq to Haifa, in Israel. The refinery is idle because the Arabs will not permit the flow of oil, and both sides lose royalties.

A Philadelphia scientist is making such promising progress with an apparatus which may take the place of the human heart and artifically prolong life that the federal government is giving him a research grant to perfect it.

The scientist is Dr. John H. Gibbons, Jr., of Jefferson Medical College and the grant amounts to $26,827.

This fact comes to light with the announcement of $8,614,437 in grants by the National Heart Institute, a government foundation for research, established in 1948 by congress. It illustrates the major hand which government is playing in medical research.

No one is denouncing the government's role in research as "socialized medicine." A group of eminent physicians evaluates the research projects and decides where the money is to be allocated. Their recommendations are handed on to the U. S. public health service which in turn gives them to Federal Security Administrator Oscar Ewing to announce.

Dr. Gibbon's research into an "artificial heart," bizarre though it sounds, has won the approval of a sober group of scientists. It is described in the conservative language of science "as apparatus for the artificial maintenance of life during the temporary cessation of blood flow through the heart and lungs."

It has tremendous possibilities.

Development of a pump outside the human body which could take the place of the human heart has long been a dream of physicians. This is the first practical approach to fulfillment. If successful, it would revolutionize surgery by making the heart completely accessible for repairs. It could also be used to have persons suffering from severe shock or heart disease by temporarily replacing an overworked heart. It might even be be used to keep a patient alive indefinitely as the "iron lung" does for victims of pulmonary muscle paralysis.

Life with a heart that has stopped beating seems incredible, but medical science is making spectacular progress.

Actually, the eight million dollars the government is spending on heart disease research and the two million dollars in cancer research grants re-

WHAT OTHERS SAY

EDITORS' ROUNDTABLE

EUROPEAN UNION

Majority editorial opinion questions whether the new council of Europe will achieve, in the foreseeable future, any effective degree of European political or economic union. But a very large minority of editors consider it quite possible that economic pressures and the threat of Russian imperialism may result in concrete beginnings of European union before the end of the Marshall plan in 1952.

Milwaukee (Wis.) Journal (Ind.): "If the vision shown by the (Council of Europe) Assembly at Strasbourg is now translated into action by the respective governments, there is real hope for the future of that continent. The assembly voted overwhelmingly for political and economic union of Britain, France, The Netherlands, Belgium, Ireland, Italy, Sweden, Norway, Denmark, Luxembourg, Greece and Turkey. . . . Hitler forced a unity of slavery on Europe. . . . Are not the people of Europe, and their leaders, equal to the task of finding a unity in peace and freedom?"

El Paso (Texas) Herald-Post (Ind.): "Countries in the European Assembly agreed that they must co-operate to escape economic disaster. But they are split on how to go about it. Conservative members of Britain's delegation lead a coalition urging greater freedom from government regulation in intra-European trade. But British Socialists oppose any program that might seem critical of their Labor government's planned economy, which controls Britain's trade."

New York Times (Ind.-Dem.): "The assembly is turning out to be much more like a parliament than its sponsors expected. Not only does it tend to divide on party more than national lines, so that British Conservatives and Liberals, for instance, vote oftener with delegates of like mind from other countries than with British Laborites. Also it is moving to stay in continuous session through committees and subcommittees. . . . These delegates are men trying to catch up with history and convinced that the time is short."

St. Louis (Mo.) Post-Dispatch (Ind.-Dem.): "The decision faced by the various national governments is not an easy one. Recovery from the war has been uneven. . . . The pattern of centuries of nationalistic thinking is asserting itself. . . . The British feel that they may make a better go of things outside a federation than in one. . . . And some continental politicians seem to feel that federation actually would mean adding their countries to the British family of nations. These thought patterns will not be easily overcome. Sensational results are hardly indicated."

Salt Lake City (Utah) Telegram (Ind.): "There is not too much time left. American aid likely will not continue more than two or three years longer. If . . . Europe continues divided by national rivalries and economic conflicts . . . then disaster not only for Europe but for America is probable. . . . Sometimes it takes the hot breath of crisis to force needed reforms. . . . Maybe this economic crisis in Europe, plus the menace of Russian communism, will yet save the day for democratic freedom."

South Bend (Ind.) Tribune (Ind.-Rep.): "Evidently the Russian threat is the major factor. . . . It cannot be safely deduced, however, that even the 'Russian barbarism' threat will make European federation a reality at last. . . . The question is whether the . . . threat can nullify long standing . . . nationalistic conditions. Of course, if extreme concessions to nationalism are made the federation system would be dangerously weak and, after all, not promising from the viewpoint of protection against 'Russian barbarism.'"

Washington, (D. C.) Star (Ind.): "Although it would be naive to expect the early formation of a full-fledged economic union, events themselves are driving western Europe steadily toward integration, and there is therefore reason to hope that a measure of it will be in effect at the close of the Marshall plan. . . . Together with the revival of East-West trade and with other measures . . . it is indispensable to long-term continental stability."

New York Herald Tribune (Ind.-Rep.): "The assembly's action on political unity seems more decisive than its approach toward economic unity, but the establishment of a workable political authority could be solidified later by trade and currency agreements. . . . The task of evolving plans for a centralized political authority has been given to the assembly's general affairs committee and a report is called for in eight months' time. . . . The meeting (of the council assembly) has symbolized the need which Europeans feel of a better way of doing busines among themselves."

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 17.—The grandmother of Charlie Chaplin, Jr., says he's now in New York, anonymously, but with papa's blessings and financial aid, to try for a stage career . . . Altar-bound: Actress Martha Hyer and Director Ray Stahl . . . Wotzis about Arline Judge retaining a Bridgeport, Connecticut attorney to prepare a divorce suit against her current spouse, George Ross? . . . I hear that Roy Rogers, understandably disturbed by the tremendous rise of Bill "Hopalong Cassidy" Boyd's popularity via television, is working on a series of video pictures which will be offered for release next spring.

Dr. Peter Lindstrom (Ingrid Bergman's "left-behind" husband) is seriously considering an offer which would take him to Switzerland as permanent head of a hospital there . . . Chilled: That much-publicized palship between Frank Sinatra and Gene Kelly . . . The latter, by the way, will instruct a dancing class, each Friday night, at U. C. L. A. this semester . . . Looks like the Richard Greenes have made a wreck of reconciliation . . . Actor MacDonald Carey will submit to an operation on his back, made necessary by injuries received in a fight scene for a recent picture.

Harold Lloyd, Jr., now 18, will make his major screen debut in a top role of the RKO film, "A Dog's Life." . . . On the stork list: Radio Magnate William Paley and his wife, the former Babs Mortimer . . . Paramount, with three writers already on the job, is trying to break down Bing Crosby's aversion to a picture based on his own life story.

PREVIEW NIGHTS: Pic of a lacklustre week: M. G. M.'s "The Doctor and the Girl" (Glenn Ford-Charles Coburn-Gloria de Haven-Janet Leigh). A well-played problem drama, exceedingly questionable in theme, that will undoubtedly do more business, thanks to exploitation possibilities, than its merits. Better leave the kids at home . . . FAIR: Paramount's "The Heiress" (Olivia de Havilland-Montgomery Clift-Ralph Richardson). A technically excellent, but far from exciting, screen version of the Henry James novel, "Washington Square." Most audiences will be disappointed. . . . Warner Brothers' "Under Capricorn" (Ingrid Bergman-Joseph Cotten-Michael Wilding). Long on cast and short on entertainment value . . . Republic's "The Kid From Cleveland" (George Brent-Lynn Bari-Rusty Tamblyn-The Cleveland Indians). A baseball yarn that could have been a hit without so many errors in the story department . . . BEST PERFORMANCE: Charles Coburn in "The Doctor and the Girl."

According to insiders, the last hope of Producer Walter Wanger, in his current campaign to raise needed money for the picture he hopes to make, in Italy, with Greta Garbo and James Mason, is a deal with Howard Hughes. And at this writing, Hughes seems to be regarding such a proposition with a jaundiced eye. His attitude, it seems to me, is understandable considering his experience with another made-in-Italy picture—the one directed by Rossellini and starring Ingrid Bergman. Hughes put up the money for that one—and got, in return, enough troubles to drive a less phlegmatic financier into a state of nervous collapse. It's small wonder if he's now leery of million-dollar investments over which he can exercise little personal control and actresses with unpredictable temperaments.

Speaking of temperament, Jennifer Jones, who played hide-and-seek with David O. Selznick all over Europe before she agreed to become his bride, now seems to be trying the same tactic on the Warner Brothers, for whom she's scheduled to make a picture. Although studio bosses have been trying to reach her by trans-Atlantic phone to work out last minute details, Jennifer (said to be having marital troubles already) reportedly refuses to accept their calls. Well, fun is fun, but if that report is true, I think Miss Jones is carrying her childish little game too far. If I were the Warner Brothers, I'd count her out—quick.

I note that the tickets printed for Frank Sinatra's radio broadcasts, this season, specifically state that persons under 18 years of age will not be admitted to the studio audience. What irony! It was precisely those "persons under 18 years of age" who made Sinatra's success possible. Without them, he's still, in all probability, be a small-time crooner with an orchestra. I can understand the difficulties occasioned by their noisy enthusiasm, but surely Sinatra and the radio station executives could work out some system of control that would be effective, if only they'd tackle the job. Certainly a formal ban against the kids, in his case, seems like poor payment for an enormous debt.

Angelo Patri:

Our Children

THE YOUNG TEACHER

Teachers who are just starting in their profession are likely to give themselves trouble by making a handful of avoidable mistakes. Somebody experienced in classroom work should give such teachers a hint but the kind of hints young teachers need are rarely given in the training school.

To begin with: Don't call the roll the first thing, or ask each child to stand and say his name out loud. Wait. Just say, "I am Miss Marie," and start there and then by giving as many pupils a job as possible. Get them busy.

Don't make rules. Don't set penalties. If you say something like, "The very next child who whispers in this room is going to the principal's office," inevitably the next child will be some innocent inoffensive sensitive child, whom you know should not be sent to the principal. But you said it, and there you are, in hot water.

Deal with each situation as it comes up. Deal with individuals. Say as little as possible, keep the class at work, real work, interesting work, and tell them that if they work hard and get through this big job of lessons before ten minutes to dismissal, you will tell them a story. And have that story on the end of your tongue and well set in your heart, for it is what is going to win and hold that class to you.

Make the lessons short and be sure to correct each child's work and say an encouraging word about it.

Collect every piece of paper you give out. That is important to the standard of work and very important in discipline. The reasons will soon become clear.

Never refuse a child permission to leave the room. If too many are going, just realize that they are not interested in what is going on and it is your cue to change the topic and the attitude.

Never criticise a child's mother adversely. Make no complaints to a mother about her child. She knows all about him, just how lazy, how careless, how provoking to wrath he can be, and she loves him better than her own eyes. Find something good to say about him if it is only how fine his eyes are when they light up with joy at the sound of the recess bell. She knows his faults and she hopes you will help. Do just that.

Like the children you teach. If you cannot like them the best thing to do is to enter another profession for nobody can teach children without liking them a great deal.

And don't talk about the faults of the children to anybody. That is your professional secret. Keep it closely. That makes the children trust you and that is of the utmost importance to your success.

Let your child judge his character by a simple test which Dr. Patri has devised. It is given in leaflet P-13, "A Self Measuring Chart." To obtain a copy, send 5 cents in coin and a tsamped self-addressed envelope to him, co this paper, P. O. Box 99, Station G, New York 19, N. Y.

MACKENZIE'S COLUMN

(Associated Press Foreign Affairs Analyst)

Coincident with the Anglo-American conference in Washington to devise ways of relieving Britain's economic crisis, along comes the Population Reference Bureau, a private research agency in the capital, and tosses this bomb-shell:

Britain has 15,000,000 too many people to support. No other country in the world is so crowded as the United Kingdom, with the exception of Japan. John Bull's crisis will continue so long as he tries to support so many folk on so few acres. Bureau experts advocate spreading this excess population over the commonwealth.

And what's the answer to this startling estimate of the situation? Well, it's true that the United Kingdom has an area of only 94,279 square miles on which to support a population of 50,000,000. Nine of America's 48 states are bigger than the United Kingdom.

England is a sweet country with its lovely flower-gardens and green lawns and endless miles of hedges. However, the fact remains that she can't begin to provide food for her big population and has to import some 60 per cent of her foodstuffs. This was harshly impressed on her in the two world wars when she ran short of rations because of enemy blockades.

Quite likely that had something to do with causing a heavy emigration of Britons to the dominions right after the late war. However, part of the exodus was due to the fact that British soldiers had seen fresh opportunities while they were overseas, and were moved by the spirit of adventure to emigrate.

During 1946-47 there was a total of 291,000 British emigrants who sought new homes. From January to September of 1948 (the latest figure available) there were 116,000 more.

No wthat's a lot of people to leave a small country, and it impelled Winston Churchill on August 16, 1947, to appeal to his countrymen in a broadcast not to go away. He said he was shocked to learn of the projected heavy voluntary emigration of Britons at a time when the country needed labor.

"I say to them," he begged, "stay here and fight it out. Do not desert the old land. This Socialist attempt to conscript labor is only a passing phase. Britain will rise again in all her strength and freedom."

The British government has studied this question of emigration, and while it isn't blocking departure from the home land, all the indications are that it doesn't believe heavy emigration is for the good of the country. It's position was summed up in a recent royal commission report which said that the government didn't hold anything in the way of emigration but should there be a big migration of skilled labor the government would have to consider placing restrictions on it.

The government takes the position that Britain's economic troubles can't be solved by heavy migration. It holds that there is no unemployment but that there is useful work for all. It apparently feels that emigration of skilled labor would cause a heavy drop in productive power and thereby hamper economic recovery.

So there you have the explanation of why Britain doesn't want to get rid of great numbers of her people—at least not at this juncture.

William E. Gilroy, D. D.:

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Dangers constantly beset the people of Israel, at times surrounded by hostile tribes, and later imperilled as their little land lay between the great empires of the ancient world, striving for conquest and mastery—Egypt on the south, and always some great power on the north, east, and west, Assyria, Babylonia, Syria, Persia, Greece, or Rome, which ever it might be.

That the dangers of this situation were real was evidenced in the successive and terrible tragedies that befell the people. Not only did they suffer invasion, destruction, and exile, but other sufferings and persecutions were incredible. When Grecian conquerors sought to Hellenize and corrupt the worship of the Temple, 800 protesting Pharisees, then the party defending the purity of religion, were crucified in one day, and on another occasion 6,000 worshippers were put to the sword in the very precincts of the Temple.

That, in spite of all the tragedies of the ages in that little land, there should have been survival, until now, in the 20th century, the Jews are again seeking restoration in their homeland, is the miracle of the ages.

But even greater is the miracle that out of that little land of sorrow and tragedy should have come the richness and sweetness of a religion, with its uppermost note of triumph and joy.

The late Dr. George A. Gordon, famous minister of the Old South Church, in Boston, once remarked that it was the quality of all true and great prophecy that it bursts into song. There are passages in the great prophecies, such as that of Isaiah, that fairly sing in their praises of righteousness and peace, but the Psalms were the great outpouring of prophecy in song.

Here in the Psalms is the personal joy in religion, the joy manifest in the Christians of Jewish heritage, Paul and Silas, singing in the darkness of an inner prison, with their feet fast in the stocks. (Acts 16).

What was the source and nature of this joy in religion?

It was, first of all, a profound confidence in God. A modern poet has said, "It fortifies my soul to know, that though I perish, truth is so." This is a modern version of that unshaken faith in God that sustained Hebrew saints. It was the source of personal serenity and joy in religion.

Along with this was the sense of community. It found its strength in the sense of God's choice and call, and one's part in that chosen community. Its highest expression is in the passionate declaration of that patriotic citizen of Zion, in Isaiah 62: "For Zion's sake will I not hold my peace, and for Jerusalem's sake will I not rest, until the righteousness thereof go forth as brightness, and the salvation thereof as a lamp that burneth."

Who could measure the joy and strength of a modern democracy, if its every citizen had a similar passion for the commonweal, and for all the high idealism that democracy professes?

The Nation Today

JAMES MARLOW

By Rowland Evans, Jr.

(For James Marlow)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17.—(AP)—Here's the A, B, C on how the National Service Life Insurance (N. S. L. I.) dividend will be split up among World War II veterans.

About 16,000,000 veterans who paid N. S. L. I. premiums for at least three months will split the $2,800,000,000 dividend pot. Biggest possible payment is $528.

Figure out your share this way if you have one coming:

Take the number of months your policy was in force between the date you first signed up for your insurance and the same date in 1948. Call that number "A."

Next step: Take the amount of insurance you have (or had) in thousands of dollars. If you had $10,000, take 10. Call that "B."

Last step: If your "insurance age" was 40 or less when you first got your N. S. L. I. your dividend rate is 55 cents. Call that "C."

"Insurance age" means your age at nearest birthday. If you were 40 years and five months when you took out your insurance, your insurance age is 40, because your nearest birthday was five months back rather than seven ahead.

If instead of one policy you had two or more, either of different amounts or taken out at different times, treat each one separately by the A, B, C formula. Same is true if you have had only one policy but have changed its amount. Treat each amount as a separate policy.

Here are the dividend rates for veterans whose insurance age was more than 40:

Age 41, 52 cents; 42, 49 cents; 43, 46 cents; 44, 43 cents; 45, 40 cents; 46, 37 cents; 47, 34 cents; 48, 31 cents; 49, 28 cents; 50, 25 cents; 51, 24 cents; 52, 23 cents; 53 22 cents; 54, 21 cents; 55 or more, 20 cents.

First checks are supposed to go out around the first of 1950. Only veterans who apply will get a dividend. So far almost 10,000,000 have done so. Application blanks were sent to post offices, Veterans Administration (VA) offices and other points on August 29.

Survivors of deceased veterans will be notified by the VA if they rate a dividend.

This "special dividend" is the first ever paid on N. S. L. I. A second special dividend will be paid, probably in 1951, to bring up to date all policies kept in force after 1948.

After that dividends will be paid annually as they are earned. Some years some policies may not earn a dividend.

Here's the reason for the large special dividend coming up:

N. S. L. I. premiums are based on a "mortality table"which anticipates a death rate far in excess of the rate at which World War II veterans have been dying.

That table, called the American experience table, is prescribed by the N. S. L. I. act.

Premiums paid into the N. S. L. I. fund have amounted to more than the amount needed to pay claims. This surplus, plus 3 per cent interest, makes up the dividend.

The number of death casualties due to war itself has nothing to do with the surplus. Insurance paid to survivors of war dead comes from special appropriations, not from the N. S. L. I. fund. The fund pays claims only when death is not traceable to the extra hazards of military service.

The only veterans who cannot use the A, B, C formula are the few who have surrendered their policies for smaller amounts of paid-up insurance. Their dividends will be handled separately by the VA.

For years medical research has worked under the handicap of inadequate funds. It has taken real idealism for many men to enter research work full-time for the pecuniary rewards were so much less than for private practice.

Vital projects have been delayed while philanthropic contributions have been sought.

It took the work of two men of opposite political views to persuade congress that the government ought to provide funds to put medical research into high gear. Sen. Robert A. Taft (Rep.-Ohio) and Sen. Claude Pepper (Dem.-Fla.) Senators Lister Hill (Dem.-Ala.), J. William Fulbright (Dem.-Ark.), and Elbert D. Thomas (Dem.-Utah) also deserve credit for helping to persuade congress to pass the legislation.

Senator Taft got bills for cancer and heart research through the Republican 80th congress after Pepper and his colleagues had failed in previous Democratic-controlled congresses. Still pending is a Taft bill for federal aid for dental research. Also pending are warmly endorsed bills for aid in spastic paralysis and paraplegic (spinal column) paralysis research.

Major Otto R. Conner, Jr., son of O. R. Conner, Monroe, has reported to Brooke army medical center, Fort Sam Houston, Tex., for duty.

Coming from Maxwell air force base, he has been assigned to Brooke General Hospital, where he will serve as assistant registrar.

He was accompanied to San Antonio by Mrs. Conner and their daughter, Valerie, and are now at home at 652 Funston Place.

WITH THE EIGHTH ARMY IN SAPPORO, Japan—Private Jimmy L. Marsh, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Marsh of Sandhiemer, La., is assigned to the famed 31st infantry regiment of the 7th infantry division and stationed at Camp Crawford, Hokkaide, Japan.

Private Marsh is assigned to company "K" 31st Inf. Regt. or the "American Foreign Legion" as it is sometimes called.

Private Marsh, entered the army on June 28, 1948 at Sandheimer, La. His first overseas assignment was to company "K", 31st infantry regiment, in Japan.

Edison's Grandson Is Killed In Alps Fall

VIENNA, Austria, Sept. 17.—(AP)—Michael Edison Sloane, 18-year-old grandson of Thomas A. Edison, fell to his death in the Austrian Alps Sunday.

British authorities announced he disappeared from a tourist party on a conducted visit to Gross Glockner, Austria's highest peak, and searchers found the body yesterday at the foot of the Paster-Zengletscher glacier.

The region is in the British occupation zone. Sloane had been staying at Zell Am Zee, in the U. S. zone.

The youth was the son of John E. Sloane and nephew of Charles Edison, former governor of New Jersey. His home in Llewellyn Park, West Orange, N. J.

A student of archaeology and art, he had made several previous visits to Europe.

He was the youngest grandson of the great inventor. His mother, the former Madeleine Edison, is the daughter of Thomas A. Edison by Edison's second wife, Mrs. Mina Miller Edison. His mother said she had feared "something like this would happen."

When the motor coach was ready to leave the peak Sunday, he could not be found. The coach waited two hours and turned to Zell Am Zee.

Authorities said he had fallen over a inulagukh.

The body was taken to Heiligenblut.

American authorities are investigating.

Ministers Agree On Far East Questions

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17.—(AP)—The big three western foreign ministers reported today after a final meeting that they were "in accord" on far eastern questions.

Secretary of State Acheson, British Foreign Secretary Bevin and French Foreign Minister Schuman met for an hour and a half at the state department to discuss far eastern matters.

A communique issued after their talks said "the ministers found that their views on existing situations and the methods by which they might be met were in accord."

There was no elaboration.

Bevin remained for a brief talk with Acheson after Schumann departed.

Reporters asked Schuman whether he was optimistic about the situation in troubled French Indo-China. He replied that "I am always optimistic."

Little Theatre Curtain Call

Saturday evening was the occasion for much fun and festivity when more than one hundred and twenty-five of the 1949-50 membership got together at a friendly "Get Acquainted Dinner." Those members who were unable to attend missed a hilarious "kick off" for this year's work in community theatre. The guys and gals who were there got a refreshing insight into the purpose and objective of socialized dramatics.

Glancing about at all the old familiar faces of the past eighteen years of the organization and seeing the new ones added, reminded one of all the trials, tribulations and triumphs that have marched down through the years with Little Theatre work. We heard folks recalling early day players who included such well known personalities as Blanche Oliver, Frank Breese, Shelby Cage, Ben Dawkins, Jr. Fred Fudickar, Brunswig Sholars, Mary Louise O'Donnell, Dan Armand Breard, Elliott Thompson, Elizabeth Biedenharn, Eleona Brinsmade, Sue Hefley, Cramer Haas, Vivian Harper, Gilbert Faulk, Durwood Griffin, Harold Riggs, Mrs. George Snellings, Eula Davenport, K. Ann Dodge and many other well known Monroyans.

The membership campaign for Little Theatre this season will officially close on Wednesday, September 21. Only a few tickets remain for those interested in joining. Those interested in securing a membership are instructed to call Emmy-Lou Biedenharn, 690 or Sue Williams, 4800.

SKETCH NOTES: Mrs. Laura Causey Szabo who is starting her first year as commerce instructor with the N. J. C. faculty is an interesting recruit for Little Theatre. A vivacious lady with brown eyes and wavy hair, we hope to see more of her and perhaps on stage . . . Johnny Mullins, who turned in an excellent performance with Little Theatre last year in the comedy hit, "Dear Ruth," is a fellowship student down at L. S. U. and is working on his masters degree in speech. His recent bride, Edith, who was also a speech major at L. S. U. is working with radio station WJBO in Baton Rouge . . . The well known and likeable Buddy Blair, the other half of the team of Lockhart and Blair, arrived back in Monroe Saturday. He has been managing the Vicksburg baseball team of the Southeastern League. Buddy first won prominence as an athlete down at L. S. U. where he was named one of their most outstanding athletes. He went from there to the Philadelphia Athletics as third baseman. The latest interesting thing to happen to Buddy is this story: Although he is an infield man and never been a pitcher, he pitched the last game of the series against Jackson and edged them out for a spot in the playoff.

Fruit Growers' Plant Destroyed In Big Fire

CASHMERE, Wash., Sept. 17.—(AP)—A fast-spreading fire destroyed the huge plant of the Cashmere Fruit Growers Union here today, with loss estimated at nearly $1,000,000 in buildings, equipment and fruit.

The blaze flared suddenly from an unexplained cause at 4 a.m. just as a watchman was making his rounds. It started in the middle of the warehouse and spread both ways down the block-long structure, fed by dry material for fruit boxes and oiled packing paper.

Mrs. Jean Barnes, secretary-treasurer, estimated loss to buildings and equipment at $750,000. Also lost were 75,000 boxes of D'Anjou pears and 35 carloads of Bartlett pears for canneries, with total value placed at about $200,00. Insurance covered both plant and fruit.

Family To Attempt 13-Mile Swim To L. I.

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—(AP)—A family group plans to go to Coney Island tomorrow—swimming there.

John Mercer, 53, of (1352 Bay street) Fall River, Mass., said today he, two sons and three daughters, would start the 13-mile swim before dawn tomorrow.

They'll dive into the East River from a lower Manhattan pier, and then will have to swim through the inner and outer harbor and into the ocean to reach the amusement center on a peninsula jutting from Brooklyn.

Purpose of the swim, Mercer said, was to prepare himself and two of the children for an attempt next year to swim the English Channel.

Mercer estimated it would take six hours to swim to the amusement center. It takes an hour by subway from mid-Manhattan.

Shanghai Theater Will Not Show U. S. Picture

SHANGHAI, Sept. 17.—(AP)—The management of the small Paris theater announced today it had withdrawn screening of the Tyrone Power film "Crash Dive" on demand of the theater staff.

This apparently was the first fruit of a current press campaign against American movies in this Communist metropolis.

Pro-Communist papers for several days have charged that American pictures were "poisonous" imperialistic and military propaganda.

However, the official Communist paper "Liberation Daily" has not joined in tht editorial campaign and is still accepting advertising for American films. Those available in Shanghai are mostly very old.

MIHAI IN SWEDEN

STOCKHOLM, Sept. 17.—(AP)—Ex-King Mihai of Romania and his wife, the former Princess Anne of Bourbon Parma, arrived in Sweden today accompanied by Prince Axel of Denmark.

They are to take part in royal moose hunt arranged for 91-year-old Kign Gustaf of Sweden next week.

MINOR WORKING PERMIT EASIER

Increase Number Of Persons Authorized To Issue Permits

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 16.—(AP)—The Louisiana department of labor announced today arrangements have been made whereby permits allowing minors to work can be issued in towns throughout the state other than parish seats.

The announcement was made by Mrs. Josie Ames, director of the department's division of women and children, who warned that violation of the child labor law subjects both employer and the child's parents to fines and imprisonment.

Mrs. Ames pointed out that minors under 16 years cannot work at all during school hours and on school days cannot work more than three hours per day. On other days, she said, they cannot work more than eight hours and at no time can they work after 7 p. m.

She said minors 16 to 18 years of age may work in acceptable jobs not more than 44 hours per week, eight hours per day. They cannot work before 6 a. m., she said. Girls cannot work after 6 p. m. and boys cannot work after 10 p. m.

Employers cannot hire any minor under 18 until after obtaining an employment certificate, she said.

Heretofore these have been obtainable only at parish seats she said, but under the new arrangement may be obtained at a large number of towns throughout the state.

Persons authorized to issue the certificates and the places of issuance include:

Caddo parish—R. H. White, school superintendent, Shreveport; W. D. Still, principal, Rodessa School, Rodessa; W. F. Bozeman, principal, Oil City School, Oil City; C. L. Mackey, principal, Vivian High School, Vivian; L. E. Walker, principal, Mooringsport School, Mooringsport.

Calcasieu parish—H. A. Norton, superintendent, Lake Charles; B. S. Walker, principal, Sulphur High School, Sulphur; H. S. Semple, principal, Vinton High School, Vinton; W. E. Pate, principal, DeQuincy High School, Dequincy; J. J. Verret, principal, LeGrange High School, LeGrange; J. M. Letard, principal, Iowa High School, Iowa.

East Baton Rouge parish—Dr. Clark Barrow, superintendent, Baton Rouge.

Ouachita—G. S. Manning, superintendent, Monroe.

PROFESSOR GUILTY

eyes of God we (he and Miss Pierce) were living as man and wife."

And he maintained, he was "ready and willing to marry her" right up until August 3 when, the state charges, he beat her head almost to a pulp with a pistol.

Describing what he said was his fight with Miss Pierce, Maxey said it started when "she slapped my face."

"You slapped her back?" Taylor questioned.

"No, I slapped her face," Maxey replied to courtroom titters.

Taylor asked him why he didn't use a knife he had said was in his pocket.

"I didn't want to hurt her," was the bland answer.

Previously, a doctor testified he took 72 stitches in Miss Pierce's face, and that about that many were taken in her scalp, after the pistol whipping she suffered.

Taylor tried hard to get more details but Maxey said after Miss Pierce "hit me with the telephone I don't clearly recollect what happened in detail."

Taylor referred to a statement by Sheriff T. Alex Heise that he had seen Maxey trying to wash blood out of his underwear at the jail.

"How did your underwear get bloody?" Taylor asked. "You weren't bleeding down there, were you?"

"I don't know," Maxey said. He reminded Taylor he had previously testified Miss Pierce "gouged" him in the groin with her knee.

Maxey declared Miss Pierce "nearly got the best of the fight" until he started using his pistol for a club. He said he was partly unconscious when the sheriff's officers reached the house.

"Before God, I deny" saying his intention was to kill Miss Pierce, Maxey asserted.

The case, trial of which has been going on since Wednesday, seemed headed for a jury sometime late today. Attorneys' arguments started after the mid-day recess.

Attorney C. T. Graydon has pegged his defense of Maxey on the theory his client could not be guilty of burglary.

Miss Pierce gave him a key to her house and never forbade him the premises, Maxey has testified. Therefore, Graydon maintained, the question of burglary or illegal entry is not involved.

announcement that the loot had been recovered. He also refused at that time to reveal where the jewels had been found, merely stating that he was investigating the robbery.

The chief issued a statement last Thursday in which he stated that he withheld the information concerning discovery of the jewels so that he could make a "thorough investigation," which included members of his own department.

Results of his investigation have not been announced by the chief.

COAL INDUSTRY

with mediation officials in Washington Monday to discuss the pension and insurance war which has snagged contract negotiations. This brightened at least for the moment hopes for a peaceful settlement.

The union has insisted on industry's acceptance of a presidential boards' insurance-pension peace recommendations before resumption of bargaining. Industry objects to financing the benefit programs and wants to negotiate without committing itself. The presidential strike truce expires September 25.

The union accepted the mediation invite and Steel is expected to be on hand also. Inland Steel in Chicago said it will attend but "the only issue we will discuss is how to return the steel dispute to bargaining at company levels."

The threatened walkout in coal is an indirect result of the industry-union contract lapse which idled the diggers earlier this year.

At that time Lewis agreed to allow his men to continue producing coal pending settlement of a wrangle over unspecified demands by the union.

As a result, some coal firms refused to continue paying the ten-cents-a-ton royalty into the U. M. W.'s welfare fund because of the contract termination. This, the trustees of the fund said, caused a serious depletion in its finances.

The trustees—headed by Lewis himself—voted yesterday to suspend pensions and other fund-financed benefits.

First reaction to the miners' double complaint occurred in Utah and Wyoming with the walkout of 8,000 diggers. They complained of a lack of contract.

From Indiana came word that the state's 8,500 miners will not report to the pits Monday. A U. M. W. official who made the statement refused to be named.

Western diggers are not affected by the three-day work week east of the Mississippi which Lewis ordered apparently to reduce coal stockpiles and better his hand at the bargaining table.

In Pennsylvania's rich bituminous fields, three U. M. W. locals in the Johnstown area voted to remain out of the mines "until a contract is signed or the welfare fund payments are resumed." A fourth local agreed unofficially on the same step. The four units have a membership of 2,700.

U. M. W. diggers at the U. S. Steel Corporation's Robena mine, largest in the world, were reported agreed on similar action. The mine is located south of Pittsburgh.

Eastern Pennsylvania Anthracite Miners whose welfare fund is separate from the soft coal industry fund indicated they too will remain above ground next week. Activities of their fund have been suspended also but it will not be effective until September 30.

Mart F. Brennan, president of U. M. W. District 7 in the Hazleton area, said there is a "growing sentiment" among the hard coal miners that they "will not work until the welfare fund question is settled."

Some miners, said Brennan, are expressing a new slogan:

"No pension fund, no work."

One stoppage at a small mine in the eastern Pennsylvania fields already was underway.

In Pittsburgh, John P. Busarello, president of U. M. W. District 5, referred questioners to the suspension of the welfare fund payments. He said he was unable to predict the reaction to the order by the miners in this heart of the soft coal fields.

Michael Honus, secretary-treasurer of District 4 in Uni, Pa., made a similar reply.

Union officials were unanimous and insistent that Lewis was taking no part in the rapidly growing decision among the miners to idle the pits.

Spokesmen for the mine operators were even less communicative than union officials. Most would say only that work would be available for the men on Monday if they want it.

The action of Lewis' miners may serve to weaken the bargaining hand of his former co-unionist, the Steelworkers' Philip Murray.

While steel industry officials admit effects of a coal stoppage will not be felt immediately, long range work scheduling by the big producers will have to take into consideration the possibility of an eventual coal dearth.

Murray will sit down with the others in the steel mediation conference without the assurance that full production will be either a necessity or a possibility in coming months.

One major southern producer said union officials had informed general managers of at least some mines in that area that the men will work Monday.

This operator said, "I'll be very much surprised if the mines are down Monday."

On the other hand, one big anthracite company had been advised privately that its men won't report for work next week.

The criss-cross currents through the coal fields, usually sensitive to the unpublicized orders of the United Mine Workers' chief, were allowed to develop without any open sign from Lewis.

He planned to relax for the week-end and told reporters at Washington to do likewise.

Some industry representatives said a showdown now might be a healthy thing. There are many operators who would like to resume the five-day week, as orders pick up seasonally. A short strike might speed that, they said.

Lewis made no specific contract proposals at Bluefield or White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., where negotiation of a new agreement resumed last week, but he did talk about a seven-hour day at the eight-hour rate with the northern and western mine owners at the Springs resort.

Reports were heard of informal "feelers" indicating that Lewis was probing about and getting ready to bargain seriously when the operators and miners sit down next Tuesday at Bluefield and Wednesday at White Sulphur Springs.

Some operators thought they detected a 20-cent "package" proposal in the conversations of union representatives—with the money divided some way between a welfare royalty increase and a wage boost.

The owners say they are as firm against a wage increase as the steel companies, and these they say the "feelers" have been received cooly.

SURVIVOR TELLS HER STORY

HOUSE DEMOCRATS

present when the house convenes on Wednesday, Sept. 21. Best regards."

The legislators knew when they knocked off work last August 26 that they were supposed to be back next Wednesday. But word got around there wouldn't be much doing that day and there was no real need to return before the following Monday.

Then along came the Rayburn-McCormack summons.

"Just a courtesy telegram," was the way Representative Cox (D-Ga.) described it.

Cox has been acting speaker at token sessions twice a week during the vacation.

Some southern Democrats wondered whether there might be a maneuver to ram through the house a bill creating a permanent Fair Employment Practices Commission to combat racial discrimination in the hiring of workers.

But other members said the party leadership couldn't afford to run any trick plays with that bill.

While the house is getting back into harness, the senate plans to act next week on the appointment of John Carson to membership on the Federal Trade Commission. Then it will jump into the scrap over the military assistance program for America's allies.

The senate has kept on the job most of the time while the house took it easy. It finally got around to passing bills providing appropriations for the defense establishment and the interior department and some extra cash for miscellaneous government agencies. It approved, too, a bill to boost the national minimum wage from 40 to 75 cents an hour for persons employed in interstate commerce.

The house previously had passed all these bills in different form. Now it is up to the house to send them to special senate-house committees which will work on compromises.

There is something of a rush on the money bills. The funds for defense and the interior department are for the year that already started last July 1. Because of senate delays, congress took emergency action to let the defense and interior department people keep on spending up to October 1 at last year's rate. Unless the house has a quorum on hand—one more than half the membership—an objection by any single member could block any legislative action.

And that, many members think, is the real reason for the Rayburn-McCormack telegram telling members it is important for them to come back to Washington.

LONG, PASSMAN

Program, especially our arms aid to Europe."

He examplified by saying:

"Look what happened in China. We give the Nationalists forces all our surplus war materials in the Pacific and what did they do? They gathered our arms and marched out to fight the Communists. When they got within five miles of the enemy, they stacked up our rifles and war material and threw up the white flag. Now the Communists have our weapons, and if we have to fight them, they'd turn our own guns against us."

"In Europe, France will have forty-five well-armed divisions when the arms program is ended and Russia already has three hundred. What can 45 divisions do against such odds?" Long asked.

He said: "If we want to improve our defenses, then let's spend our money on a strong American air force.

"As long as Joe Stalin knows we have a good, strong air force and a lot of atomic bombs and the planes to deliver them, he won't start anything."

Long praised the state's school-lunch program and said Louisiana is getting more than its share of products from the federal government because this "state is able to handle the quantity."

He gave an example. "For instance," he said, "last year California had more pears than they could sell, so the federal government bought them. The government then turned the pears over to states for school children. Louisiana got more than its share because we could handle them through our canneries."

Long also touched upon the old age pension plan.

He said that he "wants the federal government to match state government funds for disabled persons who are unable to work, the same as the national government is doing for the aged persons of the country."

The senator explained why Louisiana is the most liberal state in the nation by pointing out that "we don't pay as much as some states to individuals, but we cover more needy persons in our state than do any of the others."

In lashing out at the banks in the country, the senator said "the G. I. bill provides for a lower cost of financing for a home for veterans, but the banks are out to get more than a four per cent interest provided for in the bill.

"The banks," Long said, "will take the veteran through so much red tape and charge him so much for handling cost and various fees, that he really isn't getting full benefit from the bill."

"I would like for legislation to help the veterans and working people to buy a home without paying so much interest," he said.

Preceding Senator Long on the platform was Congressman Otto Passman.

He explained to the attentive West Monroe audience that the population of the United States is increasing and that to maintain our present standard of living, it is necessary to conserve our soil.

Passman stressed the importance of cooperation with the farm bureau, the soil conservation service and the forestry commission.

"Forty-two years ago," he said, "there were 4 1 8 acres of cultivable soil for each individual in the United States.

"Today, it has decreased to 3 1/4 acres to each person. In the next twenty-five years, at the present trend, we'll have to lower our standard of living.

"Take China for example: today they have only two acres of land to each person, and look at their standard of living.

"Whether you have a small or large farm, let's work together to conserve our soil through the Louisiana Delta Council and similar agencies."

Passman went on to explain that "taxes in Louisiana are going back to the various towns and cities for road and street improvement and to the needy persons of our state."

Lt. Gov. Dodd, not slated for the program, made a brief speech in which he assured the people that the present state administration is doing a good job in caring for its people.

"Only three other states pay teachers a higher salary," the lieutenant governor said.

SMALL PLANE

takeoff from Lisbon. They had hoped to be the first single-engine plane to cross the Atlantic from Europe on an east-west, non-stop flight.

The C. A. A. communications station at La Guardia field said today its last message from the plane was at 6:15 p. m. (E. S. T.) Friday.

As the northern twilight closed in over the search area, one Lancaster bomber from the Royal Canadian airforce station at Greenwood, Nova Scotia, radioed it was ending its search after finding nothing.

At 1:30 p. m. (E. S. T.) today the Coast Guard ordered another plane into the search, bringing its number to four. Army planes also were searching, and the Coast Guard said some navy planes were on the same mission.

From Lisbon, Portugal, where the fliers started their original flight last week, an optimistic report came from one of Brondello's friends, Varella Cid, a professor of aeronautics at the Lisbon Superior Institute of Technics.

"I still believe Brondello has safely landed, or will soon, somewhere on the western continent," he said. "If not in the United States, then in Newfoundland."

Prof. Cid said Brondello told him that if conditions were bad on his course toward the United States, he would change and try to land in Newfoundland.

LEPROSY VICTIM

"We've got to stop this segregation of patients. There is no segregation in England, France or Germany, and none in several states of the union. There is a lot of popular misunderstanding about the communicability of the malady."

Mrs. Hornbostel said "psychologically, segregation has had a bad effect on me and my husband."

The 58-year-old grandmother, smiling through tears, added she "hates to leave so many nice people, but it means that Hans and I can live a natural life together."

NEAR 200 DEAD

and around lifelines dropped to the dock.

Ben Kosman of Cleveland, who fled to safety, told of seeing ship attendants trying to stem the roaring flames with hand extinguishers.

"They might have been trying to put out hell with their fountain pens," he said brokenly.

Whole families, vacationing on the Noronic's last cruise of the season, were wiped out. Firemen who finally got aboard the heat-twisted steel hull five hours after the fire began told of finding charred groups with their arms about each other.

Many were trapped in their cabins.

"Some of those people were partying and after they had gone to bed I'm afraid many of them wouldn't smell the smoke or hear any shouts of 'fire,'" declared Sam Grahman, a crewman.

Many of the survivors escaped dressed only in nightclothes. Some jumped to the nearby dock or into the water without any clothes on at all.

"People were screaming and jumping without thinking," Dock Watchman Alfred Peterson reported. "Bodies were falling all around me on the dock and soon the screams were mingled with the moans of the injured.

Toronto officials said mass funerals would probably be necessary for many of the victims. They were so badly burned identification was impossible.

It was the worst Great Lakes disaster in more than a century.

K. R. Marshall, C. S. L. president, said the ship was well-equipped with modern firefighting devices.

"Either a lighted cigar or a cigaret may have been left in the state-room which was left unoccupied and, as a result, there was no immediate report of the beginning of the fire," he said in a statement.

"Certainly none of the officers or the crew knew of the fire until it become uncontrollable."

Mayor McCallum said it was "definite" that the crew attempted to fight the fire before calling the city fire department.

Edwin Feeney, Toronto Star reporter, walked about the deck of the burned-out steamer which rested on the bottom of the dock slip.

"It was a horrible picture of charred remains amid foot-embers and melted glass," he reported. "I saw the blackened bits that were once people. There was a young woman clutching her baby.

"Many had their lives snuffed out without waking, one young woman, wrapped in a blanket, had her face burned, but her body was not touched. Upper bunks fell crashing down on victims below. Firemen searching the ruins found human remains between scorched mattresses."

Fire Chief Art Smith said firemen found dozens of couples who went to death in a last embrace.

Lifeguards in rowboats sought bodies of persons who had slipped down ropes or jumped overboard in terror at the flames.

Steamship officials were attempting to establish the death list from a check of the survivors with their passenger and crew rolls. But this was difficult because many survivors had dispersed to hotels, hospitals and homes. The officials said they had been advised by their lawyers not to release the passenger list until all had been accounted for and the next of kin informed. This might take days.

Fifty-seven persons were in hospitals, 16 of them seriously injured.

The 35-year-old 6,905-ton steamer had settled to the bottom of her slip on Lake Ontario, and the deck where the fire started was under water.

The Noronic docked here at 6 p. m. Friday on what was to have been a gay holiday cruise to Prescott and the Thousand Islands after stops at Detroit and Cleveland.

Aboard were 170 crewmen and 512 passengers. The unusually large list had boarded the ship for her last cruise of the year.

At 2:38 a. m. Dan Harper, a pier watchman, turned in the first alarm when he saw a glimmer of fire near the stern. In two minutes, he said, the whole ship seemed to be afire.

Firemen later said the fire had started from an unknown cause in stateroom 462, two cabins aft of the cocktail bar just below the main deck.

Mildred Briggs of Detroit, one of the survivors, said the flames spread as if in a match box.

"The fire just welled up along the corridors and spread faster than any fire I've ever seen," she said.

Many passengers thought the first cries of alarm were from parties having a good time.

But as fire and smoke gushed through the ship, the passageways filled with stampeding people.

"There was a mob of men and women surging back and forth," said another survivor, Alberta Agla f Detroit. "Men were pushing women around and many were knocked to the floor. The screaming filled the air. There was so much panic that I don't know how these people found a way to safety. I slid down a rope."

Many rushed out in their nightclothes. One man got ashore naked.

Henry Maurer of Mentor, Ohio, said he and his wife Elmina, were sound asleep when someone pounded the door. When they reached the outside rail his wife started down a rope ladder, "but it became horribly twisted from so many trying to get on it. She got tangled and trapped. I swung down on a rope to her side and got her free and we both managed to get to the dock."

Sylvia Carpenter of Detroit said she screamed and headed for the outside rail when she saw smoke and flame billowing along the passagewavs.

"A rope was tossed over the rail and I put a hitch knot on it to hold it to a stanchion," she said. "As I did so, three men pushed in front of me and shoved some screaming women out of the way. They went down the rope."

Despite the confusion in the glare and smoke, hundreds got to safety by clambering or jumping to the dock, sliding down ropes or leaping into the water.

Peter Sage of Hull, Que., said about 100 reached safety by crawling onto the Cayuga—another Canada steamship lines vessel which was tied up close to the Noronic—until the Cayuga also caught fire and had to be pulled away.

But the scores were trapped in their bunks, especially some of those late to waken and in the corridors or lounges.

Eighteen fire engines and two fireboats were rushed to the scene at the foot of Bay street, but it was five hours before the flames were sufficiently quenched for a search for survivors to begin. In the smoke and steam the firemen began with blow torches, shovels and pikepoles the task of finding the victims and bringing them out.

Burned and broken bodies were wrapped in tarpaulins and carried out.

Coroner Lawson established a temporary morgue in the horticultural building of the Canadian National Exhibition four miles away. Bodies piled up under the glass domed roof of the building, where prize flowers were on exhibit a week ago.

The slip was filled with bobbing lifebelts.

The ship, with her named almost at pier level, went down at the stern, then settled by the bow. Her bridge and other parts of the wooden superstructure of her two upper decks were gone. Her forward crow's nest was singed, but her two masts were standing.

Blackened wreckage heaped on the main deck looked like a burning cokepile with rows of candle-like flame still flickering as the firemen began bringing out bodies.

Steel lifeboats on the starboard side of the upper deck alongside the pier were crumpled, and the ship's structure appeared buckled in at least two places.

Some passengers said they heard no alarm sounded; others said the ship's fire bell was rung and the whistle blew continuously.

Crew members said the ship's master, Capt. William Taylor of Sarnia, Ont., at first manned a hose, and then raced along the ship, smashing in doors and windows to awaken the passengers.

He leaped over the bow as flames closed in on him.

J. Donald Church of Silver Lake, Ohio, described by his fellow passengers as one of the heroes of the disaster, said he first saw the fire start from a cupboard near the bar. At his call, a crewman came with a fire extinguisher. Church said another crewman helped him drag up a big fire hose, "but just a few drops of water trickled out."

Church said he went out in a rowboat to pick up three men struggling in the water and got them close to the dock, when the boat capsized.

The bar manager said the Noronic's bar was closed in port by law, but some lights were left on in the room "so people can take their bottles in there and spend the evening."

The sister ship of the Noronic, the Hamonic, burned on July 17, 1945, at Point Edward, near Sarnia. But unlike the Noronic, all but one of the Hamonic's 325 passengers and crew were saved.

The only Great Lakes ship fire in which more lives were lost was in 1847, when the steamship Phoenix burned in Lake Michigan with 247 dead.

The Canadian transport department ordered Capt. W. N. Morrison of Toronto to begin a preliminary investigation into the fire. Captain Morrison is supervising examiner of masters and mates.

The Canadian Red Cross set up a central registry to compile a list of survivors, and put more than 60 girls to work collecting and providing food, shelter, clothes and medical attention.

American Red Cross headquarters in Washington sent Colin Herrle, national disaster director, to Toronto.

Mayor Hiram McCallum said the city was arranging to accommodate relatives arriving to identify and claim the dead. He said a special train will be made up to transport the bodies to Detroit and Cleveland if those cities wish to arrange mass funerals.

If arrangements are left to Toronto, he said, a suitable place would be chosen Monday and a mass funeral held.

More than 50 Detroit residents were believed among the dead.

Dr. Smirle Lawson, chief coroner, said only three or four of the bodies taken from the ship were recognizable. Identification was made more difficult because many were in their night clothes.

Among the dead were many small children but Fire Chief Sam Hill said most seemed to be elderly people.

A heap of human ash was in the middle of the floor of the morgue, waiting to be sifted for identifying jewelry and other belongings.

T. L. Church, a progressive Conservative member of parliament, said he will ask the government to establish an improved life-saving system on the Canadian side of the Great Lakes.

Many scenes of heartfelt gratitude and of heartbreak were enacted as survivors waited for word of loved ones.

A party of 32 from Akron, Ohio, finally assembled at a downtown hotel and found all were safe.

Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Orth of Detroit scanned stretchers of the injured for a long time at one of the hospitals before Mrs. Orth exclaimed, "Here is one of them."

On the stretcher was her sister, Irene. Then Mrs. Orth began another wait, hoping to find her sister-in-law, Mrs. Lucille Orth.

At a hotel Mrs. Joe Bailey of Kalamazoo, Mich., sobbed. Her husband was missing.

"I don't know where he is," she said. "The last I heard from him he called to me from the upper bunk of our stateroom. I don't know what happened to Joel. I'm afraid he did not get out of the room."

Lucille Roberts of Detroit said she saw a man on an upper deck surrounded by flames.

"As I watched, the flames licked around him and you could hear him scream the last time. Then he disappeared."

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Stover of Sombra, Neurns Fjwa, said they "went hand-over-hand along a hawser" to reach shore.

A. H. Miller of Hamilton, Ont., said he escaped by a gangplank to the Cayuga, but "we had to go down in the ship to get to the gangplank and we had great difficulty because of the smoke."

Some of the survivors were dazed.

One survivor, Jack Feingold of Cleveland, said he did not realize until he got safely ashore that he was still holding a gin rummy hand.

In a hotel lobby, Mrs. John Garfletter of Cleveland watched for two hours before she found her husband, then embraced him and cried, "I prayed to God every minute that you were safe."

Alfred Peterson, a watchman, said "people were screaming and jumping without thinking. Bodies were falling all around me on the deck and soon the screams were mingled with the moans of the injured."

A man in a torn shirt moaned "No, no, no, no," when police took him away from the water's edge. "I've got seven people on that ship."

Minton's Appointment Is Unsettled Issue

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17.—(AP)—Key Republicans hadn't made up their minds today whether to fight President Truman's appointment of Judge Sherman Minton to the supreme court.

Senator Wherry of Nebraska, the G. O. P. floor leader, told a reporter it will be up to Senator Jenner (R-Ind.) to signal whether party members pitch in to oppose a former Indiana senator who took a leading part in President Roosevelt's ill-starred effort to revamp the supreme court in 1937.

Jenner told a reporter he hasn't decided whether he will fight Minton, who served as senator from 1935 until 1940 when he was defeated for re-election.

Wherry said that since Jenner is a member of judiciary committee and Minton is from the same state, other Republicans were looking to Jenner for directions on the appointment.

Senator Ferguson (R-Mich.), who has been in the forefront of opposition to several of President Truman's appointees, also said he wants more time to study Minton's record.

In any event, Democrats remained confident they can win approval of the nomination, to fill the vacancy created by the death of Justice Wiley Rutledge.

But Senator Magnuson (D-Wash.) conceded they may have to wait for the return of Chairman McCarran (D-Nev.) from a three-weeks European trip before they can get clearance on the appointment from the judiciary committee.

of an automobile driven by Floy S Fisher, Monroe, then plunged into the Pontiac in which she was a passenger. Mrs. Hinkley's car was driven by her daughter, Mrs. H. Tetereau, also of 2615 North Tenth street, West Monroe. No one else was injured in the wreck, state police said.

Witnesses of the accident said the driver of the rampaging Mercury ran from the scene shortly after his car came to rest in a ditch. State troopers were still attempting to locate the driver last night.

In a second accident, a Negro, George Hardy, 27, of 806 Breard street, sustained possible back injuries when his bicycle collided with an automobile driven by another Negro, Jeremiah Jenkins, 27, of 604 North Ninth street, Monroe. The incident, police said, occurred at the intersection of North Ninth and Pine streets at about 7:30 p.m.

Jenkins, according to police, was driving north on North Ninth street and Hardy riding his bicycle east on Pine street when the accident occured.

A Mulhearn ambulance took Hardy to the Charity Hospital. His condition was undetermined.

have buses and another railroad line, we have got along pretty well. But think of the situation in a place like Pine Bluff, Ark. Here is what denizens there state in their wail of comment over conditions:

"If we had a team of oxen," said a postoffice employe, "We might be able to give Poplar Bluffians better mail service."

The reason for his comment:

The Missouri Pacific strike resulted in shipment of mail from St. Louis to Poplar Bluff via the Frisco Railroad to Sikeston, and thence on trucks.

A Frisco train, with nearly a carload of mail for Poplar Bluff, was stranded behind a wreck at Seventy-six, Mo., late Monday night. The train, mail and all, went back to St. Louis. There the car was transferred to another Frisco train which will take it through Springfield, Mo., to Hoxie, Ark., where it will be placed on the branch of the Frisco from Hoxie to Poplar Bluff.

If everything goes well, postal authorities expect the car to reach Poplar Bluff tomorrow.

One hundred and ten days or thereabouts, Monroe will entertain two discharged air force veterans of Japan and the Philippines, who are returning from California.

They are Dick Stewart, 19, and Eddie Cascio, 18, who will gallop along on horseback from the Golden State to their destination.

Each youth is reported to have put up $100 for Jimmy, a brown gelding and Lady, a sorrel mare.

They plan to ride the 2,200 miles in 20 miles a day shifts making a total of 110 days for the trip, so watch out for 'em—months later!

Cascio is son of T. D. Cascio of Nichols avenue, Monroe. His chum was not identified easily.

There is no third war as yet and we hope there never will be one, but just the same we hear of acrimonious attacks in which Monroe, not involved, is an interested bystander. The first refers to the respective claims of oysters produced in Maryland and in Louisiana. Up in Maryland they claim that Fred Fahdt, steward at a leading Baltimore cafe, once slipped from grace enough to eat a single Louisiana oyster. "It was in 1946," he said penitently. "I was in New Orleans and ordered a half dozen. I ate one and left the remainder on my plate. I cannot describe them they were so bad."

But New Orleans through a man named Joseph M. Jurisich, a shipper, declares publicly that Baltimore oysters are tasteless.

He has plenty of Orleanians who declare that the half has never been stated about those insipid Maryland oysters. And so the "war" of words goes merrily on.

But let the oyster "war" continue as long as no shots are fired, but listen to the war of publicity that is raging between Shreveport and Baton Rouge. Backed by the state highway department, a printing company was issuing a state map which gave Baton Rouge as second city in the state in size—figures being estimated for 1949—while Shreveport's population was given by using figures of 1940, showing less than 100,000. To add to the indignity the map was being printed IN SHREVEPORT. The powers that be in that city got busy and printing work is being halted as a result to the delight of the Caddo parish city.

It is really quite amusing how "hot under the collar" two cities can get when figures are quoted to show that one town is bigger than the other.

rate one on the part of the Soviet government and would exist whether or not the program of aid to free nations is undertaken by the United States."

The arms aid bill is part of the board strategy of the western world to discourage Soviet aggression.

Senator Connally (D-Tex.), chairman of the foreign relations committee, expressed hope for early action on the bill. Numerous amendments have been prepared for introduction.

Senator George (D-Ga.), who ranks next to Connally on the foreign relations group, wants to cut the fund for arming western European signatories of the Atlantic pact from $1,000,000,000 to $300,000,000. Connally predicted that the George proposal would be one of the main issues to be disposed of by the senate and that it would lose.

After the brawl is over
Just at the break of day
Many are the heads that lie broken
While the coroner earns his pay.

Those aren't Dr. James T. French's sentiments but they give a good idea of his task. And his taskmaster is no respector of hours or locations.

Louisiana law requires that a certified physician be coroner. It also requires that the coroner be called immediately to the scene of an unnatural death, before the victim is moved to determine, if possible, the exact cause of said demise.

A thankless job. Only his training as a physician would enable Dr. French to carry out this work.

Then another heart-rending must in a coroner's duties—that of interdiction of the insane or feeble-minded—is a constant worry.

Through it all, however, Dr. French finds his way and clears the thinking and helps form the decisions. But it isn't easy

DR. J. T. FRENCH

Cadeville Native

Born in Ouachita parish in the Cadeville community as the son of a farmer shortly before the turn of the century, Dr. French had a long pull to his present status.

He was the eldest son of Homer Eugene French, and the former Miss Elizabeth White, who met each other in Ouachita parish after coming here from Georgia. In his family were seven brothers and sisters. Dr. French gained his early education in the Cadeville primary schools, going two or three months in the winter, six weeks in the summer.

Schools were few and far between then and walking or riding a mule or horse were the only way to cover five or six miles both ways. Often, Dr. French says, he trudged with the others the five miles along dusty roads to summer schools or slogged through the red clay to the short winter sessions.

When his father died as Dr. French reached his eleventh year the family moved into Monroe. Here French entered high school, graduating from Ouachita in 1907 as the only boy in his class.

From high school he turned to teaching. His first experience in this field had already been acquired in the summer prior to his graduation in a one-room building at Holmesville in Union parish.

After teaching at Vixon in Caldwell parish, Dr. French went on to the then State Normal at Natchitoches. After a short sojurn there he attended the University of the South at Sewanee for a year, then returned to Ouachita where he again entered the teaching profession under T. O. Brown.

To Medicine

He taught at Cheniere and Drew schools but finally cut loose to study medicine—his first love. Entering the Memphis Hospital Medical College, he studied for two years, then was forced to drop out. Back to Ouachita he came, started teaching again.

For two years he taught, then finally with enough funds saved, he returned to the then University of Tennessee Medical School to win his degree in 1914.

His first practice was as company physician for the Grayling Lumber Company which then operated in the wooded areas of Ouachita parish. Married to Miss Ida Gilliland, of West Monroe, in 1910, he lived with his family at the company camp.

Later he worked as physician for the Benoit Lumber Company at Cheniere, then at Huttig, Ark., for the Union Lumber Company. He returned to start general practice in Monroe in 1920.

Dr. French entered the race for coroner in 1940 after 12 years' urging by friends. Previously he had declined offers of assistance on the basis that the physician who held the post was his friend. In 1940, however, a friend clinched his urging by pointing out that anyone who ran would be his friend. He won the election over three opponents and the incumbent, Dr. Irving Wolfe.

The year 1944 found him victorious again over Dr. F. C. Bennett and in 1948 he had no opposition for the post.

Before entering the coroner's office, Dr. French found time to devote to fishing and hunting, two of his pet recreations. Now, however, he finds very little time for these.

Wrestling Fan

Every Tuesday night Dr. French can be located at Gus Kallio's wrestling arena. An avid follower of the grunt-and-groan artists, a friend says that the coroner hasn't missed but two matches at the arena in ten years. Once he was pulled away on an official call, another time by a hasty visit from the stork.

The father of seven children, Dr. French saw three emerge safely from overseas war service. He lives presently at his large, comfortable home at 1115 Jackson street. He has an office in the courthouse, but does much of his work at his professional office on North Third street.

A member of the First Methodist Church of Monroe, Dr. French also holds memberships in the Masonic lodge, Odd Fellows, Knights of Pythais, and Modern Woodmen of the World. He also belongs to local medical associations.

In his coroner's duties Dr. French calls his shots as he sees them and lets the chips fall where they may.

"I have no secrets and feel that the public is as much entitled to know what is going on as anyone," he says.

Like he told parish citizens in an announcement in 1947, he only wishes to serve as wisely as possible in a hard job.

Albanian Says Plotters Aiming Fire At Albania

PRAGUE, Sept. 17.—(AP)—Premier Enver Hoxha of Albania charged today that "Imperialists" were plotting to carve up his country, the official Czech press agency reported.

The agency said Hoxha declared in a speech at Skadar, Albania, that there was a scheme afoot to give Skadar and northern Albania to Yugoslavia, southern Albania to Greece and the Port of Valon to Italy. But he added:

"Albania now does not stand alone at the mercy of the imperialists. It has invincible allies headed by the Soviet Union who will insure that the plots of the imperialists will fail."

Iran's Shah Plans Jaunt Over Nation

By Fred J. Zusy
(Associated Press Newsfeatures)

TEHRAN, Iran—A glamorous monarch from one of the oldest countries in the world will visit the United States in late November.

He is Mohammad Reza Pahlevi—the 29-year-old shah of Iran. The Persian ruler's title is really shah-in-shah, which means king of kings, but by usage he's referred to as just plain shah.

The shah is a tall, dark and handsome man with a serious mien and a royal poise. Since he inherited the ancient crown of Darius in 1941 he's had more than his share of troubles.

He's a king who loves flying and has a deep interest in sports. He pilots his own plane here—a B-17—and is an accomplished horseman, skiier, soccer and tennis player.

He owns about 20 palaces scattered about, some of them elaborate Oriental affairs in the tradition of the East. He has an immensely valuable treasury of crown jewels and heirlooms.

The shah's a single man now, having earlier this year divorced Princess Fawzia, sister of Egypt's King Farouk and reputedly one of the most beautiful women in the world.

He narrowly escaped death in February of this year when a would-be assassin fired five shots at him from close range. One hit the shah's cheek and another penetrated his side. Three others went through his hat. The shah suffered only slight injury.

The shah became Persia's ruler back in 1941 when he was 21 years old. (He'll be 30 Oct. 26, before he gets to the states.)

The Allies accused his father of being pro-German and the old shah was forced to abdicate. He had been elected shah by a constitutional assembly in 1925 after leading a coup d'etat in 1921.

The young shah inherited immediately all the difficulties of a country caught between the millstones of war.

Persia with its vast oil resources was a tremendous prize. The Allies—the United States, Britain and Russia—moved in troops to safeguard the vital southern lend-lease supply line to Russia. The shah formally entered Iran in the war on the side of the Allies.

The war brought great economic and social problems to Iran—problems still confronting the country.

Right after the war Russia, making its first move toward expansion southward, encouraged setting up of puppet peoples' republics among the Azerbaijanis and the Kurds in northern Iran.

World disapproval, voiced by the United Nations with the backing of the United States, forced withdrawal of Russian assistance, followed by the collapse of the puppet governments. They lasted less than a year.

The shah had some more trouble with Russia over Soviet demands for an oil concession in northern Iran. The Anglo-Iranian Oil Co., controlled by the British government, has a concession in the south which furnishes a large part of Iran's income.

The Iranian majlis, or parliament, voted overwhelming disapproval of the Russian concession.

Besides worries over Russia, the shah has had internal troubles to cope with. The war put Iran back on its heels. Bad crops the last two years are said to have brought about a food shortage.

Because of his interest in internal improvements in Iran, the shah plans to spend much of his two or three weeks in the States looking at agricultural and other projects. He wants to see places like TVA and Boulder Dam.

As a sportsman, he hopes to have time to see a football game one of his Saturday afternoons in America. But, though he'll be in Los Angeles, he told a reporter he doesn't think he'll have time to look in on Hollywood.

Since the shah's divorce his name has been linked in gossip with several women.

There is no definite indication that he will remarry in the near future.

However, he recently told a reporter that he feels it his duty that the present dynasty be continued through a male heir. Queen Fawzia bore him one child—a daughter.

Why Not Let Him Bite You?

By James V. Mathtis
(Of the Morning World Staff)

Scared of that growling dog? Well don't be. If he dulls his teeth on your leg, you may be able to collect damages.

Small consolation for a torn leg or back end, you say? The precious green has healed many a sore spot. It would go a long way toward covering yours.

However, collection of damages hinges on several points, a local attorney said recently.

Postmen or other legitimate house-to-house workers stand a good chance in civil court.

The owner must know his dog to be vicious.

And the man with the teeth marks must have not known that the dog was dangerous.

"Each case rests on its own merits," the attorney, who asked that his name not be used, said. "Where damages are collected in one case, the plaintiff may only get bitten in another."

Louisiana courts have consistently held that the owner, to be liable for his dog's actions, must know that the dog will bite. If he does not know, then he may not be held responsible. The court of appeals has ruled that this proof rests with the owner, however, and not with the plaintiff.

Postal regulations specifically instruct postmen that they are not required to deliver mail to a home where there is danger of being chased up a tree by a canine member of the household. In some cases, a whole block may be put on the black list because of an unruly animal.

But should a mailman or other worker enter a yard where he knew a dog with sharpened teeth awaited him, he may get nothing but surprise and pain.

Where a dog bites several persons in a neighborhood he may be picked up for observation by the health unit. If vaccinated, he will be released after 14 days.

No city, parish or state law makes provision for destroying a vicious dog without rabies.

Any way you look at it, the dog gets the best end.

Fowl Fashions Parade

Rudy Rooster fully expects to be cock of the walk.

Tula Turkey talks of nothing but the fashion title.

Ducy Duck, with lots of luck, will be pin-up queen.

Busy-Body Biddy is really giddy about the style show.

Who are the "10 best-dressed fowl of the nation"? That question will be answered during the next few months in a fowl fashion contest sponsored by the Poultry and Egg National Board, Chicago. The 19 finest-feathered fowl will be selected through local fashion shows. Any U. S. resident may enter a dressed-up fowl. Fowl costumes must be designed and made from the colorful material used for poultry feed bags. After preliminary contests, the slickest chicks, dandiest ducks—all the fanciest fowl—appear in a National Fowl Fashion Show in Kansas City, Mo., next February. There, prominent fashion experts will judge the new look in fowl fashions and pick the best-dressed bird. Creator of the best fowl fashion costume will be awarded a Kaiser "Traveler" automobile. Meanwhile, Rudy Rooster, Tula Turkey, Ducy Duck and Busy-Body Biddy all say in unison, "It's in the bag"—the poultry feed bag, that is.

Home Room Assembly To Be Held At Neville

A home room assembly at the Neville High School auditorium at 8:45 a.m. Sept. 28, will begin another year of traditional activities.

The assembly will be sponsored by the school's senior class.

Mary Agnes Rizzo, president of the class, said the theme of the program will be "looking back through the years that the present senior class has been at Neville," and will be accomplished by skits, musical selections and special features.

Officers of Neville's senior class include Anne Varino, girls' vice-president; Larry Tucker, boys' vice-president; Jane Tidwell, secretary, and Virginia Laing, treasurer.

Executive council members have also been chosen. Mary Agnes Rizzo will serve as chairman; John Noel as vice-chairman, and Jo Ann Roberts as secretary. Other members are Clara Munholland, Maurine Linquist, Betty Jo Roach, Pat Wadley, Peggy Frantom, and Dickie Rowe.

Records show that the Arctic tern, whose legs were banded in Maine and Labrador in July, migrated to southern France and western Africa in the fall. One bird flew more than 8,000 miles when less than four months old.

Mexico Helps GI Student

Haven in Mexico—Joe Burstein, his wife and daughter find a good life.

By Lawrance F. Stuntz
(Associated Press Newsfeatures)

MEXICO CITY—Take it from Joe Burstein, that veteran's student allowance goes a whole lot farther in Mexico than it does in the U. S.

Burstein, studying Spanish literature at the Mexico City College, is only one of about a thousand veterans now enrolled in schools in Mexico. The U. S. government pays their tuition and gives Burstein, his wife, Geraldine, and young daughter, Delilah, $120 a month to live on.

Burstein won his right to the grant by 31 months of overseas duty in North Africa and Europe with the 591st engineer regiment. Contact with Spanish-speaking people in North Africa gave him the idea of his intended career—teaching Spanish in U. S. schools. He had had three years of Spanish in high school "but I really learned to speak it in Africa."

He was born in Shanghai 26 years ago, the son of a refugee White Russian furniture auctioneer. His father brought him to the U. S. when he was 10, stopping two years along the way in Ciudad Juarez, Mexico. But he had forgotten all the Spanish he learned there. He grew up in Marin City, Calif., near San Francisco.

After the war he went back to Marin City, married his wife, Geraldine Percy.

Burstein's allowance amounts to 1038 pesos a month. Of this, 300 pesos—about $35—goes for a penthouse apartment and another 300 goes for food. Other household expenses take up 150 pesos more and the rest goes for books, clothing and incidentals.

The penthouse apartment has a big terrace where Delilah plays and a good view of the snow-capped Ixtaccihuatl and Popocatapetl mountains. The couple had a series of servants, but couldn't find one they liked. They finally gave up and Geraldine does her own housework now. It's harder than it would be in the U. S., since she washes vegetables in a germicide. And water has to be boiled for drinking. They shop in a super-market, but buy Mexican products to make the food money go farther.

Burstein's day goes something like this:

Up at 6:30; breakfast on orange juice, oatmeal, toast and cocoa or tea. Walk a mile to school and classes until 1 p. m.

Then home for a heavy lunch—the Bursteins find that in Mexico City's 7,500-foot altitude their main meal should be in the middle of the day. Lunch is usually meat and two vegetables and dessert. Also on account of the altitude, a siesta is necessary.

After that, Joe either studies or goes to a sports club nearby for basketball, swimming, tennis or the Spanish game of "fronton," known in Cuba as "jai-alai." He says he's not very good at it.

Supper is a light meal, frequently just tea and cookies or cake. After that comes more study until bedtime.

Burstein will graduate this year and then go to San Francisco State College for a year of pedagogical training to get his teacher's certificate.

Mexico has more GI students than any other foreign country except France. There are 1,322 in France. Mexico, incidentally, is the only Latin American country which has a formal "veterans' attache" in its embassy.

Walker Travels Long Road To Become Choral Director

Finley Walker, new director of the Choral Club, waved to the piano accompanist, turned to the 60 members of the singing group, and with an upward stroke of both hands, hurtled them into and through Franz Schubert's "To Music," less than two minutes long the way he likes it sung.

"That's good," he said, resting his six-foot, 4-inch frame on the creaky director's stand. "Very good. Now let's go back and work on each part separately. The beauty of this piece lies in the delicate tone variations and that's what we want to catch."

Finley Walker's definition of work is a strict one, and minute after minute fleeted by as he carried the altos, sopranos, tenors and basses of the Choral Club through their parts with eager concentration, noting this particular chord, that particular note. After a while, he was perspiring freely. Now and then his clear baritone floated through passages the way he would like it sung. Before any of us noticed, rehearsal had run a good half hour over the usual time.

It was the first rehearsal of the new season for the Choral Club and the first time Walker held the director's baton. Earlier in the week, Ted Landhy, president of the group, announced that the noted singer had consented to direct the singing group in their second season and members were getting their first look at Walker.

Walker traveled a long road from the broad plains of Texas and Kansas to the sleepy southern streets of the Twin Cities and en route stopped to steep himself in his first love—singing and acquire a wife and son. He was born in Texas some 30 years ago and while still a youth moved to Kansas with his family. Singing seemed to be a part of him and his decision to pursue a musical career came after he won a singing contest in Kansas.

"It was not an easy road," he mused. For five years the transplanted Texan played trombone and was the vocal soloist with a jazz band. Afterwards, while studying voice in New York, he worked as an elevator man in a department store to pay for his lessons. His first opportunities came; he was engaged to sing in the American Jubilee at the World's Far; then as a soloist at the Park Avenue Christian Church. He sang the leading baritone parts in the performances of the New York Dramatic Oratorio Festival Foundation.

His first venture in opera was a summer season with the Memphis Open Air Theatre. Later, the Philadelphia Opera Company chose him for important parts over 304 other singers who tried out. While in the service he sang in the air force show, "Winged Victory." After the war, he traveled widely in the United States appearing before the concert, operatic and oratoric public. Along about then he, as most singers do, started thinking about teaching.

"Monroe's stirring civic consciousness seemed a fertile field for me," Walker explained. "So Mike, he's my son, Maxine and I turned southward and arrived last February. I guessed right, because more and more pupils are coming to me for study."

Walker traveled a long road from Texas and Kansas to Monroe—singing all the way, and up there in front of the Choral Club, you can see that his heart's in his work.

SAAR WANTS NATIONAL ANTHEM

SAARBRUCKEN, Germany— (AP) — Several months ago the ministry of culture of the Saar, now economically merged with France, invited proposals for a national anthem. Now the ministry found that none of the 537 drafts submitted was good. It urgently requested the poet, Johannes Kirchweg, to write one.

Nine Britons Die In Three Air Crashes

LONDON, Sept. 17.—(AP)—Final observances of "Battle of Britain Week" were marred today by three separate air crashes in which nine British airmen died.

Six crewmen of a twin-engine Wellington bomber were killed near the Darlington Air Base. Their plane crashed and burned while flying in a law formation with three other bombers.

Earlier, two airmen died when a training plane crashed near the Upwood R. A. F. Base while practicing acrobatics.

A Saunders-Roe jet fighter flying boat fell into the sea off Flexistowe. The pilot was trapped inside the craft.

The air ministry said more than 764,000 visitors to 84 stations saw flying displays which ended Britain's annual observance of the victory over German air attacks in 1940.

Thousands Expected At Blessing Of Shrimp Fleet

MORGAN CITY, La., Sept. 17.—(AP)—State officials and thousands of visitors poured into this southwest Louisiana shrimping center today to participate in tomorrow's 14th annual Blessing of the Shrimp Fleet.

Solemn religious services, followed by a grand parade, will highlight the annual celebration.

Six vessels of the famous 40-fathom fleet, owned by General Seafoods, Inc., have been placed at the disposal of visitors who came here to witness the blessing rites.

Among state dignitaries attending will be Senator Long (D-La.).

Twenty-three per cent of all adult pedestrians killed in motor vehicle accidents had just been drinking.

Minister Hits Skeptics

CARNEGIE, Pa.—(NEA)—If a skeptic tells Rev. Ted V. Voorhees, pastor of the Carnegie Methodist Church, that he does not believe in the Biblical miracles, because he doesn't understand them, Voorhees has a comeback.

Standing in the pulpit, Voorhees takes an empty cylinder and magically produces yard after yard of cloth. A competent semi-professional magician, he completely mystifies the congregation.

"If I can do this," he tells the skeptic, "and you do not understand, what must God be able to do with his ominous powers?"

Thirty years ago, Voorhees saw Houdini perform. He was so enchanted by the master magician, that he talked about doing the tricks himself. When his wife questioned his ability in magical directions, Voorhees became even more determined and taught himself a few basic tricks.

For the last 27 years, he has been practicing magic from the pulpit. He has recruited several hundred young ministers of all denominations to this theory of teaching faith in God through magic.

Voorhees believes that "one way to religious thinking is through magic. I tell the story of Jesus providing the multitude by the sea shore with a single loaf and a single fish."

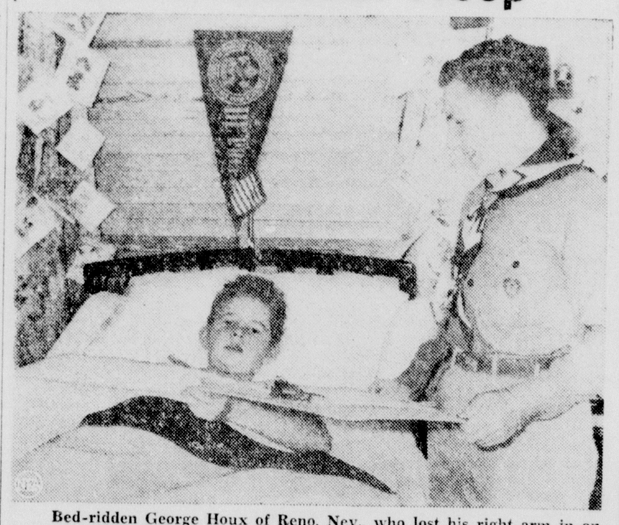
And, with a mysterious stunt, he takes a piece of paper money and proceeds to multiply it. The "multiplying bill trick" serves to illustrate the point to the congregation, particularly the children who love his magical sermons.

Voorhees performs for many local clubs and organizations and has written books on the use of magic in churches. He has known famous magicians personally and served as president of the local chapter of the International Brotherhood of Magicians.

Despite the fact that the Methodist Church no longer requires it, Voorhees continues to wear the clerical collar. He believes a minister should be easily recognized as such.

Besides his interest in magic, Voorhees is also a student of psychology. He's a certified psychological examiner for Pennsylvania public schools, and is working for his doctor's degree in the subject.

Shut-In Boys In Reno Have Own Scout Troop



Bed-ridden George Houx of Reno, Nev., who lost his right arm in an accident, belongs to Scout Tribe 110, exclusively for shut-ins. Regular Scout Don Pettycrew is about to give George a lesson in left-handed writing. Cards on the wall were sent by well-wishers.

RENO, Nev.—(NEA)—Paralyzed and crippled boys can now share with healthy youngsters the excitement of being Boy Scouts.

Scout Tribe 110, of Reno, the only unit of its kind in the world, is made up entirely of boys who can't take part in normal activities. It's a troop for shut-ins."

Boys like George Houx, who lost his right arm in an accident, and the Forbush twins, Ronald and Donald, who have had rheumatic fever, are typical members.

George is being taught to write with his left hand, and the twins are learning handicrafts they can follow without exertion. All activities of the unit are checked with individual family doctors for approval.

Men and women counselors have been trained by the area council and visit each of the boys once a week.

Normal scouting rules have been modified so that members can obtain regular awards. After a monthly court of honor, a counselor visits each boy who has earned an award and presents it to him in his home or hospital room.

Special permission from Scout headquarters had to be obtained for the unit. Its charter permits boys who recover and go on to normal scouting to retain their awards.

Like the other scouts, they make radio sets, model airplanes, scrapbooks, and stamp collections. And they learn such scouting stand-bys as tying knots and the Morse code.

Belgian Freighter Is Aground Near Cuba

HAVANA, Cuba, Sept. 17.—(AP)—The Belgian freighter Brabant, 2,500 tons, grounded on rocks off the southern coast of Cuba early today and called for help.

Coast Guard Air Sea Rescue Headquarters at Miami said the commercial tug rescue was enroute to the scene from Jamaica and that the 6,000-ton American freighter Veragua changed course to aid the stranded vessel.

The master of the Brabant said his ship was "taking on a little water," but was in no immediate danger. She was enroute from gulf coast ports to Antwerp when she went aground about 60 miles east of the Isle of Pines and 300 miles south-southwest of Miami.

Mrs. Simpson Romantically Mentioned In Royal Court

LONDON, Sept. 17.—(AP)—The name "Mrs. Simpson" was whispered around the royal court today like a breath from the prewar past.

This time it was Mrs. Romaine Simpson, lovely New York divorcee. She was reported engaged to handsome David Michael, Marquess of Milford Haven, a great grandson of Queen Victoria.

Mrs. Simpson is 27. The marquess, one of Princess Margaret's favorite dates during the past year, is 30. A night club enthusiast, he also has gone out both here and in the United States with Sharman Douglas, daughter of U. S. Ambassador Lewis Douglas.

Another of Victoria's grandsons—now the Duke of Windsor—gave up the throne in 1936 so that he could marry another Mrs. Simpson. That, of course, was Wallie Warfield Simpson, Baltimore divorcee.

The Church of England frowns on remarriage of divorced persons. The Duchess of Windsor has yet to be received by the royal family.

The London Daily Mail got in touch with Milford Haven just before he pulled down the shutter on the press. The Mail said he declined to affirm or deny the engagement report, but he did disclose that he and Mrs. Simpson have had their picture taken together by Baron Nairum, a court photographer.

Nairum's secretary refused to give out any of the photographs, but said they will be passed around, "when it becomes official."

Mrs. Simpson a curvesome and smartly dressed brunette, came to London from Paris a few days ago.

She is the daughter of the late Vinton Dahlgren Pierce of Washington, D. C. Her marriage to William Simpson of Locust Valley, N. Y. in 1946 ended in a Reno divorce two years later.

Mrs. Simpson is staying at the fashionable Claridge's Hotel. This afternoon she was "out" to callers.

At Milford Haven's home, Kensington Palace, servants said "His Lordship is away."

The marquess for the past year or so has been commuting to the United States as a salesman for a British oil heater firm.

He was best man at the marriage of his cousin, Prince Philip, to Princess Elizabeth.

Community Chest Tour Proves Interesting, After All

By James V. Mathis
(Of The Morning World Staff)

The Community Chest wants you. Drop by their office.

This was the polite but Firm suggestion of The Boss.

So what, if they want me? A lot of other people, mostly bill collectors, are also looking for me and finding me the missing link. I don't want to go.

Do they want to put the bite on me? On Saturday, with payday on Monday, they would find that extremely difficult. Do they want me to ask people for money? I have a complex against this, ever since I asked a drunk for a nickel due on a newspaper and he upended his drink on my uncombed hair.

But I go, like the reluctant dragon. Not dancing, though.

Tucked in the rear of the Virginia Hotel I find their office. It was humming. Any place with three women in it is bound to hum. But these were working, not talking.

I wormed my way around cases of canned publicity, to be taken in large doses by the public soon, and found Mrs. Helen Luckett, efficient executive secretary, behind her desk busy answering telephone calls.

Then I began to get the layout in snatches from Mrs. Luckett between calls.

We're going to make a tour of the Red Feather Services, those being the organizations that get help from the Community Chest. Starting with the Chest we are going to snoop and find out what makes these babies tick besides the public's money. Or at least we will find out how the dollar is used.

They extend the financial helping hand to nine certified groups, all local. Overall direction of the Community Chest, which is big business with its $48,000 in collections annually, is in the hands of an 18-man board of directors composed of business and professional men of the Twin Cities. John Sherrouse, Jr., is president.

To get dinero from the Chest an organization not aided by the government must prove: that it meets a need not already filled; that it meets the accepted standards in its field of service; and that it is properly incorporated and has a responsible directorate. In short, it must have clean hands and no dirty linen.

Once approved, the agency must have clean hands and no dirty linen.

Once approved, the agency must submit to budgeting by the Chest. They make up their own budget, which is gone over carefully by a committee which is tighter with its money than an ultra-conservative bank.

The budgets are totaled and the Chest sets up its goal for that year. By combining ten organizations they shave the public nine separate wheedling drives.

Once they decide what they want, the Chest backers buckle on their harness and start planning how to extract it from a fickle public. Around 600 people are contacted, asked to take cards and turn in their quota of pledges or funds. Turnover is heavy in this 600, who get no pay and very little credit.

Advertisement and a public relations campaign are laid out. Just when the citizen thinks the year is about to get by, they pounce.

Mr. Cluck wakes up one morning and sees red feathers everywhere he looks. He can't get away from red feathers even with three feathers. Only when they reach their goal do the Chest workers sit back and relax—and count up their take.

That will have to do for the Chest. They are big enough that several articles wouldn't cover the ground.

But stick around while we take a look at the other agencies. If we find any dirt under the carpet or loose hinges on the money drawers, you can bet your Sunday best that it will be passed on to you.

OUACHITA COMES HOME; NEVILLE HITS ROAD

LIONS IN OPENER HERE THURSDAY AGAINST RUSTON

Bill Ruple Takes His Tigers To Homer For First Game Out Of Town

The Ouachita Parish High School Lions, after two grid tests with non-conference foes away from home, make their season's debut on a home field next Thursday night when they meet the Ruston High School Bearcats at Brown Field. The Neville High School Tigers, playing before their largest early season crowds in two local dates so far, take to the road for the first time on an invasion of Homer Friday night.

Nville had fair success in its home dates, getting 6-6 tie with Bolton of Alexandria and defeating Minden, 12 to 6, while Ouachita, on the road, was dropping its first to Homer, 14-13, and getting a tie Thursday night with Bossier City, 13-13.

"Our line looked some better against Bossier, but still needs plenty of work," Ouachita Coach Jim Hodgins said last night. "We were not quite right for Bossier although we feel we outplayed them—that's not enough, however. We've got to win some and believe we will if steady improvement continues.

"Right now we are only interested in the Ruston game. We know from past experiences that "Hoss" Garrett gets the most out of his ball players, and Ruston can be counted right now as one of our hard ball games."

Center Johnny Goodwin may be missing from the Lion lineup, however, come Thursday night. He suffered a severely bruised hip.

Coach Hodgins, after putting his Ouachita charges through a workout yesterday morning, said he was satisfied with the changes made in the starting line last week, and that the combination would be continues. Hodgins made his shift by sending Percy Wheeler from tackle to guard, promoting Robert Smith to tackle, and bringing Troy Counts from second string fullback, into a starting guard slot.

Although Ruston dropped its opener to Minden, 13 to 0, the Bearcats fought Class AA Haynesville almost to a standstill Friday night before bowing to the Golden Tornado, 12 to 6. Last year the Lions stopped Ruston, 20 to 0.

Monroe football fans will be watching the Homer-Neville game with particular interest. Although it'll be a non-conference game, Homer and Bossier City are considered the class of the northwest district "A" teams, and if Neville passes its own northeast district tests coming up soon, the Tigers may have to meet Homer or Bossier in title play. Of course, Coach Bill Ruple's Bengals have Rayville, Jonesboro-Hodge, Lake Providence, Ruston, Winnsboro, and Bastrop to worry about in their own district before they can begin thinking about playoffs.

"Nothing has come easy for Neville this year," Coach Ruple declared. "We had our hands full with Bolton and Minden. There's no reason to regard Homer as an exception. The Pelicans have one of the best backs in the state in Al Doggett, and he'll probably be the best we've had to face so far."

TICKETS SALE STARTS

The advanced sale of tickets for the football game here Thursday night between the Ouachita Parish High School and the Ruston Bearcats will begin tomorrow.

Reserved seat pasteboards ($1) and general admissions (75c) will be on sale at Lockhart-Blair Sports Shop and at Calvert's Drugs. Box seats—there are a few left—are on sale only at Lockhart-Blair.

Reservations by telephone are being discouraged, it was said.

Wisner Opens With Waterproof Friday

WISNER, La., Sept. 17—(Special)—The Wisner Bulldogs are beginning their third week of practice before they meet the powerful Waterproof High School here in Wisner next Friday.

Coach Stan Powell has the number of boys out for practice limited due to injuries and cotton picking. The services of Jay Pierron, lanky end, has been lost for the next week or so due to a head injury sustained in a practice scrimmage. J. R. Hall has had trouble with his feet and has not hit his last year's performance.

Coach Powell has been shifting boys around in hopes of finding a stronger combination. Lenfield Campbell has been shifted guard, Jack Ensminger to center, and Robert Furr has been moved to tackle.

New dressing rooms are nearing completion and it is hoped that they will be ready for the first game. Manager Bobby Cruce has not been with the team this year due to an attack of infantile paralysis.

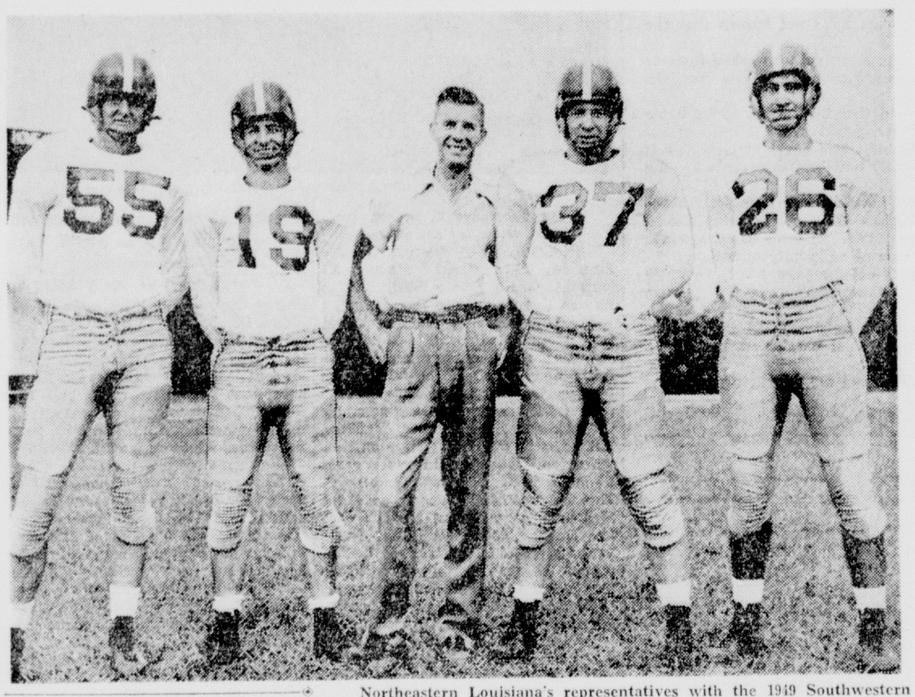
The following is the schedule for the Wisner Bulldogs this season:

September 30—Waterproof, here.
October 7—Sicily Island, there.
October 14 — Jefferson Military Academy, here.
October 21—Ferriday, there.
October 28, Gilbert (homecoming), here.
November 4—Mangham, there.
November 11—Clarks, here.
November 18—L. T. I. (Monroe), there.
November 25—Crowville, there.

HEMPSTEAD, N. Y.—Carolyn McBride, editor of the Hempstead Sports Review, a popular bowling publication, was married on August 6 to William Sheehan of that city. Mrs. Sheehan and her brother, James McBride, will continue publishing the bowling paper.

Twin City Tennis Championships To Be Decided Today

MONROE GRIDDERS AT S. L. I.



Northeastern Louisiana's representatives with the 1949 Southwestern Louisiana Institute football squad include Tackle George Roach, End George Luffey, and Senior Manager Charles Brown, all former gridders at Neville High School, Monroe, and Fullback Richard Pate and Guard C. L. Wink who formerly starred at Ouachita Parish High School, Monroe. Playing an important role in S. L. I.'s latest grid campaign, they are, left to right: Roach, Pate, Brown, Wink and Luffey.

'Go See Sweeny' Is Series Slogan

NEW YORK—(AP)—Jack Sweeney has a perfect right to scream when anyone asks: "Are you going to the World Series?"

Sweeney usually "sees" his World Series with one ear on the radio and the other on a telephone in a hotel room close to the nearest railroad station.

When it comes to moving a World Series from one city to another or getting a big league ball club out of town, Sweeney is the man who takes care of the details known as "space." That's because York Central System's passenger representatives.

"Go see Jack Sweeney," is an expression as well known to baseball officials during a World Series as "kill the umpire." That's mainly because railroads run on schedule and ball games don't.

Sweeney got his baptisimal run during the 1940 World Series between Detroit and Cincinnati.

"We ran eight trains," he says. "But the Series I'd like to forget was in 1942 between the Yankees and Cardinals. Nobody thought the Cards would take four straight after losing the opening game. We had to break up the Series specials and run baseball trains to get baseball men to St. Louis, Detroit, Chicago, Cleveland and Cincinnati."

Rain and surprise Series victories are big drawbacks in arranging train schedules, says Sweeney.

Sweeney calls the '48 Series one "big headaches." Many thought the Indians would take four straight after losing the 1-0 opener. But the Braves bounded back with an 11-5 win and forced the Series to move back to Boston.

Sweeney estimates that each major league player travels 40,000 miles during a season. Traveling expenses, exclusive of hotels, cost each club approximately $30,000 for four east-west return trips.

Recently Harold Parrott of the Dodgers recalled his first trip west after he became the club's traveling secretary. It was during the war when the Dodgers used uppers and lowers.

The Dodgers had just obtained Goodie Rosen from Toronto. Since regulars sleep in lower berths, Rosen was forced to occupy an upper.

A few days with the Dodgers and Manager Leo Durocher put Goodie in the lineup against the Cards. The outfielder came up with two hits.

That night on the way to Cincinnati, Rosen noticed that his name on the posted sleeping car list still had him in an upper.

"How come I'm still in an upper?" Rosen queried Parrott. "I'm a regular now and should be in a lower."

"I'll see what I can do about it," replied Parrott, new at the job and aiming to please.

"You got Rosen in the lineup and he's still in an upper. I have no lowers," Parrott told Durocher.

"I'll fix that," replied Durocher. "I'll get Rosen out of there."

"Where, out of the upper?" asked Parrott.

"No," replied Durocher, "Out of the lineup."

Sargent To Fight Garcia This Week

TALLULAH, La., Sept. 17.—(Special)—Jerry "Tarzan" Sargent, Tallulah fighter, will meet Buddy Garcia, Galveston, Tex., in a ten-round main event show at San Antonio, Tex., Tuesday night, it has been learned here.

Sargent will be facing one of the most important tests of his professional ring career. Garcia ranks ninth among the world's lightweight contenders and has met and beat some of the finest. A few months ago he lost a title bid in a match with Williams.

This will be Sargent's 132nd fight, and he has been beaten only 13 times.

The Garcia-Sargent fight is of particular interest in this section where Sargent is regarded as the most promising fighter to come out of the Delta country in several years. He is his own trainer, and handles his own bookings.

HOLLYWOOD, Calif.—Art Linkletter, the man who puts the popular "People are Funny" radio show across, has set out to see if bowlers are people. Linkletter heads a group which recently purchased a 22-alley LaCienega Lanes in West Hollywood.

Today's Games

Saline at Ansley
Chatham at Ashland.

Saline and Chatham won their playoff games last Sunday and will be heavy favorites to repeat today and meet in the final round to determine the league winner.

Saline staged one big inning to defeat Ansley 6 to 3. The Trojans outhit Saline eight to five, but the melon growers took advantage of errors and walks to run up a winning margin. Smith pitched a smooth game for Saline and worked out of several difficult situations. Powers was on the hill for Ansley and pitched winning ball all the way. Only one run was earned off the Trojan fireball hurler, but poor support proved his downfall. Woods of Ansley and Toms of Saline were the leading hitters.

Chatham scored an easy victory by tallying seven runs in the second inning and hanging on for an 8 to 2 victory over Asland. Womack was consistent on the hill for Chatham and pitched out of all tight spots. He was backed up by his mates with a thirteen hit attack led by Doyal, Moore and Johnson, each getting two hits.

Ashland pitched Simpson and Jinks, with the latter stopping Chatham with only one run after the second inning. M. Lee and G. Lee collected two hits apiece to lead their team on offense.

Scores by innings:

Ansley	010 000 020	3	8 4
Saline	000 510 00x	6	5 2

Batteries: Ansley: Powers and Harvey. Saline: Smith and Toms.

West Monroe Grammar Gridders Play Saturday

Grammar school football teams of West Monroe usher in the kids' own version of football next Saturday night when Millsaps Grammar School sends its eighth grade team against the Crosley aggregation at the West Monroe playground, it was announced by Millsaps Principal C. R. Roberts.

Both schools plan to field teams in the Grammar Football League here this fall, and they will use the Saturday night contest as a pre-season warmup to get a line on what can be expected in the way of talent at Millsaps and Crosley this year.

Millsaps' eighth graders were runners-up for the league championship last year.

Fifty-five per cent of pedestrians killed in cities were using the roadway between intersections.

FUDICKAR UPSETS TOP SEEDED VILLA IN MEN'S SINGLES

Troy Reaches Title Finals; Winners To Be Determined This Afternoon

Championship play comees up in the second annual Twin City Tennis Tournament here today with top seeded Ed Villa, favored to win the men's singles crown in early play, among the missing. Villa bowed out of singles competition yesterday in a rugged semi-finals duel with J. B. Fudickar.

Fudickar, seeded No. 3, smashed through to a 6-2 win in the first set, but Villa evened the match by taking the second, 3-6. Then the rival netters squared off in a nip-and-tuck deciding set that finally went in Fudickar's favor, 7-5.

Although Fudickar was spoiling the form chart for Villa, second seeded R. M. "Dick" Troy moved into the finals as expected by knocking off fourth seeded Louis Kusin, 8-6, 6-0.

So it will be Fudickar and Troy in the men's singles championship finals this afternoon at 2 o'clock on the Forsythe Park courts.

Although Billy McDowell, Tulane netter, and his partner, B. B. Lewis are already in the championship finals of men's doubles, they must await he outcome of a semi-final match that sends Paul Keller and Ed Villa against Gene B. Demmary and Harmon Eaves before knowing who their opponents will be in the finals match scheduled for 3:30 o'clock.

Keller and Villa, top seeded in doubles competition, earned the semi-final shot at Demmary and Eaves, unseeded, by taking a default yesterday from the combination of Louis Kusin and J. B. Fudickar.

Semi-final matches in junior doubles were also run off yesterday as Gene Demmary, tournament director, kept play moving at a fast pace. Result sof the boys' matches lines up R. Abraham and R. F. Seiler against Ralph Troy and Gatzoulas in the championship doubles finals today.

Abraham and Seiler had to battle three hours yesterday morning to dispose of John Culpepper and Barlow Inabnet, Jr., 9-7, 4-6, 6-3, and the Troy Gatzoulas combine conquered James Leak and Dan Bivins, Jr., 6-4, 6-4.

Culpepper and Troy had gained the junior singles finals earlier in the week, and they also square off today in their title engagement.

The lineup for today's matches at the Forsythe courts was announced as follows:

10:30 a. m.—Junior singles championship, John Culpepper vs Ralph Troy.

12:30 p. m.—Men's doubles semi-final, Keller-Villa vs. Demmary-Eaves.

2 p. m.—Men's singles championship, Fudickar vs. Dick Troy.

3 p. m.—Junior doubles championship, Abraham-Seiler vs. R. Troy-Gatzoulas.

DARKHORSES IN FINALS

Overlooked in the pre-tourney seeding, B. B. Lewis and Billy McDowell, left to right above, pulled one of the upsets of the Twin City Tennis Tournament early last week when they upset second seeded Dick Troy and Darwin Nichols to gain the double championship finals today. Their finals opponent this afternoon will be determined in an earlier match that sends Gene B. Demmary and Harmon Eaves against Paul Keller and Ed Villa.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

by Hugh S. Fullerton, Jr.

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—(AP)—Arturo Godoy, who was scheduled to fight Maynard Jones in Wilmington, Del., Monday, has decided to retire from the ring instead . . . Maybe Godoy, who'll be 39 in a couple of months and who has been fighting since 1931, decided its better to be in Chile than to be chilled . . . Of course, they could always match him with Jersey Joe Walcott for the veteran's singles championship . . . Although Oklahoma U. is rated among the top five football teams this season by most observers, one of this corner's Southwestern scouts offers a small bet that the Sooners don't do half as well as expected . . . The Detroit Lions squad has an average of one and one-tenth years per man experience in the National Football League. That probably means a lot of unpleasant experiences for the rookies.

Sports Before Your Eyes

Eddie Compo, who fights Willie Pep in Waterbury, Conn., Tuesday, likes to have some 50 relatives on hand when he goes into action . . . Presumably they all get Compo-mentary tickets. . . . The Merion Golf Club, where 15-year-old Marlene Bauer went to the semi-finals of the women's national championship, is the same place where Bobby Jones first qualified for the men's amateur at the age of 14 . . . Don Novak, captain of the 1949 Army soccer team, is the son of Leo Novak, Army track coach. Leo probably gets quite a kick out of watching him play . . . Frank Murray, veteran Marquette U. coach, expects to have an entirely defenseless team this year. He has adopted the word "counter offense" instead. And we suppose his scouts engage in counter-espionage.

Rackety Rax, Unlax

Chief Boston, New Hampshire football coach, has emphasized relaxation this season even to the extent of giving his athletes special exercises to keep them "loose." . . . Boston had just finished an oration on the subject recently and turned to see a lad who was supposed to be playing defensive halfback catch the ball and then stand still. "It's like this coach," stammered the embarrassed player. "I was relaxing, and I couldn't unlax."

Weak End Notes

Mose Simms sends word that the high school all-American all-star game at Corpus Christi, Tex., last month will be repeated next year, either in the same town or some place else . . . The Yankees tried to get Vern Mackie, Lunchburg Cardinals' pilot, to manage the Newark Bears this season. Both Mackie and the Cards organization nixed the deal, which means Vern likely will move up a few steps next year . . . Harry (Polysyllabic) Balogh has been hired as guest announcer for the Lee Sala-Herb Kronowitz fight in Schenectady, N. Y., next Wednesday. It would be worth going just to hear Harry pronounce Schenectady.

OUACHITA LOOP STARTING TITLE PLAYOFF TODAY

Southside, Liberty In First Game Of Final Series At Memorial Stadium

Southside of Monroe and Liberty appear at Legion Memorial Stadium here this afternoon at 3 o'clock in the opening game of the final series for the championship of the Ouachita Valley Baseball League.

Both clubs won their places in the finals with straight semi-final wins over Prairie Road, eliminated by Liberty, and the Monroe Rockets, bounced out of the picture by the red hot Southside club which is favored to sweep through to the championship.

Both Southside and Liberty finished their regular schedule tied for first place with Southside making a late rush with a strengthened club to attain a share of the top spot.

Joe Haddad, serving his first season as president of the league, last night said he wished to thank fans of this area for their support of the league this year and said he expected some of the season's best crowds to turn out for the championship finals.

Lineups for this afternoon's contest were announced as follows:

Liberty — Hattaway, right field; White, catcher; Foust, second base; Kelly, third base; Crocker, shortstop; Sanford, first base; Dyer, pitcher; Brownlee, centerfield; and Simms, left field.

Crowville Beats Clarks On Rain-Soaked Field, 7-0

CLARKS, La., Sept. 17.—(Special)—After three quarters of a see-saw battle in the mud of a rain-drenched field here last night, the Crowville Bulldogs came through with a long touchdown run in the final period to defeat the Clarks Lumberjacks, 7 to 0.

Royce Parker, Bulldog halfback, broke into the clear for a 75-yard touchdown run that enabled Crowville to claim the victory. End J. D. French converted with a place kick.

The rain left a well-soaked field and one end of the gridiron was completely submerged from the 30-yard stripe to the goalline.

Defensive play by Halfback Marion Guy and Parker and French, linebackers, kept the Lumberjacks from marching against the visitors.

Crowville will be at home to Sicily Island next Friday, while Clarks will be meeting Farmerville here.

Deacons Due In Southern Football Loop

By Robert L. Moore
(Associated Press Newsfeatures)

RICHMOND, Va.—Wake Forest's Deacons stand out like coach D. C. (Peahead) Walker's fancy shirts and ties.

It would cause only a mild surprise if the Deacons succeed Clemson's Tigers as gridiron champions of the Southern Conference.

D. C. Walker

Of course, that may raise an eyebrow or two in the peaceful village of Chapel Hill, N. C., where All-America Halfback Charlie (Choo-Choo) Justice is back to guide North Carolina's Tar Heels for another campaign.

The Tar Heels, though, have been left with some gaping holes in the line and backfield, which Coach Carl Snavely will have to plug with untested sophomores. The prognosticators have it that the tight-lipped Snavely won't be able to field near the club that lost to Oklahoma in the Sugar Bowl.

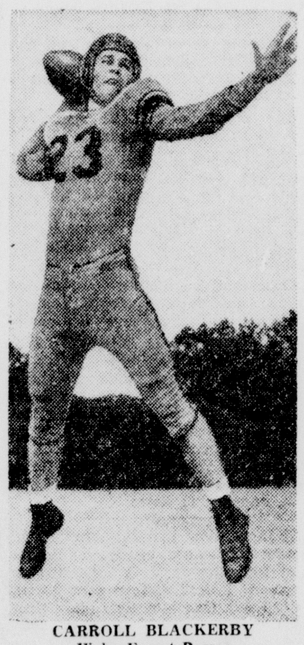
In fact, the 16-team loop may end the season something like this—

1—Wake Forest.
2—William and Mary.
3—Clemson.
4—North Carolina.

The Deacons will have to depend on some sophomores themselves. But what sophomores they are! Walker has some fast breakaway backs in William (Nub) Smith, labeled by many as another Justice; Francis Scarton, Johnny Solek and Charles (Bozo) Robertson. This 1949 Deacon outfit likely will be the fastest Wake Forest eleven in a decade.

Forming the backbone will be Bill Gregus, halfback, who led the nation in kickoff returns and pranced 717 yards in 143 thrusts last season for an average of five yards per carry; John (Red) O'Quinn, right end, who topped the nation's pass receivers with 39 catches for 605 yards and seven touchdowns, and Quarterback Carroll Blackerby, who completed 47 out of 94 passes for 650 yards and six touchdowns. The line will be bolstered by such veterans as Tackles Bill George and Tom Palmer, Guard Ray Cicia and End Jim Duncan and O'Quinn.

William and Mary Coach R. N. (Rube) McCray is building around hard-plunging Jack (Flying) Cloud, a fine fullback who was injured last season and wasn't what he might have been. The Rube will operate with few seasoned reserves but the Tribe will be able to field a line averaging 215 pounds. Along the line are Tackle Lou Creekmur, Guards George Hughes and James McDowell and End Vito Ragazzo.



CARROLL BLACKERBY
Wake Forest Passer

There's gloom at Clemson in that Bobby Gage is gone. But Coach Frank Howard has a brilliant tailback in Ray Mathews and what he regards as the very best in fullbacks in Fred Cone. Gene Moore will be at center and John Poulos at left end. Howard's big problems are the guards and tackles, right end and those other two backfield slots. Clemson starts with a record of 14 successive victories.

North Carolina lost 21 lettermen and 16 were stars in Snavely's "two-platoon" system. Only nine players who saw considerable service on last year's squad are back.

Justice, the terrific triple-threat, will be playing his fourth year. Art Weiner is around at end again to snatch Justice's passes. Two other ends, Ken Powell and place-kicking expert Bob Cox, are back. Bill Wardle is the only guard letterman. Seasoned tackles just aren't there. Hosea Rodgers, passing fullback, is gone.

Thumbnail sketches of the other clubs:

North Carolina State—All-Southern Bernie Watts and Charlie Musser are back at the guards, and State will have one of the conference's best lines. The Wolfpack needs only to prove itself offensively. Experienced backs are Ogden Smith, Ed Mooney, Bill Thompson, Jim O'Rourke, Dick Johnson, Bob Bowlby and Paul Carlson. Coach Beattie Feathers is optimistic.

Virginia Tech — Speedster Sterling Wingo should have his best year. Tech is strong at ends and in the backfield. Line replacements are Coach Bob McNeish's worry. But he's sure the Gobblers will be better.

Duke—Wallace Wade's team is improved, but it's still a year—maybe two seasons—away from being the Blue Devils of prewar years. Wade thinks Wingback Jack Friedlund and Tackle Louis Allen may go places.

Maryland—The main cog in the Old Liner's will be a tackle, Ray Krouse, 245-pounder. Joe Tucker replaces Vic Turyn at quarterback in Coach Jim Tatum's split-T. Tatum says, "We'll have a good year . . ."

The Citadel—Coach Quinn Decker figures his team will be the best since the war. Triple-threater Curtis Bozeman is the big hope.

Davidson—The Wildcats have one of the best passers in the country in Auburn Lambeth. Otherwise, Coach Charlie Jamerson is depending mostly on sophomores.

South Carolina—If the Gamecocks can muster some defense, they may be dangerous. Fine backs include Harold Hagan, Roger Wilson, Steve Wadiak, Bishop Strickland and Harry De Loach. The line is a question mark.

George Washington — Handy Andy Davis, a sophomore, does just about everything a great back should do. Except for Andy, the Colonials will have to prove themselves.

Virginia Military Institute—Passin' Bob Thomason is gone. So are 12 other lettermen. The Keydets have a new coach in Tom Nugent. They may be in for a rough campaign.

University of Richmond—The Spiders lack depth at all forward wall posts. In the backfield they will have to develop a passer and a kicker.

Washington And Lee—George Barclay, former line coach at Maryland, is the new boss of the Generals. He'll install the split-T.

Furman—The Purple Hurricane is still in the building process under Coach Herman E. (Red) Smith.

PIRATES JOLT DODGERS; BRAVES STOP CARDS

WESTLAKE TRIPLE WITH 3 ON BASES HANDS BUCS GAME

National Leaders Hold Margin Despite 4-2 Loss To Bostonians

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 17.—(AP)—Pittsburgh jolted Brooklyn's pennant hopes again today with a five-run splurge in the seventh inning that brought the Pirates a 7-2 victory over the Dodgers. Wally Westlake tripled with the bases loaded to feature the big seventh.

Wally Westlake

Little Murry Dickson handcuffed the Dodgers with five hits while his mates teed off on two of Brooklyn's three hurlers for 13.

It was the second straight triumph for the Pirates over Brooklyn. They shellacked the runner-up club 9-2 last night.

The loss temporarily dropped the Dodgers three games behind the league-leading St. Louis Cards who played Boston this afternoon.

The score was tied at 2-2 when Pittsburgh went to work in the seventh on Erv Palica, who relieved Jack Banta in the fourth.

Stan Rojek's single, Tom Saffell's walk and a safe bunt by Johnny Hopp loaded the bases for Westlake. He cleared the sacks with a three-bagger to the exit gate in right center. Monty Basgall's single scored Westlake and Basgall came home on Clyde McCullough's triple.

Green Wave Lineup To Look Like 1948

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 17.—(AP)—Tulane Coach Henry Frnka hasn't said who will make his starting eleven this season, but there has been little to indicate it won't look about like the team that Frnka used toward the close of the 1948 season.

Workouts today showed improvement in almost every department since the Wave opened the preseason drills. The team looked ragged much of the time and still has a lot of work to do before reaching last year's form.

At ends were Dick Sheffield and Rex Partridge, at tackles Max Druen and Dan Rogas, at guards Bob Franz and Dennis Doyle, and at center George Maddox.

Backs used were Joe Ernst, George Kinek, Bill Svoboda and Eddie Price.

Frnka's defensive eleven is still uncertain as the Wave continues to practice against the split "T" and Notre Dame offenses they expect to come from Alabama on Sept. 24 in Mobile.

THEY DIRECT TALLULAH TROJANS

Planning the strategy for Tallulah High School's Trojans in the grid wars this year are, left to right, Assistant Coach M. C. Stone and Head Coach H. D. Payne. They saw their charges successfully past Byran High of Jackson, Miss., at Tallulah Friday night, and send the Trojans against Oak Grove next Friday. Payne has been Tallulah coach since leaving a similar job at Neville of Monroe in 1945.

ESTES, HARRELL TO AGAIN MEET LAYE, STEDDUM

Billy Byargeon To Break In As Referee; Al Getz Handles Main Event

The success of last week's tag team wrestling scramble, a thriller from start to finish, resulted in Promoter Gus Kallio billing a repeat performance with the same lineup for his main event on Tuesday night's mat card here.

"The fans commented so favorably on the relay battle, many of them asking for a repeat performance, that it looks like our best bet for a good show this week," Promoter Kallio said.

The match sends Charlie Laye, former world's light heavyweight champion, and "Wild Bill" Steddum against the combination of Henry Harrell and Balk Estes.

Last Tuesday night Estes and Harrell won in straight falls, but it was one of the fastest and hardest fought matches that Kallio has been able to boast in some time. Steddum, the crafty Texan, and Laye might just as well have won—it was that colse.

Following the same pattern as last week, Promoter Kallio didn't let the wrestlers talk him into matches to settle personal grudges. Kallio figured he saw a good thing, merely asked the battlers individually if they could be back, and once he had them signed up went ahead with his plans for the tag team scramble. Laye, however, was unable to assure Kallio he would be back until yesterday afternoon.

"Those punks got almost too unruly out there," Steddum declared in trying to explain last week's loss a few minutes after retiring to the showers. "But Charlie and I could keep them in line if the referee would just keep awake."

Al Getz, the Pittsburgh wrestler turned referee who handled the match, heard Steddum's remarks, challenged his claims, and the Texan claimed the referee had laid in one corner so long that he figured he was taking a nap. (In all fairness to Getz, he had caught an accidental punch on the jaw that floored him, and was piled up in a daze in one corner for a minute or two before he could get his bearings.)

Laye, making his belated agreement to show here yesterday, was informed that a tag match was lined up and he would work with Steddum. He complained that Steddum "made me do too much wrestling last Tuesday, liking to hold a corner post too well" but that he was satisfied to go along with the Texan in his corner.

Kallio also announced he will be breaking in a new referee this week.

Al Getz will be back to handle the feature attraction, but Billy Byargeon, heavyweight boxer of Bastrop, will be on hand to work a pair of one-fall preliminaries that will open the show at 8:15 o'clock.

"Byargeon will be new at the game, but he looks big enough to take care of himself if he gets in the middle of any mixups," Kallio declared.

Rice And Baylor Seniors, Or Texas Sophs Can End Walker-S. M. U. Reign

'Team With Passer Will Go Furtherest In Southwest,' Says Neely

By Clark Nealon

HOUSTON, Tex.—(NEA)—It's perfectly normal down here in the Southwest Conference where they play do-or-die football every Saturday in a compact, seven-team circuit, but the closer the gridiron season gets, the more observers you find throwing up their hands over picking the winner.

And it's just as hard to pick who's distance forecast-going to finish last.

Doak Walker

Jess Neely of Rice and Bob Woodruff of Baylor emphatically call it the "best balanced race in years."

Neely goes further to say: "The team that comes up with the best passer may go all the way."

Through the long ing of spring and summer, practically all the fans settled on Southern Methodist's two-time champion Mustangs.

Didn't S. M. U. have the Magician of the Chalklines, Doak Walker, returning for a final shot? Didn't Coach Maty Bell have Kyle Rce, Dick McKissack, some sprightly sophomores and a whole sextet of veteran ends?

But, as the season drew nigh, the boys began to notice that Rice had 22 seniors, 12 seeking their fourth letter. That Baylor has 23 seniors, five of them chasing their fourth college award, and another Adrian Burk, being heralded in some quarters as the greatest passer since Sammy Baugh.

No less an authority than Jack Russell, former Baylor end now with the Brooklyn-New York Football Club, and a star on Randolph Field's great wartime Ramblers, is the observer who made that statement about Burk.

The slim Baylor man under 6-2 and 190, completed 68 out of 137 passes last season for 665 yards and four touchdowns. That was his first year playing the T-formation. He was a wingback in junior college.

The "lookers," are taking stock of the fine group of Texas sophomores, 24 of 'em, and arguing that the Texas openers with Texas Tech, Temple and Idaho may be just what the Longhorns need to be ready for the Oklahoma powerhouse, fourth team on the schedule.

Texas has no real shortage of lettermen—16 returning from the Orange Bowl champions of last Jan. 1. The Longhorn sophomores are not the ordinary ilk, either. They're handpicked, generally agreed to be the pick of the state's classy scholastic league.

T. C. U. also is gaining supporters, who notice that Lindy Berry is back with his yard-eating maneuvers in triple-threat chores. Then, there's John Medanich, a feared running back, and Harold Kilman, a veteran tackle returning after a year lost in scholastic ineligibility.

This season, even after two years of Doak Walker-S. M. U. domination, Southwest Conference fans are getting the jump on themselves.

They're confused before the race starts. It will be worse after the first few Saturdays of typical gridiron throat-cuttin'.

Giants Too Tough For Farmerville

FARMERVILLE, La., Sept. 17.—(Special)—The Jena High School Giants, presenting a fast first team that played only half the game, defeated the Farmerville High School Farmers here last night, 32 to 12.

The Giants left no doubt about the outcome as they scored four touchdowns in the first quarter, turned the second period over to reserves who permitted two Farmerville touchdowns, and returned to the game for the third quarter only to tally twice more.

A 47-yard end run by Doyle Carter set up Jena's first touchdown as Carter romped the remaining 22 yards around left ned to score. Then Junior Smith blocked a Farmerville punt on the Farmers' 30, and on the third play from scrimmage Allen Coleman passed 21 yards to Smith for the second touchdown.

Thompson, a few moments later, covered a Farmerville fumble on the local 31, and two plays later it was Albert Lutrick around left end for 12 yards and paydirt. Lutrick ran for the point.

Before the first period ended, Vance Cupples intercepted a Farmerville pass on his own 30 and ran it back to Farmerville's 16. Coy Scarber circled right end to tally, and Don Taylor hit the line for the point that gave Jena a 26-0 lead going into the second quarter.

With the Giant regulars resting, Farmerville began to click, Ramsay passing to Hamm for 34 yards and a setup on the Jena four. Ramsay bucked center to score. A few minutes later Farmerville blocked a punt on the Jena 45. Five running plays took the ball to the ten from where Ramsay passed to Hamm for the second touchdown and the half ended with Jena out in front, 26-12.

Jena's reserves finished the game after a third period Jena touchdown by Gerald Davis on a 24-yard end run after the Gionts covered a Farmer fumble on the local 45.

MORAL VICTORIES HEADLINE SCRAPS IN CLASS AA PLAY

Three Underdog Eleven Battle Favored Foes To Deadlocks Friday

(By Associated Press)

Moral victories were the order of the day in Louisiana Class AA football circles Friday night.

Three underdog double-A teams battled favored opponents to tie games. The biggest surprise came when Istrouma of Baton Rouge, rated a 22-4 favorite, was held to a 19-19 deadlock by a supposedly weak Jennings eleven.

Bolton of Alexandria, a 5-21 underdog, held favored Baton Rouge to take the same tie score.

Lafayette High and Bishop Byrne of Port Arthur, Texas, fought to a 0-0 draw. The Texans were favored 3-2 over the Louisiana double-A team.

In other double-A conference games Bogalusa beat Jesuit of New Orleans 18-7 and Lake Charles beat Terrebonne of Houma, 26-12.

Only one AA team lost to an outsider. The favored Fortier Tarpons of New Orleans fell before Port Arthur, Texas, High 7-0.

Louisiana AA loop teams winning over out of state or lower ranking schools were Fair Park of Shreveport 22, Smackover, Ark., 6; Haynesville 12, Ruston 6; and Sulphur 21, DeQuincy 0.

Adding to the parade of upset ties, Ouachita of Monroe fought Bossier City's Class A Bearkats to a 13-13 tie Thursday night. The class A squad had been favored by a 2-1 margin.

Istrouma's Indians had to come from behind to gain a tie with the badly underrated Jennings squad.

All of the Jennings touchdowns came on passes. Al Johnson passed to Buddy Cassidy for the first, then James Bujol came back to toss one to Ronnie Oertling. The last came from Johnson to Norman Mohar.

Istrouma scored twice on passes from Pete McCulley to Charles White

Nip And Tuck Faces Swartz Nine Today

The baseball rivalry between Swartz and Nip and Tuck will be resumed this afternoon at 3o'clock at Sterlington with Swartz still seeking its first win of the year over their Little Eight League rivals.

In an effort to get some measure of revenge, Swartz will send Paul Cook, recently of Paris, Tex., in the East Texas League, to the mound against the Nip and Tuck club. The Union parish team plans to use Charles Rugg, former Farmerville American Legion Junior ace and late of the Brooklyn farm club at Sheboygan, Wis., where he won eight and lost four, as pitcher.

It may be a rough day for batters with Cook and Rugg in opposing corners.

Also in the Nip and Tuck lineup will be James Pace, also an ex-Farmerville American Legion Junior player who performed this year with the Columbia Ramblers, champions of the Northeast Louisiana League, where he batted .346 and played second base.

Nip and Tuck also will play Calhoun, another Little Eight League rival, in an exhibition Thursday night at Cloyd's Park, West Monroe, beginning at 7:45 o'clock.

Neyland Not Impressed By Tennessee Showing

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Sept. 17.—(AP)—The Tennessee Vols scored six touchdowns on the freshmen in a game scrimmage today, but Coach Bob Neyland and his coaching staff were not pleased with the results.

"The freshmen outplayed us at times," said Neyland. "We were ragged in our passing, our timing was off, the running wasn't up to par, and there were too many fumbles.

"If we turn in the same kind of exhibition next Saturday Mississippi State will beat the stuffing out of us."

N. J. C. INDIANS AWAIT EAST OKLAHOMA VISIT

REDSKINS OPEN GRID CAMPAIGN IN FRIDAY GAME

Injuries Causing Coach Malone Concern As Initial Battle Nears

With the Indians' season opener less than a week away—Friday night with East Oklahoma A. and M. to be exact—the injury refrain is being sung at Northeast Junior College of L. S. U. where Coach James L. Malone appears to be worrying more about his cripples than a rapidly approaching ball game.

Off hand ti looks like the Tribe may be in for a rough night right from the start. East Oklahoma presented a rugged team last year, battling N. J. C. to a scoreless tie and then going on to win consideration for a Junior Sugar Bowl date until suffering its lone defeat in the final game of the schedule, and the Oklahomans are again being regarded as a formidable junior college array.

The game, first of seven straight at home for the Redmen, will be played at Brown Field here, beginning at 8 o'clock Friday night.

Injuries that began cropping up in workouts early the past week caused Coach Malone to slow the pace, hopeing that the cripples would round back into shape. Signal drills and light dummy offensive and defensive work has figured in the workouts the last couple of days, but Malone has used the time to stress offensive timing to see that his plays are being run off with as near perfection as possible.

The injuries, ranging from carbuncles on the elbow to charley horses in both legs and fractures, run something like this, according to the last count, Malone says:

"Dub" Rush, promising back, pulled ligaments in both legs.

Ernest "Buster" King, slated for starting duty in the backfield, ankle trouble and going with both tightly taped.

Vince Zappoine, dislocated shoulder.

Emmett Long, back, pulled ligaments in the legs.

Lester Phelps, bruised hip.

Lloyd Ray, carbuncle on elbow keeping him out of rough work.

Gene Smith, fractured arm and out for season.

Buster King, former Ouachita High School star, Harry Hubenthal and Lynn Nix are going neck and neck at the left half slot. They will see plenty of action against East Oklahoma A. and M. King was on the bench most of this past week with a pair or bad ankles, but he seemed to be running with his usual stride yesterday. Whether he will get his speed up to par remains to be seen.

Malone did not mention any standout in the front line, but he said that the squad on the whole needed more polish. He used yesterday's hard scrimmage to smooth off the offensive attack and also to sharpen up the defense. Very few of his squad headed for any Saturday night dates or movies; they were too tired. An interesting sidelight on the degree of fatigue was shown at the training table. Lynn Nix was pouring his milk into his glass, but the glass was turned upside down. His gridmates blamed him for falling asleep at the meal table.

This coming week will give the Tribesmen their first good test. East Oklahoma will invade Brown Stadium with practically the same grid machine that tied the Tribesmen last fall.

The Indians will face them with a new team except at quarterback and right half. The strong East Oakies cannot be considered a breather for the Kilgore game the following Friday night at Brown Stadium, because they are being rated from the beginning as a team that must be beaten before passing into a higher bracket.

Nevertheless Malone stated yesterday, "I don't know how many games my squad will win, but I do know that I hav a team showing more hustle than I have seen in a long time anywhere."

Malone has hopes that his cripples, excepting Smith, will be ready for service Friday.

Only 24 gridders were physically able to get into the practice drills yesterday.

Malone said yesterday that his squad is not in shape, but with some hard conditioning this week they will round into fair condition. The weather has been too warm for football training and the Indians are hoping for a change to cooler days.

Disregarding the sweltering heat the past week, and especially yesterday, the Indians showed more hustle and stamina than any other squad under Malone's tutelage, he said. After the scrimmage yesterday afternoon, it would give any coach a few added problems when he arrives at the time to choose his squad. Every would-be or will-be gridder was fighting down to the end of the rope for a chance to demonstrate his best ability to gain a starting assignment in the season's opener.

Most impressive in the practice scrimmage was Ray Wegley who made several beautiful runs through the defense. Ray was only a third string guard on the Indians' 1948 grid squad, and now he is pushing all candidates for the starting birth on the 1949 team. He is a short stocky lad, tipping the scales at 170 pounds. His teammates have tagged on an appropriate nickname, "Wiggley Wegley." Dub Rush has been moved from right half to fullback recently because of his hard running. He is battling with Wegley, Jim Malone, Jr. and Hickey Bell, a brother of "Terrapin" Bell, the Tribe's right end last year.

Malone has not decided who will be his regular fullback for Friday night's game. All have been doing fine work in the practice sessions.

At right half Ernie Murphree, Lewis Phelps and Ed Polinsky have been grooming into some choice backs. Murphee looks to be a much improved ball player over last year. If Ernie hits his stride, he will cause plenty of trouble for his opponents. Phelps is on the sidelines with a carbuncle that is healing rapidly. Little Ed Polinsky is very much in the struggle despite his small frame. Polinsky weighs about 155 pounds and is an elusive runner difficult to bring to the ground.

GRAYSON'S SCOREBOARD

By Harry Grayson

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—(NEA)—Without varsity game, everybody who has seen him agrees that Vic Janowicz, Ohio State's 185-pound sophomore fullback is great.

The can get very high on kids, especially at schools so eager to get back on the glory road as Ohio State.

One veteran coach predicts that young Janowicz will be better than was Chick Harley, but, of course, that is highly debatable.

Old Buckeyes and a lot of other people have been looking for another Harley since the fabulous home-grown hung up his tack 30 years ago.

Minnesota men are wondering what happened to their fullback punch. Down through the years, the Golden Gophers always have had a whale to ram through the middle—Joesting Nagurski, Kostka, Daley, a long line.

And it makes Bernie Bierman sick to think of what any one of them could do supported by the present Minnesota line.

Put one of them behind these Gopher forwards, and they'd drive from Minneapolis to Pasadena without stooping for a deep breath.

Give Michigan a quarterback and the Wolverines will be tough.

That will do as the understatement of the year.

But if the Wolves tie, or exceed the 29-game skein compiled by Hurry Up Yost's point-a-minute men of 1901-2-3, they will indeed be champions. To equal that streak, they'll have to bag six, and successfully hurdle Michigan State, Stanford, Army, Northwestern and Minnesota in the process.

The speed of 1948 Cajtain Dom Tomasi may be missed at guard. The watch-charm kid, strongly remindful of Notre Dame's Bert Metzger of earlier times was, for his bulk, 178, one of the most formidable blockers in the business. Lloyd Heneveld, a 195-pound blond letterman of Holland, Mich., is being groomed for his spot.

Tulane opens against Alabama, then challenges Georgia Tech, the only team to repel the Wave in 1948. Henry Frnka's lads toy with Southeast Louisiana the third Saturday while preparing for the invasion of South Bend.

We need go no farther with the schedule.

If Tulane survives Notre Dame with national championship hopes, New Orleans will know it has quite a football team.

Alabama, as they say in Dixie, is hiding in the weeds, but Red Drew has a good first-string line, and a half dozen backs who can run. Ed Salem and sophomore J. D. Roddam will alternate as the triple threat. Tom Calvin has won the fullback job, and Bill Cadenhead gets the call at wingback. Drew has ends to match the slicket—Rebel Steiner and Ed White.

Alabama opens against Tulane and Vanderbilt, leaving little time for suspense.

Texas Steers Massacre Texas Tech Eleven, 43-0

AUSTIN, Tex., Sept. 17.—(AP)—The University of Texas opened its 1949 football season today with a 43-0 massacre of Texas Tech.

Use of third and fourth string Longhorns did not slow the scoring pace. The near 95-degree temperature was rough on the Red Raiders from Lubbock, Tex. The couldn't gain when they moved near the Texas 20.

Fullback Lewis Levine of Harlington, Tex., starting in place of Ray Borneman, initialed the scoring. His seven-yard cross buck at left tackle climaxed a 47-yard drive in the first period.

As 28,000 fans watched in Memorial Stadium the Longhorns scored in every period.

Rain Helps L. S. U. Tigers Break In New Uniforms

BATON ROUGE, La., Sept. 17.—(AP)—A sudden rainstorm today helped Louisiana State's gridders take the stiffness out of their new game uniforms.

The Bayou Bengals donned the new duds to dirty them. Laundered later, they wouldn't feel so snug and brand-new when the Tigers play Kentucky Sept. 24.

Columbia Smothers Marksville, 34 To 0

COLUMBIA, La., Sept. 17.—(Special)—With their regulars playing less than a full quarter all night, the Columbia High School Crimson Tide rolled through Marksville, 34 to 0, here last night.

Three rapid-fire touchdowns before the game was eight minutes old put Columbia well in front, and Coach Woodrow Turner let his reserves finish out the scrap except for a brief show of the regulars again in the last five minutes.

Marksville fumbled the opening kickoff, and Hopper then scored for Columbia on the second play of the game. Smith, quarterback, added the point.

Another Marksville fumble, recovered by the Tide, set up a 25-yard touchdown run for Holiday who also scored again before the quarter was over. Hopped added the point after Holiday's first goal-crossing, and Meredith converted behind the second as Turner withdrew his regulars.

The second stringers added seven more points when Watson went over for a touchdown, and Perry followed with the conversion.

When the regulars returned in the last five minutes they deserted ground plays entirely, throwing nothing but passes, to add one more touchdown on a pass, Hopper to Holiday. Try for the point failed.

Columbia has an open date next weekend, but will use the time to prepare for the Tide's opening Class B conference game at Ferriday, September 30.

Razorbacks' T-Machine Grinds Out Touchdowns

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark., Sept. 17.—(AP)—The Arkansas Razorbacks sprung 14 touchdowns from their new T formation today in a 2 1/2-hour scrimmage under game conditions.

The first three elevens, pitted against the next three, scored 13 of the TD's.

Notable was the full speed running of first-string fullback Leon (Muscles) Campbell, who wears a special truss because of a recurring hernia. He scored two touchdowns, one on a 60-yard broken field jaunt.

Arkansas will open the season against North Texas State at Little Rock next Saturday night.

FIRST IN MOBILE

TUSCALOOSA, Ala.—Although Alabama and Tulane have played 22 previous games this year's season opener for both teams will mark the first time the two schools have ever played in Mobile. Of the 22 past games 15 were played in New Orleans, four in Tuscaloosa and three in Birmingham with Alabama winning 15, losing six and tying one.

Vandy Isn't Pleased With Fullback Setup

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Sept. 17.—(AP)—The fullback position, a key spot in Vanderbilt's new T formation, is causing Coach Bill Edwards more than casual concern.

Even though the Commodores slaughtered the freshmen today in a full dress scrimmage, Edwards said he's not satisfied with the performance of Fullbacks Irvin Berry and Dean Davidson.

Manganese was first discovered in 1774.

Maroons Polish Up For Tennessee Date

STATE COLLEGE, Miss., Sept. 17.—(AP)—Mississippi State's Maroons went through a rugged two-hour scrimmage drill today in preparation for the season inaugural against Tennessee Sept. 24. Special stress was placed on the passing attack.

Don Robinson and Max Stainbrook, a pair of Memphis boys, were operating at the vital "T" quarterback slot and doing most of the chunking. Murry Alexander, Art Tait and Fred Dreyspring, all ends, were on the receiving end.

Last year the Maroons scored a 21-6 win over the Vols. However, 22 lettermen, including the entire backfield, are missing.

Coach Arthur (Slick) Morton is well pleased with the condition and spirit shown by the varsity squad of 41 men, smallest in the Southeastern Conference.

Three rough workouts are scheduled for the first part of the week aimed at stopping Tennessee's attack. The team will taper off Thursday and leave early Friday for Knoxville.

Berry Leads Horned Frogs Past Kansas Jayhawks, 28-0

LAWRENCE, Kans., Sept. 17.—(AP)—Lindy Berry's spotty but timely passing and a methodical ground attack rolled the Texas Christian University Horned Frogs to a 28-0 victory over the Kansas Jayhawks in a season football opener for both teams today.

Some 32,000 fans, a record opening home attendance for Kansas football, sat under overcast skies and watched Berry, 175-pounder from Wichita, Falls, Tex., engineer the Frogs to a 21-0 halftime lead.

He was over from the five yard line after eight minutes of play and ran back an intercepted pass forty-yards in the final period.

In between Berry's touchdown, T. C. U. scored with Rookie Quarterback Don Wilde going 26-yards and sophomore Fullback John Morton cracking over from the one-foot line. Both came in the second quarter.

After each touchdown, squatty Homer (The Toe) Ludiker placekicked squarely between the bars.

Score by quarter:

T. C. U	7	14	0	7—28
K. U.	0	0	0	0—0

T. C. U. scoring: touchdowns, Berry 2; Morton, Wilde (sub for Berry). Points after touchdowns, Ludiker 4 (placement).

MORAL VICTORIES

and then made the tying touchdown on a 40-yard run by Pete Meliet.

The Bolton-Baton Rouge affair was the second game for both teams and left each still seeking a victory although undefeated. Bolton was tied by Neville of Monroe last week, while Baton Rouge fought to a draw with McComb, Miss.

Big I. E. Schroll, younger brother of Louisiana State's former stars, Chuck and Bill, made all 19 points for the Alexandrians. He plunged six yards to draw first blood in the opening period, plunged from the two and then added the extra point in the second. He drove across from the one in the fourth.

Baton Rouge, trailing 13-0, scored first on a pass from Donnie Dedon to Charles Walker, then again on an aerial from Tubby Watson to R. J. Bourgeois.

Then after Schroll's last T. D., Baton Rouge drew to within one point of the Bears when Don Turner went over from the two. Dedon ran across the point that knotted the count.

Long scoring dashes made the Lake Charles Terrebonne game a thriller. The Lake Charles team had too many guns for the visitors, however.

Terrebonne scored first on an 83 yard run by Billy Juenke, but Lake Charles came back on the power running of Dick Butchee and the elusive snaking of Charles Oakley.

Oakley scored again in the third on a 54-yard dash. A 77-yard return of an intercepted pass by Guard Jesse Storts ended the Lake Charles scoring.

Houma counted again on Juenke's seven yard end tour near the close of the game.

Bogalusa lived up to pre-game billing by taking Jesuit with a touchdown to spare.

Jesuit scored its only touchdown in only two plays after the game started. Ray Rocker dashed 54 yards for the score, with Clancy Dupepe bucking across the extra point.

Bogalusa came back to tally in five plays, with Star Halfback Ray Billings going over from the 16. Billings repeated in the third with a 28 yard offtackle dash and in the fourth on a 50 yard sprint.

Fortier's favored Tarpons were no match for the Port Arthur, Texas, but it took a break to set up the Jackets' only tally. A poor Fortier punt went just over the line of scrimmage and the Texans recovered on the Tarp 26. From there Frank Ediom took the ball inside the ten and Gail Mills scored.

Lafayette and Bishop Byrne splashed around in the mud a lot, but the white stripes in the end zone remained unsoiled. The Texas Catholic school outrushed the Louisianians, but got no farther than the 22, 8 and 15 yard lines.

However, Lafayette did score one marker, but Val Myers' 92-yard punt return was called back by an offsides penalty.

Fair Park was in command all the way in defeating Smackover, Ark. The Indians triple-threat star, Walter Crain, took a hand in all three touchdowns.

He ran the first from the 15, then passed to Buddy Embry for the other two. Two extra points and a safety accounted for the other four Fair Park points.

Smackover tallied in the third on a 46-yard drive with F. Welch going over.

All three touchdowns in the Haynesville-Ruston game came in the second quarter. The winning Haynesville eleven scored on a six yard push by Grady Davis and a 17 yard pass from M. D. Ray to James Cook.

Ruston, a Class A power, made their touchdown after recovering a bad Haynesville punt on the Haynesville 31. Stinson took the ball over.

A game DeQuincy team battled favored Sulphur to a 0-0 tie at halftime but the power of the Tornado was too great.

Sulphur got six points on a plunge by Johnny Hebert from the four. After that Pete Miller ran 65 yards for the second and A. D. Duhon went over from the six after a march from the Sulphur 35.

TUSCALOOSA, Ala.—Only nine seniors are listed on the University of Alabama's 1949 football roster. Out of the 65 candidates for the Crimson Tide squad, 32 are sophomores and 24 are juniors.

'BAMA PROMISES WAVE SURPISE IN PUNTING GAME

Brown, Over Freshman Jitters, Will Be Kicking Again For Crimsons

TUSCALOOSA, Ala., Sept. 17.—(Special)—Football fans who were present in New Orleans for last year's Alabama-Tulane game and remember the somewhat anemic effort on the part of Crimson Tide punters may be in for a surprise when the two teams open their 1949 season in Mobile next Saturday.

When Tulane beat Alabama, 21-14, last year the Crimson Tide's poor punting game played a major part in 'Bama's defeat. Jack Brown, Tide quarterback who was starting his first varsity game, had a bad case of freshman jitters and on seven punts averaged only 26.5 yards.

On the other hand, Tulane's kicking specialist, Big Euil Davis, was booming punts back toward's Alabama's end zone all afternoon and on eight kicks had an excellent average of 44.7 yards. As a result the Tide was deep in its own territory during most of the game and Tulane had built up a comfortable, 21-0, lead before the Crimson Tide started rolling.

Alabama coaches didn't lose faith in Brown's ability after that bad start and the Selma (Ala.) youngster came through in fine style in the Tide's 10 remaining games last season. He handled all but five of Alabama's punts after the Tulane contest and on 57 kicks averaged 40.4 yards. Even counting the poor start against Tulane, Brown averaged 38.9 yards on 64 kicks for the season, which was third best in the Conference last year.

Unlike many punters in this era of specialists for every football chore, Brown will again share the signal-calling and blocking-back duties with Butch Avinger and hold down a defensive halfback job as well.

Stock Autos Will Run At Shreveport

SHREVEPORT, Sept. 17.—(Special)—A double-barreled stock car-midget auto racing program will be held at the Fair Grounds track here Sunday afternoon.

This lengthy event will be the last racing presentation here by the Southwestern Racing Association. It will contain all the standard stock car events, plus two midget races giving the fans a continuous afternoon of racing thrills.

The program is so long that the time trials will be held in the morning, starting at 10 o'clock. This will be free to the public. Both stock cars and midgets will qualify then.

The 100-mile championship stock car race will windup the show. This 200-up feature, starting at 2:30 p.m., will be the deciding duel between Brussell (Bruce) Rains and Dallas' Red Dowdy. Each has won three races here this year.

On the last program Dowdy lost a wheel while holding first place on the 193rd lap and finished the next seven laps on the hub while Rains streaked to victory.

The first race of the afternoon is set for 1:30. That will be a midget dash. The 25-lap stock car consolation event will follow at 1:45 with another midget race at 2 p.m.

The 100-mile race begins at 2:30, the regular starting time. All events will be run over the half-mile track. Previous midget races had been run over a quarter-mile track but Association Manager Bob Jackson said he hoped for the fastest show of the season.

East's 2 Big Guns Have 2 Teams Each

By Jim Becker

(AP Newsfeatures Sports Writer)

NEW YORK—The four teams that figure to be the top two around here are the offensive and defensive platoons of Army and Cornell.

George James

George (Lefty) James' Big Red club, and the Cadets of the Plains under Earl (Red) Blaik, are the stickout favorites. Both are enthusiastic exponents of the two-platoon system, which indicates that be it ever so confusing, it's effective.

Each has lost a few line players, but they still have plenty of talent around. Last season, Cornell lost only to Army in marching to the Ivy the helm. A tie with Navy was all that marred the Cadets' slate. This season the teams do not meet.

Among Cornell's returnees are players who were a big help in the Penn victory that won the Ivy title. In addition, James admits "we have a great bunch of kids."

A couple of holes in the line must be plugged by these newcomers, and James needs to develop a punter. Quarterback Pete Dorset, one of the better passers hereabouts, again will call the plays. The Cornells face Niagara, Colgate, Harvard, Yale, Princeton, Columbia, Syracuse, Dartmouth and Penn in that order. The Niagara, Colgate and Syracuse games are outside the Ivy group.

At West Point, Blaik has fellows like Gil Stephenson, who rolled up a huge chunk of yardage from fullback last season, and Arnold Galiffa, who is as good as anything around at quarterback. The entire Army offensive platoon is made up of veteran players, and only four sophomores figure to break into the defensive set up.

GIL STEPHENSON
Army Fullback

The Cadets meet their test early, playing Penn State, Michigan, Harvard and Columbia on the first four Saturdays in October. If they hurdle that opposition, the Lampert Trophy, symbolic of eastern football supremacy, should stay in the Cadets' trophy case. It's been there four of the last five years.

Columbia won only four and lost five with a veteran team that was wipped out by graduation. Lou Little is relying on Leon Van Bellingham, about the only experienced back left, and Leon didn't see too much action in 1948. But Little isn't too discouraged. He likes the looks of his sophomores and figures he'll make trouble, as usual.

Syracuse had a woeful season, and as is frequently the case, comes up with a new coach this campaign. Floyd Schwartzwalder is installing the winged T around sensational Bernie Custis. He'll improve on last year's record.

Princeton beat both Yale and Harvard for the big three crown last season, but will find that feat tougher this year. Rutgers measured the Tiger, but will miss the great Frank Burns for '49.

Little St. Bonaventure, where Hugh Devore is building another giant killing eleven, faces a coast-to-coast schedule. Colgate was sub-par last year and looks for improvement.

Joe Page's remarkable relief pitching for the Yankees makes the large left-hander a leading candidate for the American League's most-valuable-player award.

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—(AP)—The New York Yankees gave Fred Sanford a 5-0 lead through six innings, then were forced to stave off a ninth inning threat to barely come through with a 5-4 victory over the Detroit Tigers today. Charley Keller's two-run homer and Joe Page's stout relief pitching featured the Yankees' second straight victory over the Bengals.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17.—(AP)—The Cleveland Indians kept their faint pennant hopes alive today by belting Mickey Harris and Joe Haynes for 16 hits and an 8 to 3 victory over the cellar-dwelling Washington Senators. Gene Bearden was touched for eight hits—one of them Washington First Baseman Eddie Robinson's 18th homer of the season.

DRUNK DRIVERS CAUGHT

West Monroe police officers were "gunning" for drunk drivers last night.

They charged two Negroes between 9 p.m. and 11 p.m. with driving a motor vehicle under the influence of an intoxicating liquor.

Booked were Doss Palmer, Jr., 26, of Rt. 1, West Monroe, and Dennis Roberson, 55, of Calhoun, La.

Mrs. Mark Porter Wins Women's National Title

ARDMORE, Pa., Sept. 17.—(AP)—Mrs. Mark A. Porter, a Philadelphia suburbanite who refuses to take the game too seriously, today won the 49th Women's National Golf championship by defeating Dorothy Kielty of Long Beach, Calif., in the 36-hole final, 3 and 2. Mrs. Porter took the lead on the third hole of the morning round and never relinquished it. She was three up at nine holes, two up at 18 and again two up at 27 in her victory march.

Miss Kietley made a battle of it all the way, but only once after the fourth hole of the morning round was she able to cut the new champion's margin to one hole. Every time she threatened seriously, Mrs. Porter would come through with a fine putt for a win or a great recovery for a half until the outlook became very discouraging indeed for the Californian.

U. S. RYDER CUP ACES RALLY TO RETAIN TROPHY

Americans Take Six Out Of Eight Golf Matches To Beat British

GANTON, Eng., Sept. 17.—(AP)—The United States Ryder Cup team rallied to win six out of eight singles matches from the British today and retain the international of trophy by a point score of 7 to 5. The British had won three of yesterday's four Scotch foursomes.

Somewhat stunned by their opening setback, the Americans had been given little chance to keep the cup, but they came back with blazing golf today to pull out the victory. The U. S. has held the trophy since 1935.

The only Americans to lose today were Johnny Palmer of Badin, N. C.; and Bob Hamilton, of Landover, Mr. Palmer bowed to Jim Adams of the British forces, 2 and 1, and Hamilton was trimmed by little Dai Rees of Wales, 6 and 4.

E. J. (Dutch) Harrison of Little Rock set up the spectacular American rally by crushing Max Faulkner, 8 and 7, in the first match to finish.

Jimmy Demaret of Ojai, Calif., defeated Art Lees, 7 and 6; Sam Snead of White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., downed Charlie Ward, 6 and 5; Lloyd Mangrum of Chicago defeated Fred Daly, 4 and 3; Chick Harbert of Detroit beat Sam King, 4 and 3, and Clayton Heafner of Charlotte, N. C., defeated Dick Burton, former British open champion, 3 and 2.

AGAIN?

TUSCALOOSA, Ala.—Doug Lockridge, senior center from Jasper, Ala., is the ninth successive lineman to captain the University of Alabama's football squad. Bubber Nisbet, fullback on the 1936 team and now a member of the Alabama coaching staff, was the last backfield man to lead the Crimson Tide.

Men of the U. S. navy consumed more than 400,000 tons of meat during World War II.

RHUBARB—Everybody got into the act at Ebbets Field when Third Baseman Johnny Jorgensen of the Dodgers slid into second base and came up swinging when Eddie Stanky spiked him after relaying a double-play ball. Stanky, right, is being dragged out of the fracas feet first by First Baseman Gil Hodges, 14, of the Brooklyns. Jorgensen is somewhere underneath, behind Coach Jake Pitler, 31, of the home club. The combatants were banished, and Eddie Miksis, who replaced Jorgensen, beat the Braves, 5-4, with a two-run homer.

MISS REQUEST 1ST IN BELDAME 'CAP; PLUNDER SECOND

Donor Beats Favored Ponder To Win $25,000 Narragansett Special

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—(AP)—Miss Request, flying the silks of Mrs. Ben F. Whitaker of Dallas, Tex., put on a thrilling stretch drive today to win the $72,200 Beldame Handicap at Aqueduct.

With the large field of 18 fillies and mares contesting the rich mile and one-eighth classic, Arnold Hanger's Harmonica was disqualified from second money of $10,000 and John C. Clark's Plunder was moved into the place spot. Harmonica was moved out of the money for crowding as the field went into the first turn.

The disqualification also moved up C. V. Whitney's Mother into third place. Mother and Harmonica were two of the five horses grouped in the betting "field."

Miss' Request was given one of Eddie Arcaro's super duper rides, to clip the route in 1:52 4/5. Her backers in the crowd of 31,171 persons at Aqueducts's final program of the season made Miss Request third choice in the mutuels and she returned $14,40, $7.90 and $6.60.

The winner beat Harmonica to the wire by a length and earned a purse of $53,600, one of the richest of the year.

AT NARRAGANSETT

PAWTUCKET, R. I., Sept. 17.—(AP)—Ponder, this year's Kentucky Derby winner and favorite in the $25,000 Narragansett Special, took a dusty third place behind Donor today before a crowd of 30,473 racing fans.

It was Donor's second triumph in this race—the first time any winner repeated. Mrs. Deering Howe's horse ran the mile and three-sixteenths course in 1:56 2/5-a head ahead of I. J. Collins' Vulcan's Forge.

But Calumet Farm's Ponder—the 2-5 favorite—was a neck away from the second place horse. Donor's time was nearly two full seconds off the track and world's record held by Lucky Draw.

The victory was worth $19,400 to Mrs. Deering Howe and boosted Donor's earnings for the year to $54,225.

Like the other six starters that faced Ponder, Donor was not too well played. He paid $17.60, $7.00 and $2.80. Vulcan's Forge returned $6.20 and $2.80, and the show payoff on Ponder was $2.20.

Kentucky Applies Crusher To Mississippi Southern

LEXINGTON, Ky., Sept. 17.—(AP)—Kentucky set its offensive pattern with a touchdown in the first two minutes tonight and rolled with ridiculous ease over Mississippi southern 71-7 in its opening football game before a crowd of 25,000.

The Kentuckians used the strong right arm of Sophomore Quarterback Vito (Babe) Parilli to good advantage, scoring two touchdowns on his passing and blanking the Southerners except for a brief second period flurry.

But in that one lapse the Wildcats permitted a touchdown march of 73 yards in seven plays. Two passes from Le Gros to Clifford Coggin ate up most of the yardage with a 16-yard heave to Coggin in the end zone accounting for the lone M-S tally.

Sophomores played a vital role in the Kentucky scoring, accounting for four of the six pointers.

Southern Association

BEARS EDGE BARONS

MOBILE, Ala., Sept. 17.—(AP)—George Shuba's home run that bounded over the right field wall provided the margin of victory tonight as the Mobile Bears edged Birmingham 2-1 in their Southern Association playoff.

The win gave the Bears a commanding three to one lead in the series. They now need only one more victory to advance into the final playoff.

Score by innings:

Birmingham	000	000	010 — 1 3 1
Mobile	000	101	00x— 2 5 0

PELS EVEN SERIES

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 17.—(AP)—Big Stan Wentzel slamed a home run with two on in the seventh to give the New Orleans Pelicans an 8 to 6 victory over the Nashville Vols. The victory tied the playoff series at two games each.

Harry Fisher went the limit for the Pels, while Bo-Bo Holloman faded out of the picture in the seventh after Wentzel's homer.

Score by innings:

Nashville	002	020	002 — 6 6 1
New Orleans	201	200	30x— 8 13 1

Byrd's Yellow Jackets Down Natchitoches, 20-0

SHREVEPORT, La., Sept. 17.—(AP)—Byrd High School of Shreveport defeated the Natchitoches Red Devils 20-0 at the State Fair Grounds here tonight.

A muddy field cut fancy footwork to a minimum.

Willard Rachal, Byrd left halfback, was the offensive star of the game, scoring two touchdowns, one on a 44-yard sprint, to start the second quarter, and the other on an 8-yard run late in the third period.

Right End Frank Green scored the other on an end-around that covered nine yards in the final quarter. Charles Worley kicked the two points after touchdown.

Holy Cross Tigers Rout Catholic's Bears, 30 To 0

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 17.—(AP)—Joe Heap scored three touchdowns to lead the Holy Cross Tigers to a 30-0 triumph over the Catholic High Golden Bears of Baton Rouge here tonight.

Lloyd Bertrand and James Nicol tallied the other Bengal touchdowns.

Heap scored the first of two first period touchdowns on a one-yard smash across center. Bertrand set up the score with a 43-yard run on the first Holy Cross play.

Heap set up the second touchdown, which was made by Bertrand. Heap's run was good for 39 yards.

Bertrand intercepted a pass and returned it 25 yards to the Bruin ten. Heap carried it across.

Heap's third tally came when he intercepted a pass and ran 58 yards.

Catholic High made its only threat in the third period after Phil Muscarello intercepted a pass from Holy Cross' Clarence Zimmerman and returned it to the New Orleans squad's 35. The Bruins got to the seven, but lost the ball on downs.

Tyler Apaches Wallop M'Neese Cowboys, 27-7

LAKE CHARLES, La., Sept. 17.—(AP)—The Tyler Junior College Apaches scored in the first minute of play to start their way on a 27-7 victory over John McNeese Junior College here tonight.

On the first scrimmage play after the kickoff, Ernie Lambert's pass was intercepted by Tyler's Billy Ray Clark on the McNeese 47-yard line and he ran it back all the way for a touchdown without having a hand laid on him en route.

The home team perked up after the succeeding kickoff and started on a 64-yard drive all the way to pay dirt in six first down jumps. Halfback Dee Navarre raced around left end for the score. After that the Cowboys were through.

After the McNeese kickoff was taken back to the Apache 35, Homer Dear took a pitchout and sprinted 65 yards to put Tyler ahead to stay.

In the third period Dear took the ball to another score for the Apaches after intercepting a Cowboy pass four plays earlier.

Before the avalanche subsided Tyler had counted again on an end sprint by Steve Hughes after Tackle John Carroll recovered a fumble on the McNeese 38-yard stripe.

Pensacola Wins First In Series With Tampa

TAMPA, Fla., Sept. 17.—(AP)—The Pensacola Fliers, Southeastern League champions, won the opening game of the Class B. playoffs with the Tampa Smokers, Florida International League champs here tonight, 4 to 0, before a gathering of 2731 fans.

Neb Wilson, husky outfielder paced the Fliers in a nine-hit assault on two Tampa hurlers, Bob Swanson and Tom Drake. Wilson collected three singles and drove in one run.

Al Hennecheck, Pensacola sidearm hurler, held the Smokers to five hits, two of them by Benny Fernandez, and was never in trouble as he kept the Fil Shaughnessy playoff champions from scoring a run. He walked two batters while fanning three.

Swanson retired from the game at the end of the fifth frame when his arm started to hurt. He gave up three of the four runs before ret

TREATY NATIONS

ing, two committees of the United States senate reported formally that Russia has more than 5,000,000 men under arms and appears to be carrying out a "deliberate" policy of adding to its military strength.

The foreign relations and armed services committees of the senate, which have been meeting jointly on the administration's proposed $1,314,000,000 foreign arms aid bill, gave that appraisal of Soviet power in recommending passage of the measure.

Both the treaty move and the arms bill were part of the strategy to discourage any Russian aggressive ambitions.

In a formal report to the senate, the two committees said Russia has stepped up her military budget by 19 per cent over last year, Increased her troop strength in Germany to 100,000 men, and has been carrying out "security measures" along Russia's borders and those of its satellites.

The senate begins debate on the arms bill probably Monday. The talk is expected to last several days, as a good many senators want to press amendments to the bill.

In contrast, today's meeting of the foreign ministers went like clockwork.

In a smooth running 60-minute session, the council chose Secretary of State Dean Acheson as its first chairman, created a cabinet-level defense committee, set up half a dozen top-ranking military planning groups, and decided on Washington as alliance headquarters.

The defense committee, of which Secretary of Defense Louis Johnson will be the American member, will meet here Oct. 5 to establish in fact the military planning groups which the council authorized today.

The principal military committee to be made up of the chiefs of staff of the Atlantic powers, the "standing group" and five "regional planning groups."

The regional planning groups will work out joint defense plans for (1) northern Europe, (2) western Europe, (3) southern Europe and the western Mediterranean, (4) North America and (5) the North Atlantic Ocean area.

An official communique disclosed that the United States will take a hand in all the regions.

Diplomatic officials said the assignment of the United States to key positions in all the Atlantic treaty agencies was in line with its No. 1 rank as a military power and potential supplier of arms and assistance to the other countries. They reported that all the other countries had requested the United States to play an important part.

The Atlantic council met at 10 a. m., (E. S. T.) in the blue and gold committee room of the government's interdepartmental auditorium on Constitution avenue. The session had been expected to last at least three hours, even in view of extensive preliminary spadework, but it was all over in 60 minutes.

In response to inquiries, officials who were present at the conference said that the atomic bomb was not mentioned, and that Russia was referred to only one time, and then in a joking way. One wisecracking diplomat remarked that the work which the ministers had accomplished in an hour would have taken years if Russia had been there.

The council's decisions were concerned solely with creation of machinery and agreement on operating procedures. They covered the following major provisions.

1. Council organization—Acheson will be the first chairman by virtue of having been host today. After that the chairmanship will rotate alphabetically. The council will meet at least once a year, usually about the same time and place as the annual session of the U. N. general assembly, but some meetings will be held in Europe.

2. Defense committee—This was established directly by the council. It's members are to be the defense ministers of all 12 nations. (Iceland has no army and no defense minister, and was authorized to designate another official.)

The defense committee will be responsible for promoting the individual and collective capacity of the treaty powers "to resist armed attack" and for devising the measures which may be taken in case an attack occurs. The committee will meet at least once a year. The chairmanship will rotate annually.

3. Military Committee—This agency technically will be established by the defense committee as will all the other military agencies. Actually, the council today spelled out in detail the membership and functions of all these agencies. The military committee will be a 12-nation agency composed of chiefs of staff or their representatives except that Iceland may designate a civilian official. It will be responsible for deciding the top military policy recommendations of the Atlantic alliance. The committee normally will meet in Washington.

4. Standing group of the military committee—The official report declared this American-British-French agency "should be so organized as to function continously." It will coordinate defense plans made by regional planning groups in accordance with the board strategic policy governing the whole area and in line with the guidance provided by the military committee.

5. Regional planning groups—These groups will be organized "to insure speedy and efficient planning of the unified defense of the whole North Atlantic area." The member countries are those most directly concerned with a region, but other Atlantic pact nations may be brought in as desired.

The five regions and the countries whose military men will compose each group are:

Northern European—Denmark, Norway and the United Kingdom. The United States had agreed to participate with them in their planning work.

Western European—Belgium, France, Luxembourg, The Netherlands and the United Kingdom. Those are the nations which already are united under the Brussels pact and which hold the heart of the western military frontier stretching across Europe from the Norwegian Sea into the Mediterranean. In addition, Canada and the United States will take an active part in their defense bid.

3. Southern European-western Mediterranean—France, Italy and the United Kingdom with the United States joining in the planning work.

4. Canadian-United States—Canada and the United States.

5. North Atlantic Ocean—Beligum, Canada, Denmark, France, Iceland, The Netherlands, Norway, Portugal, the United Kingdom and the United States. Those are 10 of the 12 members of the Atlantic treaty. The only two left out are Italy and Luxembourg, which have no direct geographical relationship to the Atlantic area.

After specifying the kinds of agencies to be set up, the council called for "appropriate machinery" as soon as possible to study the general defense problem of the North Atlantic area.

of the Yugoslav embassy staff and the Yugoslav delegations to the United Nations in Communist activities.

Dr. Draskovich said that Major Branko Vukelic, whom he described as at off time connected with the Yugoslav embassy in the United States, "was certainly one of the most active propagandists among the Yugoslav officials coming to the United States."

In 1946, he said, Vukelic went "as far as to defend in the most categorical terms the ill-famed Yugoslav secret police, Ozna, which other people usually avoid to speak about."

The ironic twist to the story, Dr. Draskovich related, is that Vukelic sided with the cominform in its split with Tito and he now "is in the hands of that very Ozna he praised as being the people themselves."

The "American Yugoslav home" in New York City was regarded by the witness as "the main center of Communist activities among the American Yugoslavs in this country."

He said that "I notice the consul, Miodrag Markowicch, is a regular visitor. It is almost his second office." Dr Draskovich added, though, that he is not sure if that is still the case. "But definitely before the break with the cominform and even later, he was a regular guest at the American Yugoslav home," he said.

He said one of those connected with the home is Toma Babin, "one of the most active Communists of Yugoslav origin in this country."

Babin also is president of the Yugoslav Meamen's Club in New York City, Dr. Draskovich said, and has stated that many of the members it has trained now occupy responsible positions in Yugoslavia.

The bulk of Dr. Draskovich's testimony was devoted to documentation of his statement that the Narodni Glasnik and Slobodna Rec, Slav language newspapers published in Pittsburgh, are Communist organs.

Complete Seven New Gas, Four Oil Producers Here

Drillers in northeast Louisiana last week completed four new oil producers and seven new gas wells, according to the conservation department's weekly report revealed here yesterday.

Seventeen new locations were sited in nine parishes.

The week's new oil wells were:

The H. L. Hunt's Nebo Oil Company No. F-155 in 34-7-3E was completed with a yield of 115 barrels. It is located in LaSalle parish, the West Catahoula Lake field.

The other three new oil wells, also located in the West Catahoula Lake field are: The H. L. Hunt Company's Jack Allen, et al, No. 1 in 35-7-3E, an output of 81 barrels; the H. L. Hunt Company's Nebo Oil Company F-153 in 34-7-3E, a yield of 91 barrels, and the W. O. Woodard Tr.-Q. R. Hudson No. 2 in 34-7-3E was unearthed at 4,310 feet, producing 22 barrels daily.

New gas producers included: The Union Producing Company's Ten Delta No. 40 in 25-22-4E of the Monroe field in Morehouse parish, yielding 3,904,000 cubic feet; in 15-17-9E of the Delhi field in Richland parish, the Murphy Sun Oil Company's J. W. Nicholson No. 2 producing 8,800,000 cubic feet; the Feazel, et al, and Monroe Drilling Company's Love No. 3 in 5-21-3E was brought in with an output of 290,000 cubic feet.

Other new gas producers completed and guaged last week were:

Gus K. Primos Company's Katie C. Smith No. 1 in 6-21-3E of the Monroe field in Union parish was gauged at 2,611,000 cubic feet.

The South C. C.'s Fee No. 76 in 18-21-3E of Union parish's Monroe field, was completed with a yield of 8,960,000 cubic feet.

The Union Producing Company completed its Grayling No. 19 and No. 20. The No. 19 was gauged at 4,390,000 cubic feet, the No. 20 was gauged at 3,691,000 cubic feet. Both were in the Monroe field of Union parish.

The Atlantic Refg. Company's Singer Mfg. Company No. 3 in 17-15-10E of the Indian Lake field in Madison parish, was abandoned 5,835 feet.

Louisiana Oil And Gas News

TEXAS HELPS UP DAILY AVERAGE

Louisiana, Kansas And Oklahoma Record Sizable Increases During Week

TULSA, Okla., Sept. 17.—(AP)—A healthy jump in Texas, output boosted the nation's daily average production by 91,500 barrels during the week ended Sept. 14, the Oil and Gas Journal reported.

Total daily average production, the Journal said, was 4,847,150 barrels.

Texas' production soared 80,525 barrels to 1,979,100 barrels to account for most of the gain.

Other sizeable increases included Kansas, up 9,750 barrels to 248,700; Oklahoma, 7,300 to 386,300 and Louisiana, 1,950 to 485,550.

Indiana and Kentucky increased 800 barrels to 29,300 and 23,600 barrels, respectively; Illinois gained 200 to 181,700, Arkansas was up 300 to 72,750 and Utah added 300 to 1,900.

Heaviest decline was in California, which lost 5,000 barrels to 894,700. Other major decreases were reported for the eastern area, down 1,350 to 58,950; Mississippi, off 1,950 to 98,600, and Wyoming down 1,200 to 125,200.

Florida declined 125 barrels to 1,150, New Mexico was down 500 to 124,200, Colorado lost 100 to 66,000 and Montana was off 200 to 27,000.

Production was unchanged in Alabama, 1,150 barrels, and Nebraska, 600.

Canada's production, the Journal said, dropped 1,290 barrels to 63,590 barrels, of which 60,490 was reported for Alberta Province.

Louisiana Gets 180 New Oil Producers

BATON ROUGE, La., Sept. 17.—(AP)—Louisiana Commissioner of Conservation S. L. Digby reported that of 211 oil wells completed in the state during August, 180 were producers.

A total of 259 permits for new wells during the month included 31 wildcats, or exploratory drilling, he added.

Of the producers, Digby said, 143 were completed as oil wells and 37 as gas or gas-condensate wells.

By month's end, 316 rigs were running in various fields and wildcat locations in the state, Digby said. These included 50 in the Houma district, 49 near Lafayette, 27 near Lake Charles, 31 near New Orleans, 36 in the Monroe area and 123 in the Shreveport district.

July oil production was reported at 15,220,005 barrels, of which 3,643,861 was from North Louisiana, 11,576,144 from south Louisiana.

Total state gas production in July was reported at 75,832, 925,000 cubic feet.

Use Of Shale Gasoline For Generation Unlikely

By Max B. Skelton

HOUSTON, Tex., Sept. 17—(AP)—How long will it be before the average motorist can drive to a service station for a tank of shale gasoline?

Most oil men believe the necessity of such a day is so far in the future the present generation should not give it a worry.

U. S. bureau of mines officials, however, next week are to demonstrate the progress being made in shale oil experiments at the Rifle, Colo., laboratory.

One of their big problems at Rifle has been to determine whether or not shale oil can be converted into gasoline without placing a strain on the consumer's pocketbook.

Oilmen say it is financially impractical to manufacture such a gasoline, that its final price will be prohibitive when compared with current prices. Besides, they argue, there will be sufficient petroleum to meet demand for years and years to come.

Boyd Guthrie, supervising engineer at Rifle, this week said extraction of oil from shale has been accomplished —on an economically sound basis.

He estimated a barrel of crude shale oil can be produced at a cost of $2.25 to $2.50, compared to a current crude petroleum production cost of approximately $2.50.

But crude oil—whether shale or petroleum—has to go a long way before it reaches an automobile tank. A trip to the refinery is essential.

It is at this point that oilmen predict the cost of shale gasoline will jump considerably.

Two research engineers for Standolind Oil and Gas Company have been evaluating the raw materials of oil shale and coal as possible replacements for crude petroleum.

This week they advised the industry that, on the basis of the most feasible methods known today, production costs of a gallon of gasoline from oil shale or bituminous coal will be approximately 80 per cent higher than for crude petroleum.

They indicated much further research probably will be necessary before synthetic fuels can become competitive with petroleum.

Anything bureau of mines officials might reveal next week on refining of shale oil and its costs undoubtedly will receive close attention from the oil industry.

One of the phases of the Tuesday demonstration at Rifle is to include the processing of crude shale oil into gasoline, diesel fuel, furnace and heavy industrial fuel oils, and fuel gas.

A Texas petroleum engineer recently urged that the bureau add oil mining to its experimental program.

Paul D. Torrey, Houston, chairman of the secondary recovery committee of the interstate oil compact commission, believes such a study would be a "proper venture" for the federal government.

He admits United States attempts at oil mining so far have not been successful. He believes, however, that as a companion project to the shale experiments an oil mining project might create a great deal of interest and receive very general approval from the oil industry.

Torrey is convinced there are vast amounts of petroleum which escape normal drilling methods but which could be recovered through mining.

He hopes his proposed experiments can be carried out before large expenditures are made on the studies with shale.

Oil recovered through mining, he says, could be processed in existing refineries.

Crude Oil Buyers Make Bid For More Texas Oil

AUSTIN, Tex., Sept. 17.—(AP)—Crude oil buyers have made nominations for 2,419,516 barrels of Texas oil in October, Railroad Commissioner Ernest O. Thompson said. This would be an increase of 53,919 barrels over September.

The statewide oil proration hearing to determine how much Texas will be allowed to produce next month will be held here Thursday.

A one-day increase in the statewide and east Texas field producing schedules is expected. Some purchasers are pessimistic about market demand being strong enough to warrant any increase.

East Texas is now on 16 producing days. The rest of the state is on 18. To leave them on the same pattern would cause a slight decline in the daily allowable because October has 31 days compared with September's 30.

Okla. Oil Operations Dropped During Week

TULSA, Okla., Sept. 17.—(AP)—Oklahoma's oil drilling operations dropped off into a virtual stupor this week with only occasional spasms of activity.

There were some bright spots, particularly in Garvin and Stephens counties, but the overall picture remained gloomy, the Tulsa World will say Saturday.

Reported completions totaled a mere 69, including 45 producers, four gas wells and 20 dusters. Other statistics: daily average output of oil, 7,039 barrels; of gas, 34,071,000 cubic feet; 227,027 feet drilled.

Exploration tumbled to 81 starts in 30 counties. Leading was Osage county with 10 new locations staked out.

La.-Miss. Crop, Livestock Income Nears Record High

By Gordon Brown

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17. — (AP) — Farm income from crop and livestock sales appear headed for record highs this year in Louisiana and Mississippi, particularly the latter.

Both states registered new highs last year and this year's total for the January-July period was ahead of 1948.

Mississippi's total for the seven months was $239,064,000—a jump of some $73,000,000 over a year ago. This was the biggest increase shown in any of the 48 states.

In fact, except for southern states, the national trend was downward.

Louisiana, total cash receipts from livestock and crops were $142,520,000 on Aug. 1, compared with $140,797,000 a year ago.

Thus if both states continue their trends they will surpass the records of 1948, which were $547,952,000 in Mississippi and $363,161,000 for Louisiana.

Mississippi's big gain in farm dollars came from higher returns from crops with livestock receipts holding about even with 1948's first seven months. The receipts from crops up to Aug. 1 totaled $175,837,000, compared with $100,907,000 a year ago. Livestock provided Mississippi farmers with $63,227,000, compared with $64,879,000 a year ago.

Louisiana's gain likewise was accounted for by a jump in income from crops. To Aug. 1 the total from crops was $91,878,000 and from livestock $50,640,000 compared with $85,277,000 and $55,520,000 a year ago.

Increased cotton marketings and receipts presumably accounted for much of the hike in crop incomes in the two states.

Southerners generally are getting a chuckle out of the appointment of Senator Jim Eastland (D-Miss.) to chairmanship of the senate judiciary subcommittee handling civil rights legislation.

This civil rights subcommittee will handle many of the bills embodying President Truman's civil rights proposals and Eastland never has left any doubts that he is vehemently opposed to the president's civil rights program.

While Eastland has replied "no comment" to questions about what he will do with pending bills, the general belief is that his appointment has effectively bottled up judiciary committee action on any civil rights proposals for the remainder of the 81st congress at least.

The appointment probably will draw screams of protest from Negro and other groups supporting the president's program, since all of the civil rights proposals except anti-poll tax and F. E. P. C. clear through this subcomimttee.

The appointment was made by Chairman McCarran (D-Nev.) of the judiciary comimttee the night he left Washington for Europe. Although Eastland already was on the subcommittee, McCarran wasn't bound by any seniority rules to make the Mississippian chairman.

For this reason, many Washington observers are speculating on whether the appointment was made by McCarran as a direct slap at the administration. He has been at odds with the president over the displaced persons bill. McCarran has bottled the bill up in his committee. Truman wants it passed.

Most of Washington agrees it is an ironical situation which finds a civil rights foe with virtual power of life and death over civil rights bills.

Even Eastland, who has kept pretty quiet all year, had a distinct twinkle in his eye when he broke the news of his appointment to reporters.

Senator Russell Long (D-La.) probably will stump the entire state of Louisiana in the next few weeks.

His objective undoubtedly is to discourage any opposition in next year's election, when he will ask a full 6-year term.

Long was elected last year to fill the unexpired 2-year term of the late Senator Overton.

Long went to Louisiana this week to tour the fifth district. His talks, he said, weren't to be political—rather a review of the Washington situation.

But, Long has been known to say, a talk now is worth ten next year.

Rep. Hale Boggs (D.-La.), just back from sessions of the interparliamentary union at Stockholm and a brief tour of several western European countries, says radio Moscow is doing a better job of reaching western European countries than is the United States.

"Everywhere you go you hear radio Moscow," he said. "They do a pretty effective job."

While he was in England, Boggs said, Moscow radio devoted much of its time to its version of the riots accompanying Paul Robeson's concerts in New York state.

Boggs said he also was impressed with the big U. N. air base in Iceland.

"That base is 1,300 miles from Moscow," he said. "Do you realize that is just 2 1/2 hours by jet bomber?"

Boggs and other congressmen made the trip in the Sacred Cow, President Roosevelt's old plane. It's luxuriousness, he said, made for delightful travel. The plane left Brussels, Belgium, Wednesday noon and reached Washington in time for lunch Thursday.

Two of the trip's highlights for Boggs came after the plane neared home.

One was a brilliant display by the Aurora Borealis—the northern lights.

"I sat watching the display for more than an hour," Boggs said.

The other highlight came when, although 6,000 feet over Boston, he called Mrs. Bogg by telephone. Mrs. Boggs was in New Orleans.

"Probably I got her out of bed," he said, "but she was pretty impressed. "Matter of fact, so was I.

"But the kids—they weren't impressed a bit.

"That's not a wonder to kids—it's just a common place event."

Nine percent of the pedestrians killed in cities have been crossing intersections diagonally or against traffic signals.

REVIVALIST

Beginning a revival meeting at the Collinston Methodist Church September 18 will be Rev. Marvin H. Corley, (above), minister of the Gibsland Methodist Church. Services will be held each day at 10 a. m. and each evening at 7:30, concluding September 25. Rev. Corley is the son of the pastor of the church and a native of North Central Louisiana. He attended undergraduate school at Louisiana Tech and Westminister College. Continuing his education with graduate work at Perkins School of Theology and Southern Methodist University, he graduated with a Bachelor of Divinity degree. He is now serving his fifth conference year in the Ruston district with the Gibsland Methodist Church.

Free Enterprise To End At Own Hands—Wallace

CLEVELAND, Sept. 17.—(AP)—Henry A. Wallace declared today "the anarchy of the free enterprise state is bound to come to an end from its own instability."

"The chief question," continued the Progressive party's 1948 presidential candidate, "has been whether the emerging general welfare state should be based on democratic or totalitarian principles.

"The contention of the Progressive party is that it is impossible to develop * * * any place in the world a general welfare state based on democratic principles as long as the cold war is going on."

The former United States secretary of agriculture and secretary of commerce spoke before the Progressive party's Ntaional Conference on Jobs and the Economic Crisis.

"Neither (Republican nor Democratic) party can bring into being a continuing democratic welfare state," he said. "They both, in the final analysis, will come out in exactly the same place as long as they have the same attitude with regard to foreign policy."

Wallace outlined a five-point program to build up the United Nations "into that kind of organization which President (Franklin D.) Roosevelt wanted it to be."

His points were:

1: Stop interfering in the internal affairs of other nations, either directly or through the United Nations.

2: Renounce all military alliances.

3: Give economic help to other nations only through the United Nations.

4: Arrive at such basic understanding with Russia and England that general disarmament becomes practical for all nations.

5: More positive recognition by the U. N. of the right of the colonial peoples to live their own lives free from exploitation.

Until these points are gained, said Wallace, "nowhere in the world can there be a general democratic welfare state."

In an earlier session, the party's national committee expressed the belief that Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York "white-washed" law officials in the recent Peekskill, N. Y., concert violence.

Miss N. O. 1949 Becomes Mrs. With Crown Prince

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 17.—(AP)—Miss New Orleans of 1949 is Mrs. New Orleans and the Crescent City queen has a 3-year-old crown prince.

The 22-year-old beauty is Darwin Greenfield, who first denied she ever had been married and "certainly" did not have a child.

Now she says she was confused when she made the statement to a reporter. Mrs. Greenfield said she was married to Jack Greenfield about five years ago and that she divorced him last year.

Little Dannie Joe, her son, is in Jackson, Miss.

However, a contest official said no rule had been violated by Mrs. Greenfield's winning the contest. She won the title at Lake Ponchartrain about three weeks ago.

Infant Suffering Heart Condition Much Better

MEMPHIS, Sept. 17.—(AP)—A happy father lifted his critically ill six-week-old son from an incubator today and held him in his arms for the first time in two weeks.

His exuberance came as a doctor pronounced the infant, James W. Cockrell, Jr., in much improved condition.

"This is momentous," said the smiling father, night editor of the Jackson (Miss.) Clarion Ledger.

The child, brought here at the point of death Tuesday night, was taken from the incubator—and an oxygen tank—for three periods of about 10 minutes.

The physician said he was "greatly pleased at the progress." If it keeps up, he added, the infant will be taken to the hospital laboratory Monday to see if his ailment can be corrected by an operation.

The youngster suffers from a heart condition that prevents enough oxygen from entering the blood stream. This causes difficulty in breathing.

Today he was breathing more easily and ate more lustily. A cardiogram was taken. The chief job ahead is building up his strength and restoring fluids to his body.

The parents had the baby brought here in a last desperate move after they had almost given up hope.

The original forest area of the United States is estimated at 820,000,000 acres in addition to 100,000,000 acres of non-commercial forest. The present area of forest is estimated at 461,044,000 acres.

September to date is rivaling June as a month for brides and brides-to-be.

Pictured at upper left is Miss Betty Seidenspinner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Lawrence Seidenspinner, whose engagement to Mr. Dudley Lankford, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. James Dudley Lankford, of Birmingham, Ala., is announced today. Both are graduates of the University of Alabama.

Upper right is Miss Marie Phillips, whose engagement to Mr. Wesley D. Burdine, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Burdine of Sterlington, is announced today by her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. E. V. Cole. The wedding will take place Thanksgiving day.

Center left, Miss Maxine Whitaker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Whitaker of West Monroe, whose engagement and approaching marriage to Mr. Charles Byrd Elliott, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. B. Elliot of Margarita, Canal Zone, is being announced today by her parents. The wedding will take place in November. Center, Mrs. William Lee Carbrey, prior to her recent marriage was Miss Alice Elizabeth Brauer of this city.

Center right, Miss Peggy Lee Kid of Choudrant, who will be the fall bride of Dr. Joe Watts of Ruston. Dr. Watts is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Watts of Arcadia.

Lower left, Miss Peggy O'Neal, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Aubrey O'Neal of Fairbanks, whose engagement and approaching marriage to Mr. Arthur Brimberry Carroll of Oak Ridge is formally announced today.

Lower right, Miss Maurine Jeter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alson Jeter of Winnfield, whose engagement to Mr. Vinco Herlevic, Jr., of this city, is announced today.

ANNETTE PATTEN EVANS IS WED TO W. M. KNOBLES AT LAKE PROVIDENCE

At an impressive ceremony solemnized Sunday afternoon, Sept. 11th, at 5:30, at St. Patrick's Catholic Church in Lake Providence, Miss Annette Patten Evans, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Rupert Evans became the bride of William Mortimer Knobles, son of Mrs. John Cragin Knobles, of West Point, Miss., and the late Mr. K. Nobles.

Msgr. F. J. Plutz officiated at the double ring ceremony. Acolytes were Phillip and Patten Brown, cousins of the bride, who lighted the tapers amid arrangements of pink gladioli, yellow esterree daisies and Oregon fern in floorbaskets and vases in the sanctuary. In the windows throughout the body of the church were low, white jardinieres filled with sprays of Rosa Montana, statice, ageratum, roses and plumosa ferns, which were centered by a tall lighted candle.

Mrs. T. E. Pinkston rendered a program of nuptial music and accompanied the soloists, Mr. Sam Beazer of Natchitoches, who sang "Oh! Promise Me," and Teddy Forte, of Lake Village, Ark., whose renditions were "Because," and "Ave Maria." "Angel's Serenade," and "Song To An Evening Star."

The bride's attendants were Miss Adelaide Smith of West Point, Miss., Miss Lottie Louise Lee, of Tallulah, La., Miss Amanda Brown, Miss Bettie Stoner of Greenwood, Miss., Mrs. Henry William Bethard of Coushatta, Miss Patsy Land, who served as bridesmaids, and Miss Phallie Evans, her sister, who was maid of honor, and little Miss Carolyn Thomas, the flower girl, wore identical frocks. They were white imported organdy over pastel taffeta. The off shoulder necklines were adorned with rows of ruching above wide shirred berthas. The sleeveless, fitted bodices and circular hooped skirts were bound by wide girdle sashes, which tied into a bustle bow at the back and fell into streamers the length of the skirt. Each wore a single strand of pearls and organdy mitts, which ended in double ruching at the elbow. Puffed, taffeta bandeaux, matching the coloring of the gowns, were caught with a nosegay of flowers which matched their bouquets. Sprays of yellow daisies, orchid asters, and pink rosebuds.

The bride, entering on the arm of her father, wore a gown of white slipper satin, fashioned with a fitted bodice, buttoned down the back with self covered buttons to the waistline. The deep marquisette yoke, had a Rosepoint bertha attached. Sentiment of the bertha was for something old, as it had been used on the bride's mother's wedding gown and worn by other members of her family on important occasions. The long sleeves, buttoned from the elbow to the wrist, ended in petal points over the hands. The full pleats of the skirt, fell at the front in redingote fashion, with voluminous folds of the back extending into a cathedral train, which was looped with sprays of the seed pearl centered, satin flowers adorning the bodice yoke. The veil of imported illusion fell from a Juliet cap of heirloom lace, fronted with pearlized orange blossoms.

She carried a bouquet of bride's roses and stephanotis centered with sweetheart roses, based on embossed white ribbon, with cascading of pink maline ending with nosegays of pink rosebuds, tuberoses and butterfly gardenias.

The bridegroom was attended by his brother, Mr. J. C. Knobles, Jr., of Jackson, Miss. The groomsmen were Mr. Jack Brown, and Mr. W. D. Brown, III, of Lake Providence ;and from West Point, Miss., Mr. Richard Heard, Mr. Owens McCollum, Mr. Jack King, Mr. Jack Shaw. All, including the groom, the bride's father, the best man, and the ring bearer, Master Owen Stuart Brown, Jr., wore white palm beach suits, black ties, and black handkerchiefs in the breast pockets, and white carnation bouttonaires.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Evans wore a champagne chantilly lace frock with sweetheart yoke, butterfly sleeves and gored skirt with matching tulle turban.

Among out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Knobles of Jackson, Miss.; Mrs. John Cragin Knobles of West Point, Miss.; Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Cook, and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Cook of Natchez, Miss.; Miss Corinne Coillouet, L. D. Coillouet, Jr., and Richard E. Crump of Greenville, Miss.; Teddy Forte and Santo S. Forte of Lake Village, Ark.; Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Shields of Alsatia, La.; Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Stoner and Miss Bettie Stoner of Greenwood, Miss.; Mrs. W. D. Pierson, Mrs. Horace Lee and Miss Lottie Louise Lee, Mrs. Leo Shields, Mrs. William Adams of Tallulah, La.; Mr. and Mrs. Milton Milner of Antlers, Okla.; Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Yarbro and daughter, Mary Edith of Jackson, Miss.; Mr. and Mrs. Rupert Cook of Shaw, Miss.; Mr. and Mrs. Richard Nicholl, Mr. and Mrs. William Cook, Miss Gertrude O'Sullivan and Mr. Louis Switzer of Vicksburg; Mr. and Mrs. William H. Bethard of Coushatta, La.; Mrs. Thayer McCoy and Mrs. Lillian P. Gross of Beaumont, Tex.; Richard Eskrigg Crump of Greenville, Miss.; Mr. and Mrs. Ford Land and daughter, Miss Valerye Land of Conway, Ark.; Mrs. David Castleman of Tallulah; Mrs. Lula Underwood and Mr. and Mrs. Haynes Harkey, Jr., of Monroe; Mr. and Mrs. Joe Kelly, Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Sims, Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Lipp, Mr. and Mrs. Guthrie Jarrell, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Weems of Oak Grove.

FLEMING-ZEAGLER

The wedding of Miss Anita Zeagler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Zeagler, of this city and Mr. Virgil Fleming, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. V. Fleming, took place recently at the Gordon Avenue Methodist Church.

Prior to the ceremony which was performed before a background of mixed white flowers interspersed with greenery, Miss Joy Lee accompanied Miss Ann Bower in selections of nuptial music.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white slipper satin with sweetheart neckline. A satin with sweetheart neckline. Her veil of illusion fell from a satin halo, the long fitted sleeves ended in points over her hands. She carried a bouquet of sweetheart roses surrounded by white mums.

Attendants were Mrs. Everett Zeagler, sister-in-law of the bride, as maid of honor and bridesmaids were: Miss Retta Strickland, Miss Carolyn Fleming and Miss Dale Fleming. Charlotte Ann Hymer was the flower girl. All wore Nile green taffeta dresses with matching halos and mitts of net. They carried bouquets of rainbow asters. Ushers were Arnold Zeagler and Glenn Fleming.

Mrs. Rex Hyner and Mrs. W. R. Merkle assisted in courtesies at the reception which followed at the home of the bride's parents.

Out of town guests were Mr. and Mrs. I. C. Strickland, of Natchitoches; Miss Retta Strickland of the same city; Miss Joy Lee, of Shreveport; Mr. and Mrs. Roy Stapp, of Winnsboro; Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Merkle, of Dallas, Texas, and Mr. and Mrs. Huie of Ruston.

HOME GARDENER CLUB HAS MEETING AT HOME OF MEMBER

The Home Gardener Club held its September meeting in the home of Mrs. H. O. Hartmen, 4001 South Grand street. Colorful seasonal flowers were placed at vantage points throughout the living room and den.

Mrs. M. J. Hortman, president of the club, presided at the business session which was opened by the reading of the minutes of the previous meeting. Mrs. Aline Banister, chairman of the executive committee read the proposed by-laws and constitution of the club and they were unanimously accepted by the members.

Mrs. W. R. Gates of West Monroe spoke on "Bearded Iris." Mrs. Gates is one of the most active iris fans in the Twin Cities and had recently attended the national iris convention at Memphis Tennessee and reported that the convention had chosen Shreveport Louisiana as its convention city in 1951.

"In selecting a spot for your iris remember that they need lots of sunshine and good soil that drains well. The iris is hardy and undemanding and with a minimum amount of effort the gardner is well rewarded," she declared.

Mrs. H. M. Chatham, Mrs. J. J. Rasch, and Mrs. Charles Lobrano, co-hostesses helped in serving refreshments to the following members: Mesdames, Herbert Munholland, F. C. Shelton, L. N. Copes, M. J. Hortman, J. A. Funstan, J. D. McKeithen, Jr., L. D. Rogers, R. G. Frasier, L. A. Smith, T. O. Mills, Aline Banister, R. J. Wills, J. E. Zufall, M. M. DeWees, Ruby Pettit, S. D. Burnett, Colquette, Lee Hetzler, Noland Justice, Betty Fisher, M. W. Montgomery, two visitors, Mrs. Leon Eppinett, Mrs. G. C. Kirkpatrick and the guest speaker Mrs. W. R. Gates.

HILLYER SPEED LAMKIN WILL HAVE FIRST NOVEL PUBLISHED IN JANUARY

Twenty-two year old Hillyer Speed Lamkin whose first published story "Comes A Day," appeared in this month's issue of Mademoiselle is a lucky young man indeed. He apparently has experienced few of the difficulties of most aspiring writers who fail to have their first works published.

The author of "Tiger In the Garden," his first novel, the scene of which is laid in Louisiana, will have the satisfaction of seeing it published by Houghton-Miflin in January.

Hillyer Speed, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Lamkin of this city received his bachelor of arts degree from Harvard after taking a year out of school to reside in Europe. During his stay on the continent he spent the greatest part of his time in France, where for four months he was affiliated with the American embassy.

He lead a pleasant existence and saw a side of French life which few young men enjoy. During his sojourn he was entertained by various celebrities who included the Duke and Duchess of Windsor and Madame Schiaperelli, the famed designer.

Presently he is living in New York where he occupies an apartment in the East Eighties which has among its furnishings several interesting pieces which he brought back to this country.

The young author is planning a visit to his parents here in the near future.

DOUBLE WEDDING CEREMONY TAKES PLACE IN LAKE PROVIDENCE HOME

On Saturday, Sept. 10, at 9:30 in the morning, two daughters of Mrs. Harry John White, and the late Mr. White, were united in marriage, in a ceremony at the home of the brides' mother. The Rev. C. A. Martin, pastor of the Lake Providence Baptist Church officiated.

Marking the area for the exchange of vows, which took place before double windows of the living room, were floor baskets filled with pink roses and cannas.

Miss Zola White became the bride of Mr. John William Schonfarber, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Schonfarber. Her one piece frock was of dove colored crepe with a V-neckline. Self-covered buttons extended from the bodice neckline into the pleats of the skirt. Her shoulder corsage was of lilies.

Miss Josephine White, in becoming the bride of James Leroy Wilks, son of Mr. and Mrs. James H. Wilks of Harrisonburg, La., was gowned in a black crepe dress with a bodice embroidered in beads and sequins. The fullness of the skirt draped into curved pockets at both sides of the belt. A band of velvet at the throat was worn with an antique brooch of rhinestones and sapphires. Her shoulder corsage was of Guernsey lilies.

Brothers of the brides' Mr. Owen White, and Mr. Fred White, and their wives were the attendants. Mrs. Owen White wore a tan linen frock, and Mrs. Fred White a two-piece suit of brown and white seersucker, with pearl button trim.

Immediately following the wedding ceremony an informal reception was held. The refreshment table was overlaid with an ecru lace cloth, and bore twin wedding cakes and coffee.

Mr. and Mrs. Schonfarber left on a motor wedding trip to Covington, Mandeville and New Orleans, and Mr. and Mrs. Wilks went to Harrisonburg for a visit with the groom's parents.

Both couples will live in Lake Providence.

SEWING HINTS GIVEN TO AID

Mrs. Swift Tells How To Succeed In Fashioning Clothing

Many materials this fall have a decided nap, such as velvet, velveteen, corduroy and wool broadcloth. On such materials, the pattern must be placed so that every piece runs in the same direction. Therefore, you can not cut your skirts by folding the material. Each piece must be cut separately. This, of course, takes more material. Look on your pattern for the amount of material needed under the "with nap" column.

When buying plaids and stripes, remember that in matching these, more material is required. Consult your clerk as to the extra material needed, as this depends on the size and placing of stripes and plaids.

Revers, collars, pocket flaps and cuffs should be interlined, even though the pattern does not state this is necessary. In fact, you should keep cotton muslin or domestic in the work basket at all times. Of course, this interlining should be preshrunk. Interfacings are necessary to avoid that weak look and to give collars, revers, cuffs and flaps a better "standing."

In shortening dresses remember the hem will be much flatter and be less noticeable from the right side if the fullness or darts are put in and then the tape applied. In woolen clothes, of course, the fullness should be shrunk before the tape is put on.

The adjustable corder or zipper foot is really needed when putting in zippers. The stitching should be done from the lower end of the zipper toward the upper end. This adjustable foot makes it possible to do so.

TALLULAH

Friends in Tallulah will be interested to learn of the birth of a daughter to Mr. and Mrs. Pierce Landry on Lafayette. She has been named Bertha Marguerite. Mrs. Landry will be remembered in Tallulah as Miss Eula Gilfoil.

Ralph Linton of Shreveport was a recent guest of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Linton.

Miss Betty Stover of Greenwood, Miss., was a week-end guest of Miss Lottie Louise Lee.

Mrs. S. J. Bailey of Herrodsburg, Ky., is visiting Mrs. C. S. Pierce. Mrs. Bailey is a former resident of Tallulah and her friends here are happy at the privilege of greeting her again.

Mrs. Lillian Norvall of Albuquerque, N. M., is visiting Miss Amy Holmes.

Miss Barbara Anne Todd, a bride-elect, was delightfully complimented when Mrs. Albert Sevier and Miss Barbara Sevier entertained with a luncheon at the attractive home, "Evergreen Plantation." The table with its cutwork linen cloth was centered with a beautiful arrangement of white dahlias and a corsage of red dahlias marked the place for each guest while the bride's place was also marked with a gift in her chosen silver pattern.

The guests included Miss Todd, her mother, Mrs. Colvin H. Todd, Miss Lottie Louise Lee, Mrs. Robert Todd, Miss Sue Buford, Miss Patsy Patrick, Mrs. Andrew L. Sevier, Jr., Mrs. Warren Sevier and Mrs. F. W. Gandy, Jr.

Mrs. Billy Kitchens and baby are guests of Miss Christine Kitchens. Mrs. Kitchens is the former Miss Virginia Thompson of Tallulah.

Mrs. Harry Placke and young son, Allen, of Pittsburgh, Pa., are guests of Mrs. Placke's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Lancaster.

Mrs. Harrie Hue Devine and children of Macon, Ga., are visiting Mrs. J. H. Devine.

BILLIE LAWANDA BAKER WEDS MR. THOMAS W. HASSION RECENTLY

The wedding of Miss Billie LaWanda Baker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Baker of this city, and Mr. Thomas W. Hassion, son of Mr. and Mrs. John V. Hassion, of West Monroe, took place at the bride's home, in the presence of friends and relatives recently.

White clematis vines and gladioli formed the background for the candlelight ceremony, which was performed by the Reverend W. H. Giles.

The bride wore a dusty rose gabardine suit with navy blue accessories and a white orchid corsage. She carried a white Bible adorned with tuberoses with satin streamers.

Mrs. Opal Loyce Simmons, sister of the bride, served as her only attendant. She wore a light blue suit with brown accessories and corsage of pink tuberoses.

Mr. Freddie Slaton served as the best man.

The mother of the bride wore a royal blue gabardine suit with black black accessories and a corsage of pink carnations. The bridegroom's mother wore a cinnamon crepe dress with brown accessories. Her corsage was of pink carnations also.

A reception at the home of the bride's parents followed the ceremony.

The bride's table was overlaid with an old fashioned linen cloth. Candlelight tapers glowed at each end of the table and in the center was a traditional wedding cake. Assisting in the serving were Mrs. Audie Shaw, Mrs. Otta Green and Mrs. Hazel Baker.

Out of town guests included: Mr. and Mrs. Wiley C. Welch and family from Arkansas; Mrs. Idell Cummings, Mrs. Lula James, Mrs. Alma Yeary, Mrs. Olla New, Mrs. Nora Peeples, Mr. Charles Cummings, and Miss Etta Joe New, all of Athens, Louisiana.

Mr. and Mrs. Hassion live at 1504 Riverside, this city.

BARKDULL FAULK P.-T. A. HEARS TALK BY PRINCIPAL

Parents and teachers of the Barkdull Faulk School met in the auditorium Thursday for the first Parent-Teachers Association meeting of this year.

The president, Mrs. H. E. Rivers, called the meeting to order. After various reports were given, the new principal, Miss May Coker, introduced members of the faculty. There are three newcomers to the faculty this year, namely, Mrs. Gladys Seymour, second grade; Mrs. Mae C. Snapp, sixth grade and Mrs. Frances Crowell, fourth grade.

Due to the resignations of the first and second vice-presidents, these two vacancies were filled by Mrs. C. M. Lobrano, who was elected first vice-president and Mrs. George Shields, second vice-president.

The president called attention to the district meeting to be held in West Monroe October 13. She also stated that a school of instruction is to be held September 26.

It was announced that the city of Monroe has provided bus transportation for children residing on South Second, South Third, South Fourth and nearby streets. A bus leaves the intersection of Mary street and Winnsboro road at 7:45 a. m., proceeds up South Second street, follows the regular Bernstein Park bus route to town, arriving in town at 8:05 a. m. It returns to Barkdull Faulk School and the children reach the school at 8:30 a. m. The bus picks up the students at the regular bus stop on Gordon avenue at 2:40 p. m. and they are taken directly home. This bus service is greatly appreciated by residents of the area which it serves.

The parents representing each room were counted and the prize was awarded to the third grade, taught by Miss Breard, for having the most mothers present.

OTTO PASSMAN IS SPEAKER AT P.-T. A. MEETING LAST WEEK

The Lida Benton P.-T. A. had three interesting guests at its first fall meeting on September 15

The Rev. C. Roger Johnson, of Central Baptist Church opened the meeting with a prayer.

The chief speaker was Congressman Otto Passman, who discussed the financing of public schools. He was introduced by Mrs. Fagan Cox, a past state P.-T. A. president.

The installation of playground equipment was approved with an appropriation of $100 made. The project will be under the direction of Mr. Wallace Kendall as chairman.

Mayor George Breece Will Address Members Of League Of Voters

Tomorrow at noon the Camelia room of the Virginia Hotel will be the scene of the League of Women Voters' first general meeting of the fall season. The main speaker at the luncheon will be Mayor George Breece, whose topic will be "The Accomplishments of the Present Administration." Mrs. John Fox, finance chairman, will launch the league's financial drive for the current year.

Mrs. E. N. Jackson, luncheon chairman, reports a good number of reservations. She attributes this to large increase in league membership in the last few months. Many members are planning to bring guests, she states.

BRIDE AND GROOM

Photographed following their recent marriage in Vicksburg, Miss., were Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Moore, Jr., of Dubach. The bride is the former Miss Sue Priestley of Vicksburg. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Moore of Union parish.

LAKE PROVIDENCE

Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Hill are home from Mercy Hospital in Vicksburg where Mr. Hill was treated for a broken hip.

Mrs. C. B. Mitchell is in Monroe to spend ten days with her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Koserog and to make the acquaintance of her recently arrived grandson, Charles Edward Koserog.

Rev. A. A. Collins, Grady McDonald and John Deen, representing the Lake Providence Methodist board of stewards presented Mr. W. G. Roberts, who moves to Monroe, with a life Schaffer pen and pencil set as a token from that body of faithful service and fellowship. The Rev. Mr. Collins made the presentation to Mr. Roberts, who had served long and faithfully in previous years, as treasurer of the board.

Mrs. Bessie B. Powell and daughter, Miss Elizabeth Powell, are enjoying visits from Mrs. Lillian P. Gross and daughter, Mrs. Thayer McCoy of Beaumont, and went with them to Greenville on Sunday for a Powell family reunion with Mr. and Mrs. Louis Johns. To join them there were Mr. and Mrs. Warren Powell and daughters, Prudence and Georgeanna of Shreveport.

Mrs. J. W. McDaniel and daughter, Joyce, motored to Calhoun Thursday to be with Mr. Cleve McDaniel, who is critically ill.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence H. Richards left Thursday for Stillwater, Okla., where the former will enroll for a year's schooling at Oklahoma A. and M., for a course of technical instruction in map and pipeline drafting.

Mrs. R. M. Hamberlin, Mrs. W. G. Roberts and daughter, Roxiana, Mrs. J. W. McDaniel and daughter, Joyce, spent Tuesday in Monroe. Both Mr. Hamberlin and Mr. Roberts are members of the K. R. Young party being transferred to Monroe. Mr. and Mrs. Roberts have purchased a home on Gordon avenue and Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Hamberlin and son, Dickie, will be at home after Sept. 15, in a duplex on Mulberry.

Lake Providence friends regret the loss of these three fine families, the Youngs, Roberts, and Hamberlins as they have been active in social, religious and community organizations and their leaving is a great loss in these activities.

Lake Providence friends have been advised that Mrs. Preston Trim, the former Miss Pearl Muirhead, now residing in Pedro Miguel, C. Z., recently won a cup in a golf tournament. Last year Mrs. Trim, an enthusiastic golfer, was winner of the women's division in the tournament there.

Leaving Saturday for Baton Rouge are Mrs. Roland Knecht, who is returning home after a visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John J. Nelson, Mr. and Mrs. Brown Nelson, who will be located there for the next L. S. U. session as Mr. Nelson will enroll in the school of geology for his senior year, and Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Butler and daughter, who will spend the week end.

STORY HOURS WILL BE CONTINUED AT PUBLIC LIBRARIES

The story hours held at the Monroe and West Monroe branches of the Ouachita parish public library during the summer months were most successful and attracted a large group of listeners. It was planned to discontinue after school opened; however, so many parents have requested that they be continued, that it has been decided to have a story hour each Saturday morning at 10:00 a. m. at both the Monroe and the West Monroe branches. The first story hours will be held on September 24 and there will be one each Saturday thereafter. Children who live outside the Twin Cities are cordially invited to attend the story hour at the most convenient branch, according to Miss Frances Flanders, parish librarian.

Miss Margie Lynch, librarian of the West Monroe branch will tell the stories in West Monroe while Miss Martha Ann Scott, assistant librarian of the Ouachita parish library will tell the stories in Monroe. Both Miss Scott and Miss Lynch were graduated from the Library School at L. S. U. in June of this year. Both have taken courses in story telling and are popular with their hearers.

Story telling is one of the oldest arts of the human race. Long before the day of the written word, the legends of the tribes were handed down from one generation to another. Most children love to hear stories. The library is very happy to be able to offer this service to its patrons. Parents of children from the ages of four to ten are especially urged to see that their children take advantage of this opportunity. The story hours will start promptly at 10:00 and will be over at 10:30, it is pointed out.

RHYTHMIC LINE SUBJECT OF TALK AT GARDEN CLUB

The Garden Study Club met Monday afternoon with Mrs. Henson Coon and in the absence of Mrs. Floyd Stone, the president, the business session was presided over by Mrs. C. A. Caldwell.

Mrs. John Lewis talked on "The Rythmic Line That Produces Most of the Blue Ribbons in Flower Shows" and illustrated her talk by making several arrangements. Mrs. Lewis declared, "The Hogarth curve, a languorous, serpentine line forming a lazy "S", has become the symbol of American art."

She made corrections in the arrangements displayed by the members, using in her own arrangements roses, zinnias and marigolds.

The following members were present: Mrs. Lewis, Mrs. C. T. Johnson, Mrs. C. A. Caldwell, Mrs. Norman Coon, Mrs. P. B. Snodgrass, Mrs. J. R. Coulter, Mrs. Lloyd Walters, Mrs. R. B. Henry and Mrs. H. E. Wilson.

LADIES RELIEF SOCIETY MEETS AT WEST MONROE HOUSE

The Ladies Relief Society of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints held a social meeting Thursday night at the home of Lillian Smith in West Monroe.

LaFaye Hudnall, president of the branch organization, spoke on cooperation and the essential fact that it is to the success of an organization.

Lelia Crider spoke on the history of the society and pointed out that it was organized in 1842 and has been in continuous existence longer than any ladies' organization in the United States. The organization began with eighteen charter members, and eight who were elected in their absence, and has grown to a membership of 115,686 in almost every country of the world. She told of the outstanding qualities and leadership of the national presidents through all the years and of their activities and participation in and assistance to other national welfare organizations.

A preview was given of the lessons that will be taught for the coming year. Mrs. Anne Bivins outlined the theology and social science lessons; Mrs. Barbara Hatcher discussed the visiting teacher lessons; Mrs. Lelia Crider gave an outline of the work director lessons; and Mrs. Doris Tynes covered the literature lessons.

There was a period of entertainment followed by refreshments.

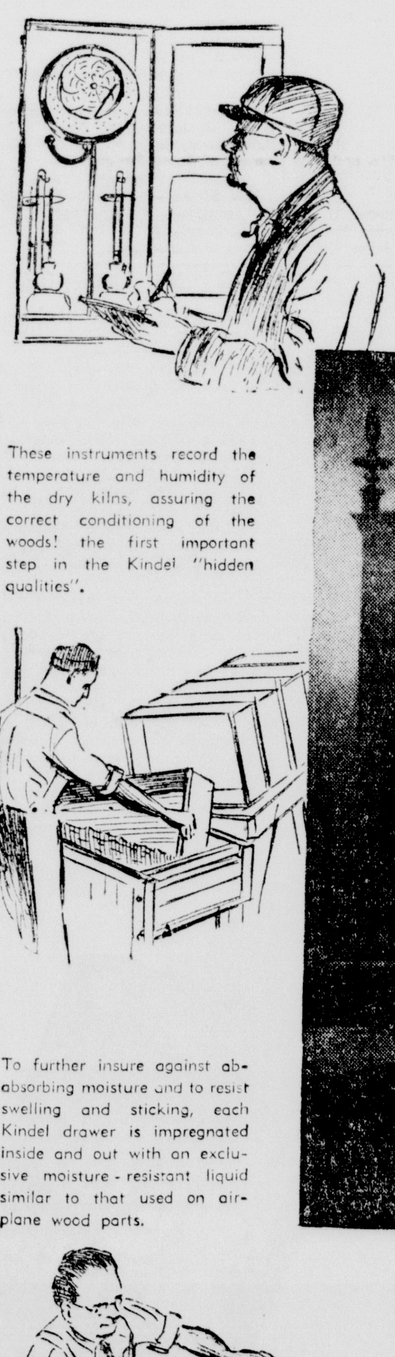
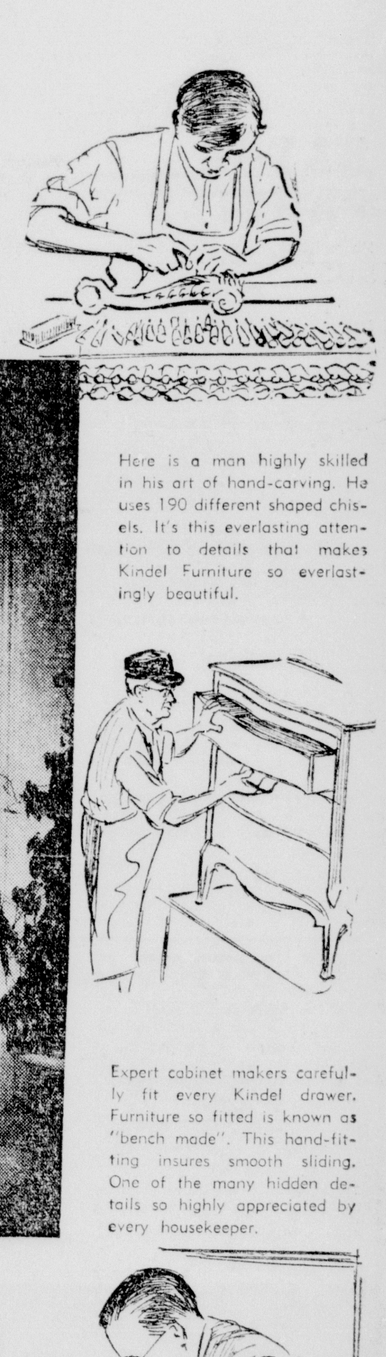
HIDDEN QUALITIES OF THE FINEST FURNITURE

by Kindel OF GRAND RAPIDS

From the sensitive hands of America's finest furniture craftsmen . . . skilled in the rare art of creating beautiful furniture from time-mellowed woods . . . comes quality of furniture that never loses its charm.





These instruments record the temperature and humidity of the dry kilns, assuring the correct conditioning of the woods! the first important step in the Kindel "hidden qualities".

To further insure against absorbing moisture and to resist swelling and sticking, each Kindel drawer is impregnated inside and out with an exclusive moisture-resistant liquid similar to that used on airplane wood parts.

To reproduce the variations in tone and depth of color, as well as the mellow surface lustre which time has given to well cared for antiques, requires all 21 hand operations used in applying the Kindel "Oxford finish".

Here is a man highly skilled in his art of hand-carving. He uses 190 different shaped chisels. It's this everlasting attention to details that makes Kindel Furniture so everlastingly beautiful.

Expert cabinet makers carefully fit every Kindel drawer. Furniture so fitted is known as "bench made". This hand-fitting insures smooth sliding. One of the many hidden details so highly appreciated by every housekeeper.

Kindel furniture is designed by artists thoroughly trained in the traditions and principles of design; is correctly engineered for maximum utility and stability, with scientific economy in materials.

MARINE BAND IS TRUMAN'S PET

Famed Aggregation Will Play Here Twice On October 4

If the president of the United States has a hobby, it may be the U. S. marine band, because it is known officially as "The President's Own." President Harry Truman, who gave his approval for the 1949 tour, is popularly known as a lover of music. One of his favorite pastimes is playing the piano and he doubtless gets a lot of enjoyment out of hearing the marine band at various state functions in Washington.

There is a very good reason for the title "The President's Own" accorded the nation's first military band. It was a favorite of John Adams, second president of the United States and thereafter was acknowledged by all presidents down to the present day as the nation's best, the official military band. Thomas Jefferson was a warm admirer and sponsor of the famous band—Martin Van Buren first introduced the formal outdoor concerts at the Capitol grounds—and James Tyler initiated the concerts at the White House grounds. In 1855 President Franklin Pierce proposed legislation for increase in pay for bandsmen's service at Washington after the group had played for more than 50 years without remuneration.

No social function, no wedding or funeral during a century and a half has taken place without the beautiful rhythmic music of the U. S. marine band. It has played lively melodies or solemn dirges as the occasion demanded, but it has been an essential part of every happy or mournful occasion.

As a benefit for the building fund of the First Methodist Church, this band will play at Neville High School auditorium afternoon and night on October 4.

Tickets are available at Hewitt-Dew's Music store on DeSiard street.

Norway, which had been united with Denmark and Sweden in 1389, declared its independence in 1814 but the union of Norway and Sweden was not finally dissolved until 1905.

BOYISH DREAM COMES TRUE ON 5TH BIRTHDAY

Mickey Cottrell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack L. Cottrell, 1002 North Seventh street, Monroe, a polio victim and now in the polio center in New Orleans receiving treatment, was made happy when a childish dream came true on his fifth birthday, when he was made an honorary member of the New Orleans fire department. The picture above shows his delight at the honor. Incidentally he is recovering rapidly from his illness.

Man Buried In Sand Saved By Wife, Police

EAU CLAIRE, Wis., Sept. 17.—(AP)—Ray Tafel, 36, had only time for a frantic cry before the collapsing sand walls of a nine-foot hole he was digging buried him today. That outcry—and his family—saved his life.

Tafel's wife, Effie, 36, phoned police and then rushed to the hole and began clawing through the sand. A foot from the surface she reached her husband's head. Effie kept her hand over her husband's face and the eight Tafel children kept a fearful vigil at the hole until police and firemen arrived. Tafel was freed within 30 minutes of the cave-in.

Even though the men who dug him out arrived quickly, police said Tafel would have suffocated but for his wife's action. Her hand, they said kept the sand out of Tafel's nose and mouth and enough air filtered down along her arm to keep him breathing.

Tafel, a railroad brakeman, was shaky but unhurt. Police had to argue him into being hospitalized for a check. He was digging the hole down to his sewer line.

Gov. Earl Long To Open New Highway

An important link in the highway system of central Louisiana has been completed and plans are arranged for the official opening of this road on September 27, according to Sylvan Nelken, of Natchitoches, president of the Central Louisiana Association.

Highway 20, between Alexandria and Natchitoches, is now a through paved road and officials of the Central Louisiana Association, Alexandria Chamber of Commerce and Natchitoches Chamber of Commerce are joining hands to celebrate the occasion with a ribbon-cutting ceremony and an old-time barbecue.

Nelken said that Governor Earl K. Long has agreed to be on hand to officially open the highway. Other prominent state officials will include Lieutenant-Governor William J. "Bill" Dodd, director of the highway department, R. B. Richardson, and Albert A. Fredericks, executive secretary to Governor Long. Organization officials of central Louisiana, including the mayors of fourteen parishes, school board members of the parishes, police jurors of the parishes and several chamber of commerce presidents.

Mrs. E. B. Shipp's Funeral Is Set

The funeral of Mrs. Emma Byrne Shipp, 95, who died in her home, 1903 North Third street Friday night, will be held in the Hixson Brothers Funeral Home chapel this afternoon at 4 o'clock. First Reader E. A. Fitler, of the First Church of Christ Scientist, will officiate. Interment will be in Riverview Burial Park.

Mrs. Shipp moved to Monroe in 1891 and has resided here ever since living through the years in the house in which her death occurred. In her younger years she was active in the affairs of Monroe and known and highly regarded by a wide circle of friends.

She is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Willie Lawhead of Monroe and Mrs. Addie Walker of Waveland, Miss.; a sister, Mrs. Lee Lewis of Ferriday; a granddaughter, Mrs. Harold Hicks of Mississippi; and a great-granddaughter, Tommie Jane Lawhead. Dale Lawhead, a local mortician, who died some years ago, was a grandson of Mrs. Shipp.

Carnegie Course Starting Here

The Dale Carnegie course in public speaking, salesmanship, making friends and in short, creating a successful personality, will be given again in Monroe. Last year it was presented to a large class under the sponsorship of the Pilot Club. So many were unable to attend that it is being given again this year, under this club's sponsorship.

Monday at 6:30 p. m. at Hotel Virginia the course will start with lesson No. 1, and the interested public is cordially invited to attend this opening class just to get acquainted and learn how important and lacking in formality this course can prove.

The instructor, Harold Abbott, has been selected with painstaking care. He possesses a fine virile personality and makes everyone feel quite at home and able to cast aside diffidence and take active part in the work if work it can be called. Most of those who took the course last year declare that it was fun from start to finish, and salesmen and others whose chief asset is a superior personality, found that it added many dollars to their earnings, just following along the lines that the course suggested.

BREARD TO HEAD CHEST CAMPAIGN

Banker Named Drive Chairman; Goal Of $47,928 Set For 1949-50

John M. Breard, vice-president of the Central Savings Bank and Trust Company, has been chosen to head the 1949 Community Chest Drive, it was announced Saturday by Chest President John Sherrouse, Jr. Mr. Sherrouse said in announcing the appointment: "Mr. Breard has been one of this community's leading citizens for nearly a quarter of a century. We are indeed proud that he has accepted our summons to shoulder the burden of the coming campaign."

Mr. Breard's community leadership constitutes a long list. He was the "father" of the present courthouse, being one of the initial instigators in arousing interest in its construction. Mr. Breard is also largely responsible for the widening of Louisville avenue from the bridge to Sterlington road. He also advocated the bridge across the Ouachita, linking Monroe and West Monroe on Louisville avenue. He is past president of the Kiwanis Club and was a member of the Ouachita parish police jury for 28 years, serving 12 of them as its president. Mr. Breard was president of the Louisiana Police Jurors Association for 4 years and is now member of the state advisory board.

"It is my intention to call upon approximately 600 voluntary workers in order that we may successfully reach our goal," said Mr. Breard. At the same time, Breard appointed his various committee chairmen which will include E. J. Whitman, chairman of the advance gifts committee; David Agnew, in charge of general solicitation; D. C. Harper, in charge of West Monroe; Mrs. E. L. Marchman, who will lead the women's division, and Jones Huskey, to handle campaign publicity.

The budget committee submitted a figure of $47,928 to meet the requirements for chest operation in 1949 and 1950 which was adopted by the board of directors. The various Red Feather services of the Community Chest are: Boy Scouts of America, Ouachita Parish Girl Scouts, Monroe Maternal and Infant Welfare Clinic, Red Shield Boys' Club, Salvation Army, Y. W. C. A., Twin City P.-T. A. Child Health and Welfare, West Monroe Recreation Council and Colored Community Welfare. It is to be noted that an agency which was included last year, the U. S. O., has been dropped. This was by board action some weeks ago.

The drive which is to be launched this year will open on October 3 and continue through October 17. In his acceptance to the board of directors of the ommunist Chest, Mr. Breard stated: "Our social problems are mounting. The population of the Twin Cities has increased and with this increase, there has been brought about a great demand for Red Feather services. Today, it costs more in one year to keep an automobile oiled and greased than it used to cost a man in a life time to buy axel grease for the old farm wagon—but nobody wants to go back to the axel grease era. We all must work hard, long, and diligently. It will be my job and that of all of our workers to remind the people of Monroe and West Monroe that through the plan of pledging and budgeted giving, they have time enough to give enough."

High Mass Held For Col. Rolleigh

A high mass of requiem was held for Col. Louis F. Rolleigh, 56, Monroe business man who met death in a highway 80 automobile-bus collision late Thursday night, conducted at 10 a. m. at St. Matthew's Catholic Church. There was a rosary at Hixson Brothers Funeral chapel held Friday night and another on Saturday night.

A short prayer service will be held at 3 p. m. today in the funeral home after which the interment will take place in the Catholic cemetery.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Louis F. Rolleigh; a son, L. F. Rolleigh, Jr., three daughters, Mrs. J. M. Whitfield, Virginia, and Misses Marilyn Rolleigh and Alice Rolleigh, both of Monroe; a brother, Eugene Rolleigh, of Arkansas; two sisters, Mrs. W. J. Riley, Monroe, and Mrs. Jack Doyle of Shreveport, and three grandchildren.

Legion To Induct 25 New Members

C. B. Braun, membership chairman of the American Legion, L. B. Faulk Post No. 13, has announced the initiation of twenty-five new members to be conducted at the post home on Monday night.

The American Legion Post has been offered an opportunity to sponsor in Monroe soon one of the greatest presentation ever shown in this country or abroad. Commander Burt Sperry urges every member to be present at Monday night's meeting in order that this offer may be discussed and plans formulated.

There will also be available application blanks for veterans who wish to apply for National Service Life Insurance dividends. Members of the post will be available to help any veteran who desires assistance in completing application.

DIX ILL

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 17. — (AP) — Richard Dix, 54, former film star, remains in grave condition, his physician said today. Dix suffered a heart attack Aug. 10 and probably will be hospitalized several weeks.

TOUR WILL SHOW SOIL-REBUILDING

1,000-acre Tract Rehabilitated By Reforestation, Conservation

RUSTON, Sept. 17. —(Special)— A field tour of a 1,000-acre tract that was completely rehabilitated by reforestation and soil conservation practices will be a feature of the Fifth district Keep Louisiana Green conference Thursday, Octoberf 6, George T. Madison, Bastrop, district committee chairman, said today.

The inspection tour, which is scheduled to begin at 10:00 a. m., will be held at Shadow Glen Farms located 11 miles northeast of Ruston on highway 44, he reported.

The farms, owned by Glen L. Shadow, a Ruston businessman, were purchased about 15 years ago when the tract consisted of cut-over timber land or badly eroded and worn-out cotton farms. As a result of reforstation and sound soil conservation methods this section has been developed into one of the showplaces of northeast Louisiana.

Following the morning field trip, an old-fashioned barbecue luncheon will be served at noon. Later that afternoon the state forestry commission will stage a demonstration with their latest forest fire-fighting apparatus.

The keep green program, a statewide plan of public education in forest fire prevention and reforestation is being sponsored by the Louisiana Forestry Association. In addition to Chairman Madison, district committee members include Mr. Shadow, vice-chairman; N. B. James, Farmerville; T. R. Moore, Monroe and L. C. Ewing, Jonesboro.

The Ruston conference will bring together residents of Lincoln, Union, Morehouse, East Carroll, West Carroll, Madison, Richland, Ouachita and Jackson parishes.

District Courts To Convene Monday

Fourth judicial district courts will convene Monday following a two-month vacation with the Morehouse parish grand jury meeting in Bastrop and Judge David I. Garrett presiding over the legal sessions in Monroe.

Four cases, three of which involve killings, will be presented to the Morehouse grand jury, District Attorney Fred Fudickar said.

Judge Edward L. Gladney, Jr., will instruct the grand jury scheduled to be selected at 10 a. m. Monday.

Forty-three misdemeanor cases are set for district court in Monroe and 17 felonies are scheduled to be tried, according to the district attorney.

Trial dates have not been set on the court docket in any of the criminal cases.

The Ouachita parish grand jury is scheduled to convene October 3, Fudickar said. He pointed out that at the resent time he knew of only eight cases to be heard by the jury there.

D. Dean Farr, clerk of court, said the parish jury commission would meet September 19 and select a veniremen list from which jurymen will be selected.

The 17 felony cases to be tried in criminal court this fall include three car thefts, three burglaries, an armed robbery, aggravated escape, two forgeries, three aggravated batteries, two thefts, an aggravated arson case and a public contract fraud.

From the twelfth century children have been learning to repeat this prayer of faith. Back of that are the other centuries when families quoted the 121st Psalm from which it was doubtless taken...

"Your Guardian will not slumber,
He will neither slumber nor sleep."

A precious lad with the dimpled cheeks, knowing so little what the world holds of joy and of sorrow, of foes and of friends, of sickness and of health, of defeat and of triumph. Perhaps he has mother and father now and every care for his happiness. Who knows what tomorrow holds for him? You and I may not be near to counsel and to encourage. What then?

Wise and thoughtful for all the years ahead were the parents who early introduced the lad to his eternal Friend and helped him to be at home in the Father's universe. Some day every boy and girl will have to stand alone; will there be strength from hidden springs, a sense of sustaining Power? Some day every woman and every man must make a choice between the high way and the low; will there be light that shines on the good path the sou. should take?

Every child born into God's world has a right to know that God is Creator and Sovereign, that His will finally must prevail. Every girl and every boy has a right to be sure that the universe is friendly and that its basic principle is Love. Every living person has a right to trust and to faith and to hope. Every human being has a right to know that he is made in the image of God and eligible to a place in the divine Family. We are both animal and divine spirit; God breathed His own Spirit into man and he became a living Spirit, like unto God. Every child has a right to live reverently as in the continuing and blessed fellowship with the Highest; he has a right to the adult helpfulness that puts his feet in the Way of Life. Teach him to say, "Now I lay me down to sleep, I pray the Lord my soul to keep. If I should die before I wake, I pray the Lord my soul to take."

That citizens of the surrounding territory may become better acquainted with their churches, this page is reverently dedicated by:

CUB SCOUTERS HOLD MEETING

Badges And Advancements Are Awarded To Many Members

Cub Scout pack No. 34 held its September meeting in the First Methodist Church annex Thursday night, with 85 cub parents and friends present.

The flag ceremony opened the meeting and was led by Cubs Henry Hathorn and Billy Greenlee. Advancements were presented to the following cubs: Jackie Hurdle, wolf badge, wolf gold arrow and wolf silver arrow; Jimmy Wroten, wolf gold arrow; Ronald Sammons, wolf silver arrow and bear badge; Donald Medaries, lion gold arrow; Edward Meacham, Lion badge; Harry Charles Hebert, lion silver arrow; Duke Yates, bear badge. The presentations were made by Assistant Cubmaster Henry Princehouse.

Wibelos badges were presented to Jimmy Ford, Billy Greenlee, Henry Hathorn, Harry Charles Hebert, Paul Roye and Robert Smith.

Jimmy Ford, Henry Hathorn, Billy Greenlee, Duke Yates, Charles Carter, Edward Meacham and Paul Roye were graduated to Scout troops 34 and 22. Den Chiefs Billy Funderburk, Donald Hurdle and Jimmy Lea welcomed the Cub Scouts joining troop 34.

The cubmaster expressed the pack's appreciation for the faithful past services to the retiring den mothers and pack committee members.

National roll call was conducted by Council Commissioner J. W. Webster and Assistant Cubmaster Princehouse.

Eleven first nighter prospective members and their parents were welcomed at the meeting.

Two short films were shown when Robert Smith led the close with the cub benediction.

CALLS FAIR MEETING

President Tom Hicks of the Ouachita Valley Fair Association has called a meeting of all fair officials and others who are interested, to be held at the agricultural building in West Monroe, on Tuesday, September 20 at 7:30 p. m. At this meeting will be just two weeks before the formal opening of the fair, a full attendance is urgently requested.

3 MAJOR EVENTS BOOKED IN TECH

Concert Association To Present Famous Programs During Season

RUSTON, La., Sept. 17.—(Special)—Three major attractions have been booked already for the coming season of the Louisiana Tech Concert Association, with the membership campaign scheduled to get underway Sept. 26 and continue through Oct. 1.

This was the announcement made by L. V. E. Irvine, chairman, who said that the artists already under contract for performances here include:

Phil Spitalny and his "Hour of Charm" all-girl orchestra, with Evelyn and her "Magic Violin," scheduled for two performances Tuesday, Oct. 18, at 2:15 and 8 p. m.

Efrem Kurtz, internationally famous conductor, and the Houston Symphony Orchestra, scheduled Tuesday, Feb. 28, for performances at 2:15 and 8 p. m.

Lauritz Melchoir, famous Metropolitan Opera Company tenor and Hollywood movie star, scheduled Monday, March 13, at 8 p. m. and also Tuesday, March 14, at 8 p. m.

In listing these performances, Mr. Irvine said, "The addition of other talented artists to the concert association schedule will depend upon the outcome of the season ticket sale during the membership campaign, Sept. 26-Oct. 1."

Membership fees this season were listed as follows: Adult reserved seat tickets, $9.15; junior reserved seat tickets, $7.32; regular adult tickets, $6.10; regular junior tickets, $4.27. All prices include state and federal taxes.

Hobbs Auxiliary Host To Guests

Mrs. Mary H. Brooks, president of the Ladies Auxiliary to Rodney J. Hobbs Post 1809, Veterans of Foreign Wars, presided over the regular meeting of the auxiliary held the past week. The meeting was well attended and two visitors were welcomed, Mrs. Vera E. Willensky, president of the 13th district and Mrs. Thelma Leehy, president of Hudson-Leehy Auxiliary of West Monroe, who made interesting talks.

A letter was read from Mrs. Thelma Messina, department president of New Orleans, notifying the auxiliary that she would pay her official visit during the month of October. She expressed herself well pleased with the progress of the Hobbs Auxiliary and congratulated them on winning an award for outstanding hospital work. Mrs. Willensky also congratulated the auxiliary and expressed herself as very proud that an auxiliary in her district received such a honor.

Mrs. Christine Hendry, conductress, whose resignation was received with much regret, notified the auxiliary that she was moving immediately to California. Mrs. Carrie Chandler, chairman of the Christmas card committee reported sales going nicely.

The gift awarded for the national home fund was presented to Mrs. Willensky. After the close of the regular meeting a social hour was enjoyed and at this time Mrs. Hendry was presented with a surprise going away gift from the members. Punch and cake was served.

The next regular meeting will be held Thursday night, September 22.

Allergic Woman Gets Annulment

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 17.— (AP) — Love conquers all but allergy.

That is the tragic story of Mrs. Joyce G. Holdridge, 27, who had to give up the husband she loved because, actually, she couldn't stand him.

Her two-year marriage to Nolan H. Holdridge, 26, San Francisco watchmaker, was annulled yesterday after she testified:

"I spent most of my time in hospitals. My condition was finally diagnosed as neurodematitis due to my being allergic to my husband. I was told that there was no cure as long as I continued associating with my husband.

"Whenever I was with him, I would break out in a rash from head to toe. This would clear up 24 hours after I left him . . . But it would recur even at the mention of his name."

She had absolutely no complaint about her husband's conduct.

The court, which earlier had denied her a divorce decree because she could not prove "cruelty" within the meaning of the law, commended Mrs. Holdridge's refusal to "trump up charges."

In granting the annulment, Superior Judge Ray Brockmann said: "Courts may be forced to recognize what medical science has discovered—that such allergies as Mrs. Holdridge complains of are a fact and not a caprice."

Mrs. Holdridge showed no sign of her allergy in court.

Her husband had remained 400 miles away in San Francisco.

The Star Spangled Banner was legally designated as the national anthem by an act of congress on March 3, 1931—117 years after it was written.

St. Matthew's To Conduct Debates

With prospects of several debates in Shreveport in the near future, St. Matthew's debate club organized and elected officers last week. The following officers were chosen for the school session 1949-1950: President, Tommy Elioff; vice-president, Deon Bezz; secretary, Lucille Tornatore; treasurer, Pat Jenevein. The members of the club selected as their motto: "Not by brawn, but by brain." Their colors will be the school colors, maroon and white, and their flower, the jasmine.

The team has already begun work on the brief of their constructive speeches for the national topic: "Resolved: That the president of the United States should be elected by the direct vote of the people." This is a topic of great interest as the abolition of the electoral college has been agitated for over one hundred years.

President Andrew Jackson urged it in the eight annual messages to congress between the years 1829-1836. Bills have appeared in the 70th, 72nd, 80th and 81st congress. In the 81st congress three Bills were proposed namely, the Gosset bill, the Lodge bill and the Langer bill. This issue, therefore, is a timely subject for debaters throughout the country.

Frost a plain cake with orange coconut frostings. To make it, cream about three tablespoons of butter or margarine. Add about two cups of confectioners' sugar gradually, working it in well, and thinning it with about a quarter cup of strained orange juice. When the frosting is smooth mix in a half cup or so of grated coconut.

M'CLENDON CLUB BOOSTING FAIR

Members Plan Exhibits In Exhibition To Be Held Next Month

The McClendon Home Demonstration Club met Thursday in the home of Mrs. Ruth Bennett, with the following members and visitors present:

Mesdames Joe Wellerman, Melvin Riser, Henry Blazier, Fred Riser, Connie Goodwin, E. P. Cobb, J. H. Finklea, Ruth Bennett, H. C. Guice, Frank Wellerman, E. J. Heckford, Bill Wellerman, B. C. Marshall, O. E. Pettit, O. O. Cloyd, T. P. Hale, A. McEacharn, Lorie Dorris, Beth Sandifer, O. H. Anding, C. H. Cloyd, Jim Griffin, T. J. Roberts, and T. A. Younse. Visitors included home demonstration agent, Mrs. E. D. Spielman, and Mesdames Ethel Black, M. E. Turner, W. F. Croft, Marie Johnson and Mrs. R. W. Germany.

After a very snappy demonstration of roll-making was exemplified by Mrs. Spielman, regular business of the meeting was taken up, a major portion of which was devoted to plans for the Ouachita Valley Fair, which will be thrown open to the public on October 4, 1949. Mrs. Fred Riser, reported that her committee consisting of herself and Mrs. Melvin Riser, Mrs. Frank Wellerman and Mrs. Connie Goodwin, had already secured booths, and made definite plans for decorations and exhibits. Similar reports were made by the committees on home demonstrations, baking and agriculture.

The former committee is made up of Mrs. Melvin Riser, chairman, together with Mrs. O. E. Pettit, and Mrs. Henry Blazier, and the latter, Mrs. T. P. Hale, chairman, with Mrs. Ruth Bennett, Mrs. H. C. Guice and Mrs. B. C. Marshall. A delicious five-course luncheon was then served, consisting of tomatoes stuffed with chicken salad on lettuce, hot rolls, coffee cake, pie and cold drinks.

It was stated that members who wished to attend the Rose Festival, to be held in Tyler, Texas, October 1-2, would have to arrange for their own transportation, and that if reservations had not been made for needed rooms in Tyler, this should be attended to immediately.

It was also stated that the annual "Planned Pantry Contest," sponsored by the Monroe Kiwanis Club, would again be an outstanding feature of the fair. All members who wish to enter must have their displays ready by September 26, at which time Mrs. Spielman, together with L. L. Price, of the agricultural department of Northeast Junior College, and chairman of the agricultural committee of the Monroe Kiwanis club, will make a tour of the parish, and view displays to be entered, after which they will be put on display at the fair, and judged by Mrs. Esther Cooley, consumers educational specialist of the extension service, who comes to us from a related activity at Northwestern State College.

There were a great many expressions of optimism as to the success of the 1949 fair, and everyone present enthusiastically predicted that it would be bigger and better in every way than any of its predecessors.

Polio Drive Is To Be Extended

Miss Freeda Mickel, chairman of the Ouachita parish chapter of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, Inc., announced Saturday that the polio emergency drive scheduled to have come to a close here Saturday, had been extended through Wednesday. Chapters in all parts of the country are extending the drive to give people a full opportunity to contribute in this crucial period, she said.

"Everyone realizes that we must raise sufficient money to take care of all patients who need help. The alternative is to be powerless to give any care at all to some patients, and perhaps inadequate care to others—either of which would be a tragedy none of us could tolerate," she said.

On Saturday street collections were in charge of the Beta Sigma Phi sorority.

The Women's Auxiliary of the First Presbyterian Church will be in charge Monday; women of the First Methodist Church on Tuesday, and of the First Baptist Church and Central Baptist on Wednesday.

The hearty support of the public is soilicited by Miss Mickel.

HELD FOR DRUNK DRIVING

Varner Manning, 21, of 615 River Bend, West Monroe, was arrested by Monroe police shortly after 2 a. m. Saturday and charged with operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of intoxicating liquor and damage to property. Late Saturday he was being held in the city jail in default of $400 bond.

NEW HIGHWAY POST OFFICE

Representative Otto B. Passman of the appropriations committee is shown inspecting the latest highway post office shortly after its arrival in Washington. R. L. Derrenberger, official of The Flxible Company, of Loudonville, Ohio, answered Representative Passman's pertinent questions concerning this new mode of mail transportation. As it was pionted out during the demonstration in Washington, farsighted officials of the post office department, in anticipating the continuing withdrawal of trains and foreseeing the need of providing an effective substitute for railway post office service loss due to this train curtailment, have been developing the highway post office service. Operated on the same basis as railway mail service, the mails are transported in these large bus-type vehicles built to the specifications of the post office department. They are equipped with all the facilities for sorting, handling, and dispatching of mail that are found in railway postal cars.

New Method Of Selecting State's Judges Discussed

Proposal Is Made To Make Post Appointive Instead Of Elective

BATON ROUGE, La., Sept. 17.—(AP)—The coincidence of vacancies on the United States and the Louisiana supreme court in recent days has stirred new discussion of methods of selecting judges.

This is one of the problems which almost certainly will be taken up next year by the proposed constitutional convention to rewrite the states basic law. There is already controversy over the plan that may be adopted in Louisiana.

President Truman, as the federal constitution directs, has filled the United States supreme court vacancy by appointing a justice.

Gov. Earl K. Long, as the state constitution directs, has called an election to fill the Louisiana supreme court vacancy and the Democratic party machinery has followed through by calling the primary which is, in Louisiana, the election that counts.

The issue is an appointive versus an elective judiciary. Nobody knows, of course, what the 1950 constitutional convention may decide on the subject. But one of the Louisiana Law Institute committees which are working on a draft constitution to be considered has under consideration a modified appointive system.

Such systems have been tried out in other states. They vary in detail, but the general plan is this:

The governor appoints a judge, either with free choice, or by selecting one name from a number of nominations made by a panel on which the legal profession is usually represented.

This judge serves a specified time, perhaps a full term, perhaps less. Then he faces an election, but not against a designated opponent. The question submitted to the voters is, "Shall Judge X be continued in office?" In effect, he is running against his record.

If the electors vote yes, that is that. If they vote no, the process starts over again with the naming of another judge.

Although the law institute has done is constitutional work in strict privacy, it became known at a bar association-law institute meeting earlier this year that a limited appointive plan was gaining favor for possible inclusion in the constitution draft.

A number of judges lost no time in saying they didn't like it. In informal discussions, lawyers divided on the issue and so did laymen.

In favor of electing judges—that the method is more democratic, that it keeps the judiciary from being used by an administration to repay political favors or to gain control over the courts, that it is a safeguard against being saddled with a judge who might deteriorate professionally or ethically.

In favor of appointing judges—that the method provides reasonable assurance of tenure and therefore makes the judiciary more attractive to the best legal talent, that a judge should not be forced to get into politics by running for office every few years, that in hot political campaigns judges may be elected on issues that have little to do with their fitness for the post.

The people of the United States as a whole have never made up their minds which system they prefer, as is demonstrated by the fact that all federal judges are appointed, while most state judges are elected.

In Louisiana, under the present constitution, the elective system has been carried about as far as it can go. All judges are elected, including the justices of the state supreme court and all, including the justices, are named from comparatively small districts. For instance, in the Oct. 5 Democratic primary, a justice who will form part of the state's highest court will be named by voters in only 11 parishes.

Any swing towards an appointive system, even with provision for popular referendum, would be a substantial change for Louisiana.

But there is strong sentiment, especially within the legal professions, for such a change.

"They say politicians would be named if governors had the appointing power. Probably some would. But experience has shown that a politician, once he is on the bench and does not have to play politics to stay there, frequently develops into an excellent judge. On the other hand, a man with high ideals elected judge and forced to campaign over and over again to keep his seat, often tends to act more and more like a politician. Appointment seems the better bet."

Simple Battery Charged To Dad

RUSTON, La., Sept. 17.—(Special)—Simple battery charges were filed against Olson Johnson yesterday after the Jackson parish grand jury filed charges.

Johnson, a farmer living about seven miles south of Ruston in Jackson parish, was arrested in Ruston April 4, when his son, Joe, who was attending the Eastland school told his teacher, Mrs. A. J. Owen, that the hurt on his leg was caused by a hot poker placed there by the child's father, Olson Johnson. The teacher reported the incident to the proper authorities and in turn the Jackson parish authorities were notified and Johnson was released from the Lincoln parish sheriff's department to the officers in the parish that Olson lived.

The child claimed that through fun he dropped a coal of fire in his daddy's shoe and this enraged the father and he stuck a red hot poker to the child's leg leaving an ugly burn.

Johnson is the head of a family of seven.

CIVIC MUSIC TO OPEN CAMPAIGN

Headquarters For Music Group Opens At Virginia Hotel On Sept. 26

The Monroe Civic Music Association campaign which gets under way officially September 26, will be under the direction of Miss Freeda Mickel, who will serve as campaign director, according to J. Paul Hewitt, president of the association.

Miss Mickel has recently headed two successful campaigns in Ouachita parish. Last year she served as campaign director for the March of Dimes drive for Ouachita parish and has just recently directed the emergency polio drive for this area. She received recognition for her work with the national foundation. Her picture and an accompanying commendation appeared in a late issue of the Foundation News published in New York.

Divisional chairmen scerving with Miss Mickel during the one week drive are Mrs. Florence Albritton, Mrs. Alta Faircloth, Miss Mary Humble, Findley Walker, Dave Agnew, and Mrs. Montez Baur. Each division chairman will have a number of captains working with them and a team of workers under each captain.

A major symphony has been assured for this season and other artists to be presented will be selected and announced immediately after the close of the membership campaign on October 1, when the amount of funds available for this purpose are known.

Admission to all civic music concerts is by membership card only as no tickets are sold for single oncerts. After October 1, the membership privilege is closed and no more members are accepted for another year.

Campaign headquarters will be opened at the Virginia Hotel just prior to the official starting date of the drive for membership. They will be maintained throughout the week's drive for the convenience of the division chairmen, their captains and workers and the general public.

The Monroe Cvic Music Association has presented some excellent artists in Monroe. Last year they were especially proud to present Patricia Munsell, young Metropolitan opera star who has appeared on the U. S. Steel radio program, been guest artist with the New York Symphony and appeared on other leading Sunday evening programs. With the acquisition of a major symphony to be presented in one of the concerts for the coming year, workers for this year feel that it will be an outstanding season in Civic Music.

IN MOVIELAND

By Jack Quigg
(For Bob Thomas)

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 17.—(AP)—"I took a part in a movie," said Quizmaster Art Linkletter, "thinking it would be good training for television. And boy, was I wrong!"

The blond, wisecracking radio M. C. insists the only thing he's learned that might help him in TV is how to memorize lines.

There's a lot more difference between film and video techniques than between radio and TV, Art finds. He thinks TV will be able to borrow little from the movies.

The ad lib artist is rollicking through his first film. He plays a quizmaster, natch, in "Champagne for Caesar," which lampoons giveaway programs. (One contestant, Ronald Colman, gets up to the $43,000,000 question).

Linkletter is certain that his unrehearsed "People Are Funny" air show is a natural for television. He has already tried it, here and in New York. But, like most top radio entertainers, he's in no hurry to make the switch.

Does he mind appearing in a movie that ribs giveaways:

"Look, if radio can't stand a little kidding, it doesn't deserve to survive."

Charles Laughton starts 52 one-night stands Oct. 1, reading excerpts from the Bible and other great books. His agency wants him to travel by train, but Laughton insists on motoring. Says that in all his years here he has seen practically nothing of the United States between New York and Hollywood.

As might be expected, "Champion" and "The Set-Up" started a cycle of prizefight pictures. Bill Williams, Barbara Hale's husband, says he'll make one, "The Doublecross," entirely in New York, utilizing Madison Square Garden for many of the scenes. He's after Wayne Morris as co-star.

Nothing like beating your own drum: Anne Baxter, who picked up two goatskin drums in Jamaica, now has a third, an American Indian war drum which she bought (for $150!) from a Navajo at Durango, Colo., where Anne went on location with "A Ticket to Tomahawk." What does she do with 'em? Well, she says she's learning to play them, "as a nice, quiet hobby."

Spike Jones, touring Michigan, has sent a frantic call to his Hollywood headquarters for a soprano to replace Eileen Gallagher, forced by illness to leave the troupe. Here's the catch: The replacement must have not only a fine voice but heft, too. She must weigh at least 250 pounds, for comedy routine purposes. Maybe Spike shoulda sent his SOS to La Scala, of the Met.

Building Permits

Permission was granted to Virgil L. Perry to remodel a dwelling at 220 Malvern street, at a cost of $1,000. Day labor will be employed.

C. E. Slade received a permit to erect a residence at 2507 Country Club Drive at a cost of $9,870. The owner will be the contractor.

A permit was granted to Angelina Slavant to remodel an apartment at 309 Stone avenue, at a cost of $600. Day labor will be hired.

Ivie Vallery received two permits to move airport buildings to 214 Powell street and 215 Collier street, at a total cost of $200. M. E. Posey will be the contractor.

To pep up an egg salad filling for sandwiches or stuffed tomatoes add a little vinegar, and prepared mustard along with the mayonnaise.

Modern Age To Blend With 1950 Ancient Church Rite

By Gorge Bria

Rome, Sept. 17.—(AP)—Holy Year 1950 will have modern trimmings undreamed of by the barefoot pilgrims who first answered the call to Rome in medieval times.

The jubilee year beginning this Christmas Eve promises to be remembered as the first great winged pilgrimage to the Eternal City.

As many as 2,000,000 Roman Catholics are expected to set out for Rome from the far corners of the earth. For the first time in history many will make the centuries old journey by air.

Airlines are arranging for extra planes and reducing rates for the "Jubilee Airlife." Italy plans to build a second big airdrome on the coast 20 miles from Rome to supplement Ciampino Airport in handliing the heavy traffic.

Ships and railroads also are reducing rates to make it easier for the less well-to-do faithful to reach Rome. Once in Rome the pilgrim will be able to make one of his ritual visits to the four great basilicas by subway. City authorities plan to open the long under-construction subway from the central railroad station to the bascilica of San Paolo Furori le Mura (outside the walls) by Christmas Eve.

But while wings and underground express trains will add machine age touches to the ancient ceremony of the church, the 1950 Holy Year will not lack its foot pilgrims. Some Italians will come afoot and there are reports some British Catholics will attempt to walk to Rome.

Pope Pius XII especially remembers the foot pilgrims of old in his Bull of May 26 proclaiming the Holy Year. He bade the modern pilgrims to remember their sacrifices and not come to Rome for a good time.

Ancient chants of the church will add to the blend of the modern and the ancient. Pilgrims preparing to come to Rome have been asked to practice singing Gregorian chants, the same medieval hymns intoned by the faithful who answered the first Holy Year call of Pope Boniface VIII in 1300.

Like the ancient pilgrims, their modern counterparts may find shelter in monasteries, convents and churches. The housing situation promises to be acute, although the Italian government and church authorities have embarked on construction projects to take care of the crowds.

The Holy Year ritual is built around the traditional visits to the basilicas of St. Peter's, St. Paul's, St. John Laterna, and Saint Mary Major. Roman Catholics in a state of grace—that is those who have confessed and obtained pardon for their sins and received communion—will earn plenary indulgences if they visit these four churches during the year. Catholics believe such indulgences erase punishment for past sins which otherwise would be served in purgatory after death.

Church authorities stress that the forth-coming jubilee will be important for the renewal of Christian virtues after the years of the war. In his bull, Pius XII called on the faithful to pray for universal peace and he urged them, further, to appeal to God to protect the church from "conspiracies, deceit and persecutions"—an obvious reference to the trials of the church in Communist-dominated lands.

The most colorful ceremonies of the holy year will be the opening and walling up of the holy door of St. Peter's basilica. The pope will do this himself on Christmas eve, 1949, and Christmas eve, 1950.

The pope knocks three times on the door with a silver hammer, singing "Open Unto Me the Gates of Justice."

The masonry has been loosened beforehand and is made to fall on the third blow. Jubilee penitentiaries then sweep and wash the threshold and the pontiff enters.

According to the Catholic encyclopedia, the symbolism of the ceremony probably is closely linked with the idea of the exclusion of Adam and Eve from paradise and the explusion and reconciliation of penitents. It also may have been influenced by the old idea of seeking sanctuary, the encyclopedia says.

Similar ceremonies are held at the holy doors of the three other basilicas with cardinals officiating.

The encyclopedia says the first Christian jubilee of which there is any precise record is the one proclaimed by Pope Boniface VIII in 1300. Scholars believe Pope Boniface was influenced by certain aged pilgrims who told him that great indulgences were granted to all pilgrims to rome about 100 years before.

Boniface intended that the holy year should be celebrated only once every hundred years. In the middle of the fourteenth century, however, Pope Clement VI was persuaded to shorten the term, particularly because the average span of life is so short that many otherwise could not hope to see any jubilee in their own lifetime. Clement proclaimed a jubilee in 1350.

During this holy year, a visit to the Church of St. John Lateran was added to the required visits to St. Peter's and St. Paul's. At the next jubilee held in 1390, St. Mary Major was added to the list, which has remained unchanged ever since.

Urban VI next proposed to hold a jubilee every 33 years as representing the period that Christ stayed on earth and also the average span of human life. Nicholas V, in 1450, decided they should take place every 25 years, a practice which has remained unchanged except for extraordinary jubilees, such as the last one, proclaimed by Pius XI in 1933 on the anniversary of the death of Christ.

During the ancient jubilees gay times were banned in Rome. There were no masked balls at carnival time and even the game of lotto (a numbers type lottery) was prohibited. Milder spirits modified the severity as the centuries rolled on.

Chroniclers of the holy years record a disaster and a plague in 1450. Two hundred persons were killed in a panic on the bridge of Saint Angelo near the Vatican, uncounted numbers died in the plague.

The man of the 1650 holy year was a Bavarian who came afoot from Germany carrying a 160-pound wooden cross on his shoulders. Twenty-five years later a 104-year-old man made the journey from Mantua, and was received twice by Pope Clement X who considered him an omen of good luck.

Many jubilees are marked by conversions. A record number of 29 Lutherans, 18 Calvanists, 13 "Dissident Orientals" and two anabaptists were converted during the jubilee of Pope Leo XII in the nineteenth century.

The chronicles also recall "disgusting incidents," according to the official bulletin of the general committee of the 1950 holy year. In 1650 a group of pilgrims from Ariccia fought it out at St. John's basilica with another group from Banco. A few days later two other groups battled and there were some dead.

Italian authorities are holding special "politeness" schools for the police preparatory to the influx of holy year crowds. They have been instructed to treat foreigners with kid gloves and to use good manners even if they have to "accompany some undesirables to the frontier."

Cookies that are being sent to boys and girls at school should be wrapped separately in waxed paper or aluminum foil.

CLAIMS SUIT IS WELFARE THREAT

A. And P. Says Anti-Trust Action Would Reduce Living Standards

Describing the suit to dissolve the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company as a threat to the welfare and living standards of every American citizen, officials of the company announced today that they would oppose it with every legitimate means.

The suit filed in the federal court for the southern district of New York asked the court to dispose of its manufacturing and processing facilities and to break up the company into smaller chains, the A. and P. statement said:

"This action is a threat to the welfare and living standards of every American citizen.

"If successful it will mean less food on every dinner table and fewer dollars in every pay envelope.

"This is not just an effort to destroy A. and P. but an attack on the entire system of efficient low cost low profit mass distribution which this company pioneered.

"A. and P. was the first chain store in this country and the methods we developed have been adopted by other grocers as well as merchants in other lines. There are today literally hundreds of chain stores and voluntary groups of individual merchants operating with the same method and in the same patterns here under attack.

"If the anti-trust lawyers succeed in destroying A. and P. the way will be cleared for the destruction of every other efficient large scale distributor.

"There is nothing even approaching monopoly here for as every housewife knows the retail grocery business is the most competitive in the country and we do only a small part of it. Nor was there ever any charge that we raised prices for the whole basis of this attack is the fact that we sold good food too cheap. There is nothing in our operation or in any previous court decision involving us, or in the anti-trust laws themselves to justify the dissolution of A. and P. Obviously it is the theory of the anti-trust lawyers that the people of America have no right to patronize a company if their patronage will make that company grow and that any big business must be destroyed simply because it is big and even if the public gets hurt in the process.

"This action is just opposite to the purpose of the anti-trust laws which were meant to increase competition and keep prices down; for if it succeeds it will serve only to cut down competition and force prices up."

Scout Troop 32 Makes Fine Record In Its Achievements

Even though Boy Scout troop 32, sponsored by the Monroe Lions Club, is not as old as many of the troops in the Ouachita Valley Council, it has a record of Scouting progress during the past seven years which is among the best to be found in this area. Twenty-seven boys in the Sherrouse addition are registered members in this very active Scouting unit, and many, many more boys have been members since its organization in 1942.

In June, 1942, the Monroe Lions Club, recognizing the need for a Boy Scout troop in the Junior College section of Monroe, sponsored the reactivation of troop 32, which had been inactive since 1938. The initial small group of Scouts were transferred from troop 29 and consisted of boys who lived in the eastern section of Monroe.

Through the courtesy of the Trinity Lutheran Church, the troop met in the pastor's garage and continued to meet there until the summer of 1947, when the Lions Club appropriated funds to construct an enlarged and suitable meeting place on a lot leased free to the club by Mr. John Sherrouse, which is the troop's present home.

Troop 32 has been and is active in Scouting, in participating in troop, district and council activities. Each summer, members attend camp at Camp Ki-Ro-Li as a unit accompanied by an adult leader.

Ten boys have attained the rank of Eagle Scout and eight Scouts have been elected to the Order of the Arrow, with one of this number having been initiated into the second degree of the order.

On September 1, the minimum age for Scouts was lowered to eleven and all boys who live in the Junior College section of Monroe, who desire to become affiliated with an active Scout troop, are invited to visit the troop at any time on the weekly meeting night, which is Monday at 7:00 o'clock, in the Scout hut located east of the Sherrouse School on Gilbert street.

W. W. Stevens is Scoutmaster of the troop and is assisted by the following Scouters: J. C. Loftin, T. H. Woods, R. M. Kettenring, John F. Kelso, Raymond D. Potter, R. H. Wing and W. E. Lawson.

Troop membership is as follows: Z. Phillip Ambrose, J. Michael Cage, Ernest Carter, Wayne Causey, Jimmy Dennis, Jack DuPriest, Albert Ellis, Jerry Frey, Delmas Jackson, Lloyd Jolly, Wilmer Lawson, John Love, Tommy McBride, Horace McClure, Bob Preddy, Dick Seiler, Fred Seiler, Buster Stevens, Bill Stevens, Sam Thompson Allen Wainwright, Frank Webb, Bill Wheelis, Bill Harrington, Bill Bacon, Bob Ambrose and Paul Williams.

Musical Notes From The Choral Club

By Helen V. Agnew

There's something about meeting old friends again that just naturally makes for a warm glow around the heart. That buzz you heard last Monday night just before 7:30 was the "family reunion" as the members of the Choral Club renewed old acquaintances and made some new ones.

It was mighty good to see so many familiar faces, although there were a few missing that we'll be looking for next Monday night. And we're very glad indeed to welcome so many new members. Tell your friends. And bring them. The more the merrier. When we get to singing, we like to hear those rafters ring.

Anybody got a music stand we could borrow? A good, solid, strong-backed music stand that won't wilt when the going gets strenuous. Our director surely needs one that will stand up for its own rights!

Many thanks to Alfred Barlow for his good work at the piano on such short notice . . . to E. O. Hinton for being such a good "press agent" for us out Fairbanks-way . . . to Irving Zeidman and Lawrence Gibbs for those nice "plugs" on their radio programs . . . to the Presbyterian Church for providing us with a meeting-place last Monday night . . . and to the Baptist Church for giving us permission to meet in their educational building next Monday night and the Monday nights to come.

If the guy at the desk next to yours is running you crazy going lu-LU-LU-lu-lu-lu, don't jump to conclusions and think he's gone loco. Meet us down at 303 St. John street Monday night, and the next time he tunes up you can make a duet out of it.

EXTENSION WORK TO BE STARTED

Classes At N. J. C. To Open Fall Semester On Monday Night

The organization meeting of all night classes of the extension division will be held Monday, September 19, at 7 p. m. in Brown Hall of N. J. C.

At this time members of each class will agree on the meeting time and the day of week the class will meet.

Interest has been manifested in the following classes: Sociology, college algebra, anatomy and physiology, bacteriology, chemistry, business mathematics, history of western civilization, retail store organization and management, elementary accounting, poultry production, English composition and economics.

There are many other courses offered through the general extension division and the people of northeast Louisiana are urged to take advantage of this opportunity to learn while on the job.

All classes are to be taught in the late afternoon and night in order to permit participation without interference with office hours.

Students who desire college credit for a course usually pay $5 per semester hour of credit. For an example, the course in history, is a three semester hour course and the fee would be $15. In certain classes involving extra laboratory hours the fee may be higher.

Non-credit students who enroll in college-credit classes pay two-thirds of the regular fee charged the students who are working for credit. Thus for a three semester hour course, a credit student will pay $15, a non-credit student, $10.

In college credit courses such as typewriting and shorthand, where the emphasis is placed on the learning of some particular skill, both non-credit and credit students pay the same fee.

The organization meeting to be held Monday, September 19, will enable all people interested in the same courses to get their classes under way.

Groups have special subjects in mind are asked to call A. S. Huffman at 4201 so arrangements can be made for these classes.

Veterans are asked to bring their certificate of eligibility and entitlement when they register.

All students desiring college credit should state this fact at the time of enrollment and a transcript of previous high school and college credits must be submitted to the extension division.

Any adult who desires to enroll in a class for his own pleasure and profit without regard to college credit may do so, regardless of previous educational training unless a department requires special prerequisites.

"SEE HOW FOLDING DOORS MAKE EVERY ROOM BIGGER!"

Yes, Modernfold Doors make rooms bigger because they eliminate waste space. The shaded areas show this space consumed by the swing of ordinary doors. Approximately eight square feet per opening! Multiply that by the number of interior doors in the average 5-room house . . . in living room, dining room, kitchen, closets, bedrooms. Why, it's the size of a small room.

Modernfold Doors save this space because they fold like an accordion. Thus, they permit placement of furniture next to openings . . . end door interference and other vexing problems.

Beautiful, too . . . because they are attractively fabric-covered in 21 popular colors. And durable—thanks to a sturdy metal frame. Call on us today.

Health Unit Director Gives History, Methods Of Polio

By W. Carroll Summer, M.D., M.P.H.
(Director Ouachita Parish Health Unit)

Synonyms: Infantile Paralysis: Heine-Medin disease (Europe). Dr. Heine first pronounced that the crippling had nothing to do with bones, but was the result of damaged or destroyed nerve cells and Professor Medin of the University of Stockholm, who worked through two epidemics in Sweden and amassed a store of valuable information.

The modern term, used by physicians and other professional people is "poliomyelitis"—often called "polio" for the sake of brevity. Poliomyelitis is aptly named for "polio" means gray, "myelos" means spinal cord or marrow and "itis" means inflammation. Inflammation of the gray matter of the central nervous system is a well-known characterstic of this disease.

"Infantile paralysis" is the term most frequently used, which in one way is unfortunate, as some people jump to the conclusion that only very young children are attacked. This is not true because individuals of 30, 40 or older may have the disease, although it is true that the majority of the patients are children.

Polio is caused by an agent known as a virus. Many other diseases are caused by viruses, some of which are: measles, mumps, influenza, certain types of pneumonia, smallpox, chickenpox, yellow fever, rabies, dengue or break bone fever, trachoma, herpes (fever blister), various forms of encephalistis, lymphogranuoma venereum (a venereal disease), psittacosis (parrot fever) and perhaps others.

The virus of polio is extraordinarily tough. It is impervious to cold and to many of the germicidal agents. But it can be destroyed by formalin, by ultra-violet rays, by compounds of heavy metals such as bichloride of mercury, by strong oxidizing agents as hydrogen peroxide or by heating to a temperature of 130 degrees F. and above.

The virus is particular in its habits; it attacks only nerve cells, feeding on these cells and causing injury resulting in their inactivity, and at times, the death of the cells. The virus is not commonly found in the blood and spinal fluid. The virus has been frequently found in the stools of recognized cases and also in the stools of contacts to cases. It has also been isolated from the nasopharynx and tonsils. Flies have been found to harbor the virus but there is no clear cut evidence that they play a part in the spread of polio, but must be considered as a possibility.

The virus in many instances, shortly after it enters the body, finds its way to the principal nerve centers. Once there it settles and concentrates on the inner gray cells of the medulla or the spinal cord or both. Here it feeds and grows, living on the material within the nerve cells. These cells may be destroyed and no longer have control over the muscles of the body. Paralysis or inability to move the muscles which these nerves control becomes apparent and the result is more or less permanent crippling. There can be no real cure for this.

If the nerve cells attacked by the virus are not destroyed and retain some of their activity, they may eventually recover. In such instances, where partially injured nerves recover, the muscles controlled by such nerves become irritated, causing a "spasm." Frequently there is acute pain with the spasm. Patients are now helped through these painful times by hot, moist applications.

Probably the most common type of polio is the form that is least identified by the general public. It is known as "abortive polio" and is difficult to diagnose since the symptoms are often overlooked. These symptoms may consist merely of headache, fever, vomiting, sore throat or an upset stomach. There are no evidence of paralysis. It is probably this form that helps to bring about immunity for a large number of persons. It is not known how many mild cases of this disease occur, nor the ratio of these mild abortive cases to paralytic cases of the disease. It is believed that there are as many as 20 or more time the number of abortive froms of the disease occuring as there are of the paralyzing forms.

If the virus on reaching the central nervous system carries on pronounced activity, symptoms will be produced that will enable a diagnosis to be made. First, it may cause merely a stiffness of the neck and back but no paralysis. This type is known as "non-parlytic polio." The nerve cells involved are not permanently disabled. It is known that of those children with recognized and definite polio, at least one-half get entirely well without any permanent paralysis.

The general public is most familiar with the more dramatic, but fortunately the least common, form of the disease, that is, paralytic polio. In this instance large numbers of the nerve cells are rendered useless and the muscles which they innervate or supply are unable to cause motion. A person may become paralyzed in the arms, the legs or in other parts of the body. The disease may affect the muscles of respiration. Unless this type of case is placed in an apparatus called the respirator or iron lung which mechanically expands the lungs, the person may not be able to breathe and may die. When the chest muscles are affected the virus has settled in the shouldr region of the spinal cord.

At times the virus may settle in the region of the medulla, or "bulb," the thickened collection of nervous tissue at the upper end of the spinal cord. It is in this bulb that many of the vital nerve centers of the body are located. When the infection localized in this region, it is known as "bulbar polio." The virus which lodges in the bulb may affect the nerves controlling the muscles of the throat, thus making it impossible to swallow or to speak plainly. The virus may also affect the patient's breathing apparatus. Bulbar polio is very serious. However, this form of polio is relatively rarer than the spinal type where the infection localizes lower down in the spinal cord. All these forms—the spinal forms and the bulbar forms—are the same illness, the only difference being in the location and the extent of damage done to the nerve cells which control the various muscle activities.

Earlier opinions were that the virus entered the body solely through the nasal passages and the olfactory nerve (the nerve of smell). Probably the reason for this was the fact that the Rhesus monkeys from India, when inoculated with the virus in the nasal region for experimental purposes, would develop infantile paralysis. Since their reactions to the disease were so similar to those of human beings, it was assumed that probably human beings "caught" the disease in the same manner. However, more recent studies of the olfactory nerve in patients who died of polio showed this opinion to be false. In still other studies with other kinds of monkeys and chimpanzees, it has been found that these animals could be easily infected by introducing infectious material by way of the mouth.

It is now believed that the virus may enter in at least two ways: through the mouth and intestinal tract or through the upper respiratory tract.

The virus has affinity for and travels along the nervous system. If a person has had his tonsils or adenoids removed several weeks or a month before exposure to the virus, that region may still be sensitive tissue with perhaps exposed nerve endings. It is such unprotected nerve endings that the virus is seeking. Once in the nervous system it can speed on its way to the center of its activity which is somewhere within the medulla or the spinal cord.

Most physicians, therefore, recommend that, when children need to have tonsils removed, the operation should be done when polio is not prevalent.

At present, there is no way of preventing polio, and it is impossible to protect children from being exposed to infection. Though the paralytic type of polio does not run through a family like measles, which is also a virus disease, it has been found that where one person in a family has polio, it is possible for other members to have the virus within their systems and still, to outward appearance, not have the disease.

Probably the greatest source of infection is the large number of human carriers. These may be unrecognized abortive cases or carriers who are apparently healthy. The abortive cases may be only slightly ill for a few days with a fever and upset stomach, yet the virus may be active within them. There is no practical way of discovering who harbors the virus and for how long. Therefore, until more is known, it is impossible to prevent the spread of the virus in a community. That is why it is advised that during an epidemic children be kept from meeting new groups of people, any one of whom might possibly be a carrier. It should be stated again that the polio virus may be harbored in a person's body without causing any disturbance whatever.

Present knowledge suggests that, as in the case of measles, polio epidemics continue until the number of susceptible people has dropped to a level at which the chain of infection can no longer be maintained. There is at the present time no indications that epidemics of polio may be controlled by immunization.

The waste materials of many human beings may contain the virus and may be a source of infection. The virus in stools will survive for six months or more from the time of collection. It has also remained active in stools collected during the heat of summer from patients in Europe and sent to the United States for examination. In two out of three city epidemics of polio studied in 1939, the virus was found in samples of sewage. In the epidemic of 1939 in Detroit, active virus was found in the sewage near the hospital in which there were polio patients. This is one reason why health authorities discourage swimming in waters that have any possibility of being contaminated. Water polluted by sewage may be a source of infection.

Flies have been found to transport the virus of polio. The virus was obtained from flies during both the Connecticut and Alabama outbreaks in 1941. Even though it is not easy to find the virus in flies, they must be considered as a possibility for spread of the disease. However, it has never been proved that human beings actually have contracted the disease through flies. Moreover, outbreaks do occur in districts or homes where there are no flies.

It is also believed that fatigue may have something to do with causing a person to be more susceptible to the severer forms of polio. If one has over exercised causing extreme fatigue, the body may be less likely to check the spread of the attacking agent or disease. In times when polio is common, it is perhaps best to avoid extreme exercise and the possibility of becoming overtired. A rested body is good protection against disease. Sudden chilling should be avoided such as plunging into very cold water on a very hot day.

Likewise, body cleanliness is important. Failure to practice good health habits such as washing the hands thoroughly before eating or before handling food may result in transmission of infection.

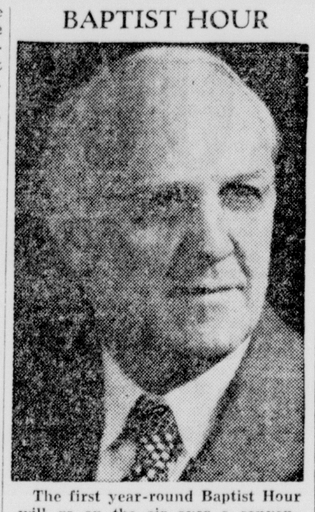
Why does polio attack children? Polio can be caused by a number of strains (different types) of the polio virus just as pneumonia can be caused by more than thirty different kinds of the pneumonia germ. Scientists believe that repeated exposures to small amounts of these various strains of the polio virus can produce an immunity to polio. It is possible that more children than adults are susceptible to the acute disease because they have not had time to be exposed enough in their comparative short lives. Adults, on the other hand, are less susceptible to an acute form of the disease because they have had opportunity to become exposed to repeated mild doses and therefore develop an immunity.

With many communicable diseases, an individual's resistance or immunity depends directly upon the amount of immune agent (or anti bodies) circulating in the blood stream. This fact does not apply, however, to polio because the polio virus invades the nervous system directly, without first infecting the body generally. The presence of polio anti bodies in the blood stream has no bearing on the resistance of an individual to infection. When polio anti bodies are present they merely indicate the person has had a polio virus infection at sometime in the past.

Though the goal has not been reached, further light has been thrown on this and other virus diseases. Experimentation is going on in laboratroies all over the country. The answer to polio may come soon or it may not come for years.

The Capitol building in Washington, D. C., covers about three and a half acres.

BAPTIST HOUR



The first year-round Baptist Hour will go on the air over a convention-wide network of 132 stations on Oct. 2 with Dr. Robert G. Lee, of Memphis (above), president of the Southern Baptist Convention, as the speaker. Dr. Lee's theme will be "The Way from Want to Wealth" and his first subject, "Sin and the Sinner's Saviour." Dr. Lee, who is pastor of the Bellevue Baptist Church in Memphis, will be the speaker during October, November and December, S. F. Lowe, director of the radio commission of the Southern Baptist convention in Atlanta, announced. He will be heard over KMLB Sunday at 2:30 p. m.

P.-T. A. COUNCIL PLANS SCHOOL

Instruction To Be Given; To Be Open To Units Of 5th District

Plans are being made for the Twin-City Council of the Parent-Teacher Association to sponsor a school of instruction on Monday, September 26, in the educational building of the First Baptist Church. Mrs. E. H. Scott is general chairman.

Are you a P.-T. A. member, chairman, or officer? You will be interested to know that this school of instruction is for you. The purpose of this meeting is to acquaint new officers in the local associations with their duties, as they enter on a new year's work, many of them holding office for the first time. It is truly a leadership training course.

A special invitation is extended to all P.-T. A. units in the fifth district to attend, as well as those from Monroe and West Monroe.

The P.-T. A. units having as many as ten representatives present will receive a "certificate."

All local units are asked to make and display posters concerning the school of instruction. A special award will be presented for the best posters.

Dancing School Will Be Opened

Miss Mary Lou Young, local dancing teacher, has recently returned from New York City where she attended the Lucille Stoddard dance congress. She studied under such artists as Ray Bolger, Gene Kelly, William Baker, Ronnie Cunningham, Frances Cole, Charles Weidman, Donald Sawyer, Bernie Sager, Mary Ann Drake, Tommy Dias, Jane and Roye Dodge, George Trainor, Henry Le-Tang, Lola Bravo, Huapala, Celli (ballet teacher of several members of the Ballet Russe), Emily Sherman (captain of the Rockettes), Tommy Vinn television star of the Lannie Ross show), Bernie Williams, and Ernest Calos. She also learned the latest steps in ballroom including the Mombo and the Hucklebuck.

Miss Young will begin her dancing classes September 19 at her new studio located at 101 1/2 North Grand.

HOW LONG WILL YOU BE GONE, DEAR?

I'LL BE GONE ALL AFTER-NOON

NOW, HERE'S THE LIST OF THINGS I WANT YOU TO BE SURE AND DO WHILE I'M GONE

I NEVER LET YOU DOWN, DO I?

REPAIR WINDOW--FIX DRESSER DRAWER---CLEAN ATTIC---TACK DOWN CARPET---ADJUST STOVE---AND MEND SCREEN

FIRST, I'LL TAKE A LITTLE NAP SO I'LL BE IN TIPTOP SHAPE TO TACKLE MY WORK WITH THE PROPER AMOUNT OF VIGOR AND VITALITY

HOLY SMOKES---I'VE BEEN SLEEPING OVER AN HOUR--I'VE GOT TO GET ON THE JOB

I'VE GOT WORK TO DO

HOW ABOUT A LITTLE TWO-HANDED GIN RUMMY IN MY GARAGE, DAGWOOD?

AW, COME ON, ONE MORE

DO YOU REALIZE HOW LONG WE'VE BEEN PLAYING? I'VE GOT TO GET TO WORK

A MAN CAN'T DO A GOOD JOB ON AN EMPTY STOMACH---THE HUMAN BODY REQUIRES FOOD FOR ENERGY AND CLEAR THINKING

NOW, I'M ALL READY TO GO--LET'S SEE, I'LL NEED MY TOOLS, A BROOM, STEP-LADDER, BUCKET, BRUSH, AND RAGS

DON'T TELL ME YOU HAVEN'T EVEN STARTED YET?

ARE YOU HOME ALREADY?

GIVE ME THAT LIST--I'LL DO THOSE THINGS MYSELF

CLATTER CLATTER CLATTER

I GUESS I NEVER WILL UNDERSTAND WOMEN

OH-GOLLY--I DIDN'T THINK IT POSSIBLE-BUT MAGGIE'S VOICE IS GIT TIN' WORSE!!

I'M GONNA GIT OUT OF HERE BEFORE THE NEXT CHORUS-I'LL CALL ON MAHAHAGONY DOWN IN THE OLD NEIGHBORHOOD---

NO-THEY MOVED UPTOWN SINCE HE STRUCK IT RICH-AN' ARE THEY RITZY---

MAHAHAGONY RICH?

SAY-BUDDY-DOES MR. MAHAHAGONY HANG OUT HERE??

HANG OUT? THIS IS HIS ABODE-AND PARDON-SIR-MY NAME IS NOT "BUDDY"-SHALL I MAKE YOUR PRESENCE KNOWN TO THE MASTER??

MAHAHAGONY!

YEH-BUT DON'T LAUGH-IT'S ME WIFE'S IDEA-COME IN AND SEE HER-

I WANT A GIRDLE-JUST LIKE THE GIRDLE THAT DEAR OLD MA-MA WORE!

POOR GUY-I KNOW WHAT YOU'RE GOING THROUGH!!

YEH! AN' I KNOW WHAT YOU HAVE BEEN THROUGH!!

SORRY-MAHAHAGONY-BUT I'LL HAVE TO LEAVE YOU-

THAT'S WHAT YOU THINK!! I'M GOIN' WITH YOU-

CLOSE THE WINDOW--I THINK I HEAR EITHER YOUR WIFE'S VOICE OR MINE AWAY OVER IN THIS END OF TOWN!!

TALK ABOUT SOMETHING PLEASANT!!

WELL, YOU SEE, FOLKS, SLUG ALWAYS THOUGHT HE WAS CUT OUT TO BE AN ARTIST, SO I FIGURED IF I'D BUY HIM SOME PAINT AND LET HIM TRY IT, HE'D FIND OUT HE WAS WRONG, AND THEN HE'D GO DOWN TO SOME FOUNDRY AND GET A JOB.

IT'S A SHAME NOT TO PUT ALL THAT GOOD PAINT ON SOME BARN THAT NEEDS IT!

OH, SLUG! THAT'S PERFECTLY, BEAUTIFUL!

COME ON UP HERE, SAMPSON! YOU CAN SEE FINE AND YOU'RE OUT OF THE WAY!

SMILE, ALICE, I THINK HE'S PUTTING YOU IN THE PICTURE!

AND ON BEHALF OF THE JUDGES, I TAKE PLEASURE IN PRESENTING THE $500.00 CASH PRIZE TO MR. SLUG SMALTZ FOR HIS BRILLIANT AND OUTSTANDING CANVAS ENTITLED, "THE MELANCHOLY ROBIN"

BRAVO!

DITTO!

SINCE SLUG HAS A WIFE TO SUPPORT, I SUPPOSE HE HAS TO DO SOMETHING!

THEN WHY DOESN'T HE PAINT COMICS OR SOMETHING LIKE THAT-THAT PEOPLE WANT!

MRS. SMALTZ, IF YOU LAY HANDS ON ME, I WILL SQUIRT YOU WITH THIS TUBE OF ULTRA-MARINE!

COME BACK HERE AND SQUINT UP YOUR EYES AND IT LOOKS SWELL!

I GUESS I WAS TOO CLOSE!

WHEN THERE'S ANY WET PAINT AROUND, I ALWAYS FIND IT.

THAT'S CALLED "RABBIT CHASING A DOG"

AND HE'LL TAKE YOUR RECREATION ROOM FOR A STUDIO!

GOSH, SUSIE! NOW HE'LL WANT TO KEEP ON!

OH, SLUG! I'M SO PROUD OF YOU!

GEE WHITH, MYRTLE, WHEN I GROW UP I THINK I'LL BE AN ARTITHT, TOO!

MAKE SLUG SPLIT WITH YOU, FREDDIE. YOU BOUGHT THE PAINT!

NOT ME! I'M GOING TO BE AN ARTIST'S MODEL!

MAYBE I WAS WRONG, BUT I TRIED SO HARD—AFTER ALL, JOHNNY HAD MADE MY DREAM COME TRUE— A HANDSOME HUSBAND—A WONDERFUL LITTLE HOUSE OF MY OWN ON THE BIG BARGE—NO MORE WEEDS TO PULL ALL DAY LONG—I WAS FREE— I THOUGHT—

BUT PRETTY SOON HE STARTED BELTIN' YUH AROUND—AND LEAVIN' YUH TO RUN TH' BARGE ALONE, EH?

BUT I TRIED TO FORGIVE HIM— EVEN WHEN HE CURSED ME SO HORRIBLY—HE SAID HE HATED ME—SAID HE'D KILL ME— I'D NEVER BE MISSED— BUT I— I COULDN'T GO BACK TO THE FARM— I JUST COULDN'T!

WHEN I GOT SICK I THOUGHT HE'D CHANGED—HE SEEMED SORRY— SAID HE'D TAKE ME TO A FINE HOSPITAL—HE PUT ME IN THE SKIFF SO TENDERLY—AND—AND THAT'S THE LAST I CAN REMEMBER CLEARLY—TILL

TILL YOU WOKE UP HERE, EH?

YOUR JOHNNY SOUNDS LIKE QUITE A CHARACTER! DO YOU STILL LOVE TH' GUY?

LOVE? NO, ANNIE— I GUESS I WAS IN LOVE WITH LOVE, MAYBE—

OR IN LOVE WITH THE BARGE—AND ESCAPE FROM THE FARM— I COULD HAVE LOVED JOHNNY—BUT—BUT HE SPOILED ALL THAT—

YEAH! WELL, IN THAT CASE I GUESS YOU'RE JUST ABOUT CURED! —OF A LOT O' THINGS!

YES! I'M CURED, ANNIE! BUT I'M NOT BITTER— I DON'T HATE ANYONE— I'M JUST HAPPY THAT I'M STILL ALIVE—

X-RAYS SHOW HOW PROPER USE OF COLGATE'S HELPS STOP TOOTH DECAY!

Eminent dental authorities supervised 2 groups of college men and women for over a year. One group always brushed their teeth with Colgate Dental Cream right after eating. The other group followed their usual dental care. X-rays were taken at regular intervals.

The average of the group using Colgate Dental Cream as directed was a startling reduction in number of cavities—far less tooth decay. The other group developed new cavities at a much higher rate!

NO OTHER DENTIFRICE OFFERS PROOF OF THESE RESULTS

NOW! Proof that brushing teeth right after eating is the safe, effective way to

HELP STOP TOOTH DECAY

with Colgate Dental Cream

Exhaustive Research by Eminent Dental Authorities Proves How Using Colgate Dental Cream Helps Stop Tooth Decay Before it Starts!

NOW! Dental science offers scientific proof that brushing teeth with Colgate Dental Cream right after eating is an effective, safe way to help prevent new cavities, greatly reduce tooth decay!

More than a year's continuous research—hundreds of case histories—makes this the most important news in dental history!

For now—the toothpaste you use to clean your breath while you clean your teeth—brings you a proved way to reduce tooth decay!

Colgate Dental Cream has been proved to contain all the necessary ingredients—including an exclusive patented ingredient—for effective daily dental care. No risk of irritation to tissues and gums! And no change in Colgate's famous flavor, foam, or cleansing action! The Colgate Dental Cream now at your dealer's is the same formula used in the tests.

Regular visits to your dentist are necessary for complete dental care. No home method can help everyone, stop all tooth decay or help cavities already started.

Mothers! Children Love Colgate's Flavor! It's Easy to Start Them on The Colgate Way to Reduce Tooth Decay!

9 out of 10 children have one or more decayed teeth by the time they enter school. So don't wait another day to start your children on Colgate Dental Cream. Teach them the importance of always brushing their teeth right after meals or snacks. They'll love Colgate's flavor—so it's easy to get them to use Colgate's correctly, give them all the benefits of this safe, proved way to reduce tooth decay!

NO CHANGE IN FLAVOR, FOAM, OR CLEANSING ACTION!

Always use Colgate's* to Clean Your Breath While You Clean Your Teeth and HELP STOP TOOTH DECAY!

*Right after eating
